WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., Director. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863) boards. Price 4s. 6d. to 1l. 1s. each Part, according to size; or, bound in 2 Vols., 18l.

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Chut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor; the present possessor; how many hides were in the manor; how many ploughs were in demesne; how many homagers; how many villeins; how many cottars; how many serving men; how many free tenants; how many tenants in soccage; how much wood, meadow, and pasture; the number of mills and fish-ponds; what had been added or taken away from the place; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor; the present value; and how much each free-man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward; who then held it; its value in the time of the late king; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, "it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

* For some reason left unexplained, many parts were left unsurveyed; Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Durham, are not described in the survey; nor does Lancashire appear under its proper name; but Furness, and the northern part of Lancashire, as well as the south of Westmoreland, with a part of Cumberland, are included within the West Riding of Yorkshire. That part of Lancashire which lies between the Ribble and Mersey, and which at the time of the survey comprehended 688 manors, is joined to Cheshire. Part of Rutland is described in the counties of Northampton and Lincoln.

FAC-SIMILES OF NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey. Price, each Part, with translations and notes, double foolscap folio, 16s.

Part I. (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.). 1865.

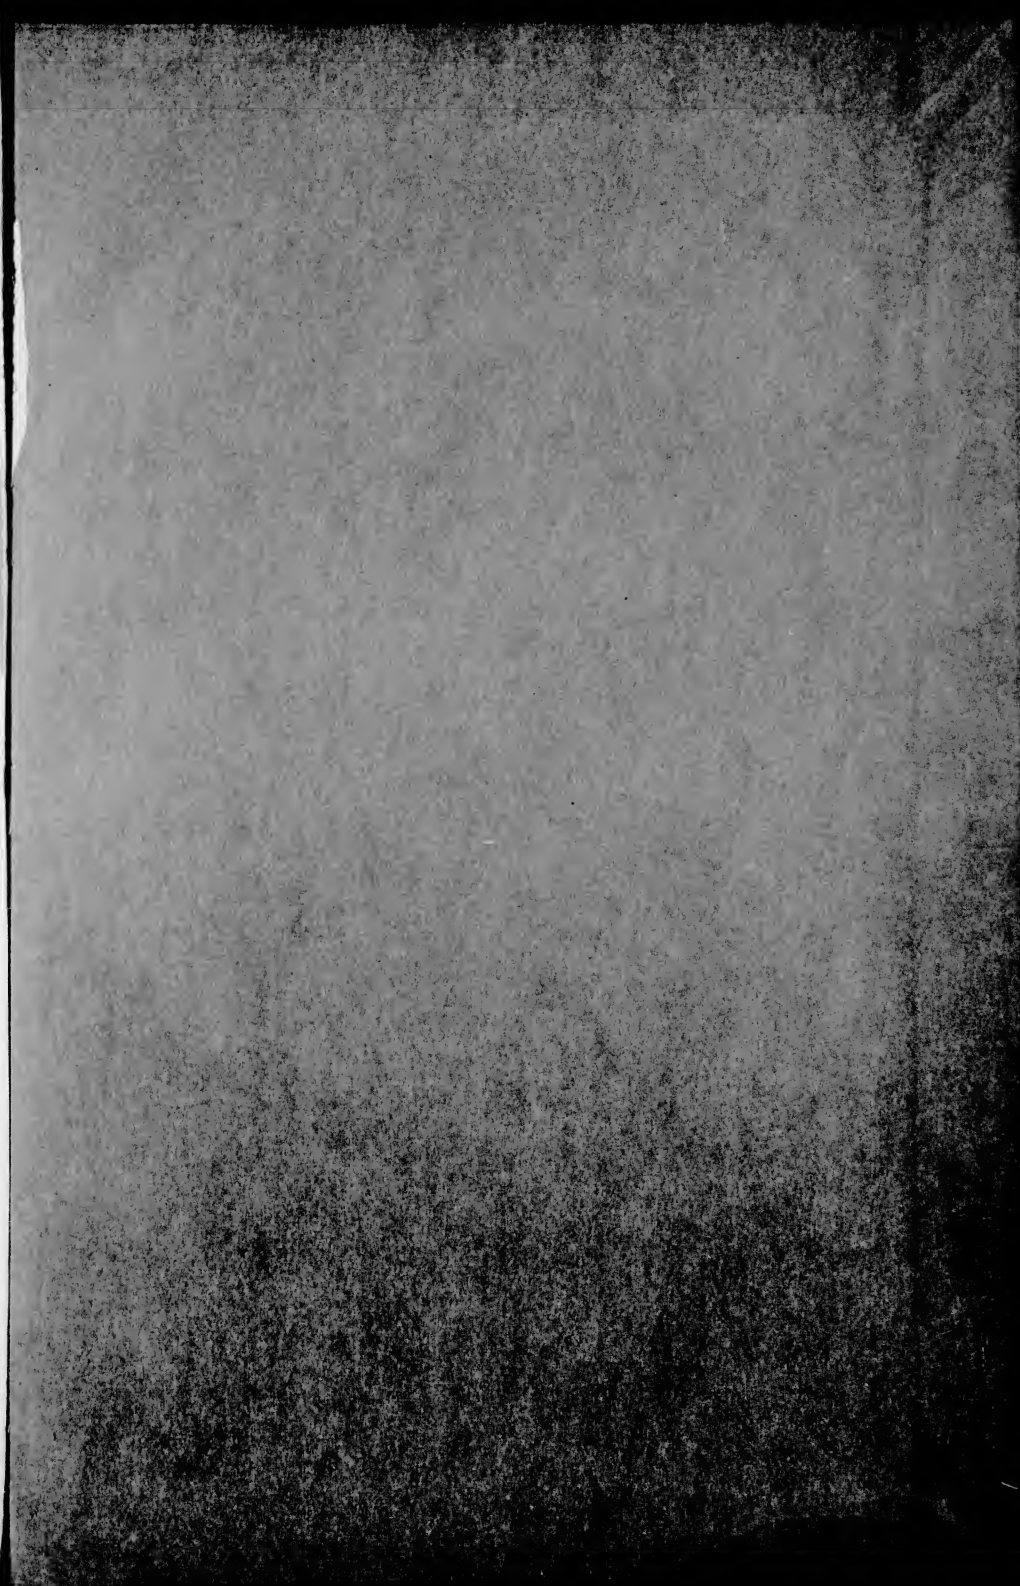

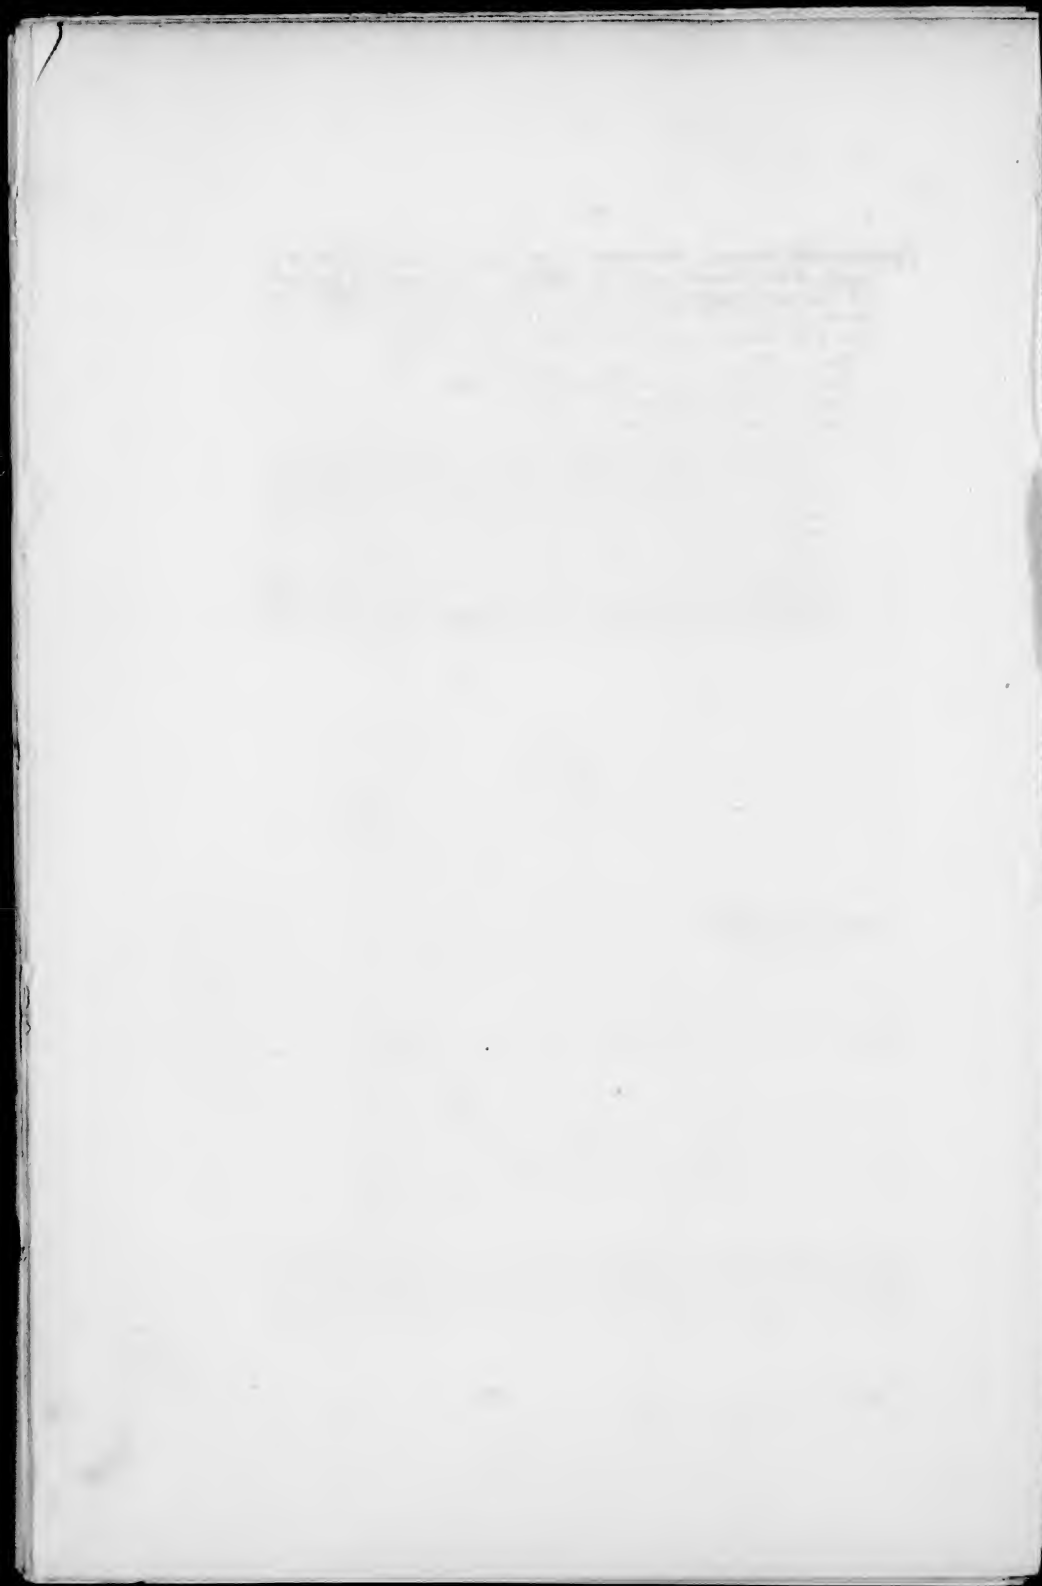

Part II. (Henry VIII. and Edward VI.). 1866.

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth). 1867.

Part IV. (James I. to Anne). 1868.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey. The fourth Part concludes the series, and comprises a number of documents taken from the originals belonging to the Constable of the Tower of London; also several records illustrative of the Gunpowder Plot, and a woodcut containing portraits of Mary Queen of Scots and James VI., circulated by their adherents in England, 1580-3.

CALENDARS.

Instructions to Editors.

The Master of the Rolls desires to call the attention of the Editors of Calendars to the following considerations, with a view to secure uniformity of plan in the important works on which they are engaged:—

He is anxious to extend, as far as is consistent with proper economy and despatch, the utility of the Calendars of State Papers now publishing under his control: 1st. As the most efficient means of making the national archives accessible to all who are interested in historical inquiries; 2nd. As the best justification of the liberality and munificence of the Government in throwing open these papers to the public, and providing proper catalogues of their contents at the national expense.

The greater number of the readers who will consult and value these works can have little or no opportunity of visiting the Public Record Office, in which these papers are deposited. The means for consulting the originals must necessarily be limited when readers live at a distance from the metropolis; still more if they are residents of Scotland, Ireland, distant colonies, or foreign states. Even when such an opportunity does exist, the difficulty of mastering the original hands in which these papers are written will deter many readers from consulting them. Above all, their great variety and number must present formidable obstacles to literary inquirers, however able, sanguine, and energetic, when the information contained in them is not made accessible by satisfactory Calendars.

The Master of the Rolls considers that, without superseding the necessity of consulting the originals, every Editor ought to frame his Calendar in such a manner that it shall present, in as condensed a form as possible, a correct index of the contents of the papers described in it. He considers that the entries should be so minute as to enable the reader to discover not only the general contents of the originals, but also what they do not contain. If the information be not sufficiently precise, if facts and names be omitted or concealed under a vague and general description, the reader will be often misled, he will assume that where the abstracts are silent as to information to be found in the documents, such information does not exist; or, he will have to examine every original in detail, and thus one great purpose will have been lost for which these Calendars have been compiled.

As the documents are various, the Master of the Rolls considers that they will demand a corresponding mode of treatment. The following rules are to be observed:—

1st. All formal and official documents, such as letters of credence, warrants, grants, and the like, should be described as briefly as possible.

2nd. Letters and documents referring to one subject only should be catalogued as briefly as is consistent with correctness. But when they contain miscellaneous news, such a description should be given as will enable a reader to form an adequate notion of the variety of their contents.

3rd. Wherever a letter or paper is especially difficult to decipher, or the allusions more than ordinarily obscure, it will be advisable for the Editor to adhere, as closely as is consistent with brevity, to the text of the document. He is to do the same when it contains secret or very rare information.

4th. Where the Editor has deciphered letters in cipher, the decipher may be printed at full length. But when a contemporary or authorised decipher exists it will be sufficient to treat the cipher as an ordinary document.

5th. Striking peculiarities of expression, proverbs, manners, &c. are to be noticed.

6th. Original dates are to be given at the close of each entry, that the reader may know the exact evidence by which the marginal dates are determined.

7th. Where letters are endorsed by the receivers and the date of their delivery specified, these endorsements are to be recorded.

8th. The number of written pages of each document is to be specified, as a security for its integrity, and that readers may know what proportion the abstract bears to the original.

9th. The language of every document is to be specified. If however, the greater part of the collection be in English, it will be sufficient to denote those only which are in a different tongue.

10th. Where documents have been printed, a reference should be given to the publication.

11th. Each series is to be chronological.

12th. The Prefaces of Editors, in explanation of documents in the volume, are not to exceed fifty pages, unless the written permission of the Master of the Rolls to the contrary be obtained.

* * Editors employed in foreign archives are to transcribe at full length important and secret papers.

P R E F A C E.

THE documents abstracted in this volume extend as to dates from the beginning of 1252 to the end of 1284, a period of 32 years. A large portion of them may probably be ranged under the following heads or subjects:—1. Accounts; 2. Appointments; 3. Castles; 4. The Church; 5. The Crusades and the Holy Land; 6. Edward the King's eldest son and heir [Prince Edward]; 7. The government of Ireland; 8. Inquisitions and extents; 9. Irish kings and princes, the Irish, &c.; 10. The King; 11. Lands granted; 12. Legal proceedings; 13. Free customs and liberties, markets, fairs and free warrens, &c.; 14. The Earl Marshall's heirs in Ireland; 15. The Mint; 16. Merchants, merchandise, trade, &c.; 17. Monasteries; 18. Letters of attorney and protection; licences to use English laws; 19. Municipal grants of various kinds; 20. The Exchequer of Dublin or Ireland; 21. Justiciaries; 22. Miscellaneous. We proceed to refer to the information contained under these various heads.

1. Our previous volume gives abstracts of some accounts, but later on this class of documents increases very much, and accordingly we have in this volume abstracts of a very large number of accounts. Such are those of various officers in Ireland, and among them the following:—two of Sir James de Audley, one of Robert de Ufford, justiciaries of Ireland, one of Hugh Bishop of Meath, and four of Stephen Bishop of Waterford, Treasurers of Ireland. But by far the most numerous accounts are those which are to be found in the collection from the Queen's Remembrancer's Department styled "Irish Exchequer." In the index, p. 620, under the head of Exchequer of Dublin or Ireland, will be found a full list, amounting to 28 in number, of the latter accounts, many of them being of very great length, and all abstracted in this volume. These accounts are not only very curious, but highly valuable, for they afford many particulars of information not to be had elsewhere. Among such of them as are rolls of payment, we find accounts of fees and other moneys paid to justiciaries, treasurers, chancellors, judges, and other high officers in Ireland; fees for the custody of castles; payments for building, repairing, and for works in castles; supplying them with wines and other stores; maintenance of hostages; payments to chaplains of the castle of Dublin and the Exchequer, &c.; alms to friars and to the recluse of St. Mary les Dames; payments for conducting Irish prisoners; for leading armies and for heads of Irish felons, &c. &c. On the rolls of receipt we have fines for licences, and fines for various trespasses and offences; receipts of farms or rents of Crown lands; issues of the escheatry of various places; issues of the new custom, &c. &c. The last-mentioned accounts have in a great measure tended to increase this volume to its present size, and the index, from the multiplicity of names of places and persons contained in it, to its great length of nearly 166 pages; but the abstracts of these documents will not be considered unworthy of the large space which they occupy.

2. Appointments in this volume comprise, besides others, those of the various justiciaries whose names are given in a list following the index; of Brother Stephen de Fuleburne, Bishop of Waterford, as Treasurer (1034); of Walter de Fuleburne, his brother, afterwards Bishop of Meath, as Chancellor (2114); of Robert Bagod as chief justice of the King's Bench, Dublin (1055); and of John de Hacche, as justice of the Common Pleas (2135).

3. Regarding castles, a reference to the index, p. 590, will show the information contained in this volume regarding the castle of Dublin; we have moreover the details referring to various castles, and especially to that castle and those of Athlone, Roscommon, and Randown, contained in the Treasurer's accounts and those of the Irish Exchequer above referred to; and to these may be added the following:—Mandate to the justiciary to cause a castle to be fortified in a fit place in Ulster (32); the justiciary to cause Ralph Fitz Ralph Fitz Nicholas to have from his knights and free tenants in Leinster and Uriel service and aid to fortify a castle (431); seisin for Richard son and heir of Walter de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, deceased, of all his father's castles in Ulster and elsewhere (1629); mandate to the justiciary of Ireland to deliver to Richard son and heir of Walter de Burgh, formerly Earl of Ulster, the castles, lands, and tenements of the latter in Connaught, Ulster, and elsewhere in Ireland (1632).

4. Documents relating to the Church in this volume are extremely numerous. We have, as a reference to the index will show, licences to elect and royal assent to elections in most of the then existing dioceses. But there is a remarkable deficiency of information in regard to at least one diocese; we refer to that of Derry. In regard to this diocese, we have neither in this volume nor the previous one a single licence to elect or a single royal assent. The Editor is unable to account for this deficiency, unless a reason for it is to be found in No. 2332, lines 4 and 5. But be this as it may, we have numberless proofs in this volume that the King generally claimed as an indisputable right that licences to elect should be demanded of him, and his royal assent obtained to elections. On the other hand, where the Pope promoted a bishop to a see, the King appears to have accepted the promotion. In the following instance, however, the King did not immediately restore the temporalities :—

“ The King’s letters to the justiciary and the escheator of Ireland. The Pope having provided the church of Tuam with Walter late Dean of St. Paul’s, London, as Archbishop of Tuam, prayed the King to restore his temporalities. It is not the custom to restore the temporalities to any prelate until he shall have come personally to the King and rendered fealty; but as Walter is an Englishman and may be useful in the K.’s affairs, the King commands that the archbishop’s bailiffs be permitted to dwell in the houses, to cultivate and turn to profit the lands of the archbishop, and that the fruits be collected and safely kept until he shall have personally come to the King and rendered fealty. The King will then of his grace restore the temporalities or retain them to his own use, as may be his pleasure.” (555.)

The above letters are dated 2nd Sept. 1257. On the 6th of November following the King notifies to the justiciary and escheator that he had taken Walter Archbishop of Tuam into favour and restored to him the see and its issues from the date of his previous letters (560).

On Walter’s death, in little more than two years subsequently, Thomas Bishop of Elphin, who had been postulated to the see of Tuam, writes to the King on the 26th Jan. 1259–60 that some canons of Elphin had elected Milo Archdeacon of Clonmacnois, without waiting for the King’s licence and in contempt of the dean, the archdeacon, and the treasurer of Elphin. The Archbishop had found many defects in this election, and his delegates had decreed that it be quashed. The dean and archdeacon, &c. of Elphin having thereupon elected Thomas Abbot of Boyle he prayed the royal assent to this election (646). The King had meanwhile written to the justiciary to restore the temporalities to Milo, if confirmed, granting this grace as he says at the prayer of the Archdeacon of Besancon, brother of Geoffrey de Genville (647); but having received the archbishop’s letters presenting the Abbot of Boyle as bishop, he writes to the former on April the 10th, 1260, stating that having given the royal assent to the election of Milo, he might well hesitate under the circumstances, but placing faith in the archbishop’s letters he now gives the royal assent to the abbot’s election, praying the archbishop to inform him which of the elect he can admit without detriment to his right (650). Abraham Archbishop of Armagh, Primate of Ireland, having subsequently confirmed Milo’s election, the K. takes fealty from the latter as elect and restores the temporalities to him (690). Soon after the 9th of Jan. 1261–2 Thomas Archbishop of Tuam again writes to the King that Milo being dead he prays restoration of temporalities to the above-mentioned Thomas, who had been duly confirmed and consecrated as Bishop of Elphin. The court of Rome had finally decided against the Archbishop of Armagh in this matter (721). The King thereupon commands the escheator of Ireland, there being no further obstacle, to restore the temporalities to Thomas (724).

During vacancies of sees the King claimed the right to appoint to dignities and prebends in those sees. In the previous volume (No. 2419) we have at least one instance of the gift by the King of an archdeaconry during vacancy, and we have several in this volume. The King had during vacancy granted the archdeaconry of Dublin to William de Salinis (1081). The Prior and convent of the Holy Trinity (Christ Church), Dublin, and the chapters of Kildare and Leighlin opposed this grant. The archdeacon thereupon excommunicated the prior and convent, praying the aid of the secular arm against excommunicated persons (1178 and 1179). The prior and convent having demanded that William should be presented to them in order to receive from them the dignity in question, both they and the Dean and chapter of St. Patrick's were called into the King's presence. The matter having been debated for several days the prior and convent were asked whether they could produce an instance of a presentation having been made to them by kings of England in times past. On their replying that they had none, they were asked whether it appeared right or just to them that the King should on their nude assertion revoke the mandate which he had sent in favour of William; to this they answered that for the sake of peace and reverence to the King they wished that William should remain as archdeacon (1184). And so the controversy ended.

There was also a double election in regard to the see of Dublin itself. This see being vacant by the death of Fulk de Sanford, late Archbishop of Dublin, licence to elect was, on the 13th June 1271, granted to the deans and chapters of St. Patrick's and the Holy Trinity (903). On the 25th July 1271 the Dean and chapter of St. Patrick's notify that the Prior and chapter of the Holy Trinity had refused to elect, but that they, the dean and chapter, had elected William de la Cornere, chaplain of the Pope, and their brother canon as Archbishop of Dublin. The Dean and convent of the Holy Trinity, however, notify two days afterwards that they had elected Fromund le Brun, chaplain of the Pope and Chancellor of Ireland, as archbishop (913). It was not until nearly eight years afterwards that the difficulty was ended by the Pope promoting John de Derlington to be archbishop (1548), and all this time the see of Dublin remained vacant. We have the words of the oath of fealty taken by John de Derlington as archbishop (1549). That there was a double election in the see of Kildare also appears from letters to the King from Brother Nicholas de Cusac of the order of the Franciscans, who had been promoted by the Pope to be Bishop of Kildare. Having been enjoined to proceed immediately to the Pope's presence, he beseeches the King to order the temporalities to be restored in his name to his proctor, who will give for him the customary oath of fealty. He will himself, on his return from Rome, humbly and dutifully tender his oath to the King (1643).

Among the most remarkable documents referring to the Church are three letters from John de Camezan, the Pope's chaplain and judge of appeals. The first relates to papal letters obtained by the Archbishop of Tuam and other Irish bishops commanding the Dean and Archdeacon of Kilfenora to restrain by ecclesiastical censure the justiciary of Ireland and others from holding inquisitions against and seizing ecclesiastical persons, and casting them into prison. Finatus, sub-deacon of the Pope, and Robert de Baro, the K.'s proctor, opposed those letters, and obtained that the persons in question should not be prejudiced thereby, and that the letters should not be extended to them; and this was solemnly accepted by the other side (475). The second refers to papal letters obtained by the same archbishop, prohibiting certain officials of the King in Ireland from entertaining ecclesiastical questions in their courts. These letters having been opposed it was obtained that the King's officials should not be prejudiced thereby, and that the letters should not extend to them in regard to their office; and this was solemnly accepted by the other side (479). The third concerns papal letters obtained by the same archbishop, commanding the Dean and Archdeacon of Killaloe to restrain by ecclesiastical censure the justiciary of Ireland and other barons and bailiffs of the King in that country from interfering with legacies to pious uses, and preventing crusaders from proceeding to the Holy Land. These letters having also been opposed it was obtained that the justiciary and officials of the King should not be prejudiced thereby, and that the letters should not be extended to them; and this was accepted as before (480).

Besides the above, the following are worthy of attention:—Mandate to reduce the church of Enachdune to its ancient position of a parish church in place of a see (76 and 77); the King having restored to Florence Archbishop of Tuam the temporalities of the bishopric of Enachdune, the archbishop gives in exchange to the K. the vill of Enachdune, in order that the K. may there fortify a castle (274); mandate to the justiciary of Ireland to find a ciborium for each cathedral church in Ireland (280); as it has ever been the custom that in vacancies of sees in Ireland licence to elect should be demanded of the King, and on election made the royal assent required, the King marvels that the Archbishop of Armagh and Brother Geoffrey de Cusac should oppose the King's right in this respect. Wherefore the King commands the Bishop of Killaloe, the Archdeacon of Waterford, and the minister of the Franciscans in Ireland, that in the cognizance of the cause brought before them by papal letters between the said archbishop and Brother Geoffrey they so bear themselves that the kingly dignity may suffer no lesion. Otherwise the King cannot refrain from interfering in regard to the archbishop and Brother Geoffrey (315). Inquisition taken at Kilkenny finding that Hugh Rufus, formerly Bishop of Ossory, and his successors, were wont yearly to receive an ounce of gold for a portion of land, and a toll out of the vill of Kilkenny (861). The King's letters to Edward his son, calling upon him to redress the grievances of the Church of Ireland; the King would himself have applied a remedy, but for Edward's immediate departure for that country (460); brief of Pope Urban IV., submitting to the King complaints regarding the King's justiciary and bailiffs in Ireland (717); letters of David Archbishop of Cashel. Had obtained the King's grace for having confirmed certain elections in his province, not knowing that they ought to have been previously submitted to the King. The archbishop binds himself and his successors, and faithfully promises not to confirm any election before licence to elect shall, according to custom, have been obtained from, and the election submitted to the King. Will endeavour that a letter of his chapter on this subject shall be drawn up (832). The King prays the archbishops and bishops of England and Ireland to assist the foundation of a chaplaincy in the church of St. Mary, Oxford, by granting some indulgences to all those who attend the solemnity of mass there (1079); the King had lately prohibited the Bishop of Ossory from going to foreign parts without the King's special licence; he had nevertheless proceeded thither without licence, for which his temporalities were taken into the King's hand. The King however subsequently, at the request of Napoleon, Cardinal deacon, of special grace restored the temporalities, provided that he should submit to the King regarding his contempt. The Dean and chapter of Ossory, however, not having restored the temporalities as they had by writ been directed to do, the King commands them to restore them (1419). Letters of the justiciary certifying that the Archbishop of Armagh had no more right touching bishoprics within his see in time of vacancy than have any other archbishops in Ireland regarding their vacant suffragan sees (1483); articles to be proposed against the Archbishop of Armagh (2274); grant to James of Spain, nephew of Alienor, Queen Consort, of a prebend in the church of St. Patrick's, Dublin, lately held by W. elect of Salisbury (2323).

In a book of the greatest importance for ecclesiastical history in Ireland, Cotton's Fasti Ecclesie Hibernie, to the general accuracy of which the Editor begs to bear willing testimony, some doubt appears to be entertained as to whether Walter de Fuleburne or Foleburn, brother of Stephen Bishop of Waterford, was Bishop of Meath, and his name appears to be omitted in the sequence of bishops of that diocese. This volume goes far to set all doubts on this subject at rest. We have the mode of Walter's consecration by the Archbishop of Armagh in 1284, without licence obtained or fealty taken (2274); the archbishop is charged with having provided Walter with the see out of simoniacal pravity (p. 552); and Walter's name occurs many times as Bishop of Meath.

In regard to the tribute to the Church established by King John [Vol. I., No. 489], we have in this volume several details. In 1267 the King directed that seven years arrears of it which had then accrued should be paid out of the tenth granted to him in Ireland (827 and 828); but this tenth being insufficient the King in addition made over the tenth granted by the Pope in the diocese of Lincoln (863). Seven years arrears of the tribute being again due Pope John XXI. wrote to the King for payment (1309). The King having subsequently proposed that it should be paid out of the revenues of monasteries, we have the reply of Pope Nicholas III., assuring the King that he was desirous of complying with his wishes, but that this proposal would tend neither to the honour of the apostolic see nor the King's advantage. The Pope therefore proposed to make no change in what had been so long and so solemnly done in regard to the tribute by the predecessors both of the Pope and of the King (1477). In 1281-2 Pope Martin IV. acknowledges payment of eight years arrears of it due at Michaelmas 1277, and Geoffrey de Vezano, papal legate, gives acquittance for four years arrears due at Michaelmas 1281 (1937).

5. As to the crusades and the Holy Land we have some documents in connexion with Ireland. In 1252 the King fixing a period for his departure for the Holy Land commands the Archbishops of Cashel and Tuam to cause the crusades to be assiduously preached, and to permit the King's collectors to collect money for them; the Archbishop of Dublin to collect a tenth from ecclesiastical benefices for the same purpose; and Maurice Fitz Gerald and the justiciary, &c. to induce the magnates of Ireland to accompany the King (25). Shortly afterwards Pope Innocent IV. ordered a prayer and other special acts of devotion to be daily offered up in all churches in England, Ireland, and Gascony for the rescue of the Holy Land (98); and exhorted the Benedictines, Cistercians, and other orders in those countries to pray for the King proceeding to join the crusades (101). His Holiness also ordered a tenth to be collected in those countries for the Holy Land (163). Peter of Savoy having sworn to go with the King to the Holy Land, the King binds himself to give to Peter 5,500 marks, and assigns part of the money for the purpose out of Ireland (181). The King also commanded the magnates and other crusaders of Ireland to certify how many of them should proceed to the Holy Land (186); enjoins and orders the Archbishop of Armagh and the Bishops of Meath, Ossory, and Kildare not to impede certain persons in collecting the tenth (242); and prays archbishops, bishops, abbots, and other prelates in Ireland to give those persons counsel and aid in forwarding the crusade (375).

6. The documents relating to Edward the King's eldest son and heir, or according to his more modern appellation, Prince Edward, in connexion with Ireland, are probably not among the least interesting in this volume. They consist chiefly of a grant of Ireland and other grants made by the King in contemplation of Edward's marriage with Alienor of Castile, and of mandates by Edward himself after he became Lord of Ireland. Several of Edward's acts in this respect are entered on the Patent Rolls, 38 Hen. III., p. 2, No. 64, and 44 Hen. III., No. 73, both of which are separate Patent Rolls of Edward the King's son, and are known as such; but besides these there is a Close Roll, 39 Hen. III., p. 4, which the Editor believes to consist exclusively of acts by him, though it is not known as his Roll. The Vascon Roll, 39 Hen. III., also contains acts of Edward. Probably there were other Rolls of Edward in existence, but the Editor failed to identify them. Be this as it may, there can be no doubt that the entries relating to Ireland on the King's Rolls sensibly diminish after the grant of that country to Edward, for they are chiefly confined to licences to elect and royal assents. Most of the documents following the grants referred to in the following extracts are to be found on the above four Rolls:—The first is a grant to Edward of all Ireland, excepting the cities and counties of Dublin and Limerick, 500 librates of land which the K. is bound to assign to Godfrey de Lezignan, and 40 librates which the King had promised to Robert Walerand. Seisin accordingly to be given to Edward. Further grant to Edward of the county of Chester, and of the K.'s conquest in Wales; the vill of Bristol, with lands in England, Guernsey, Jersey, and other islands. Then follows the important provision that these lands and castles shall never be separated from the Crown of England, &c. (326). The King notifies that if the lands granted to Edward in Gascony, Ireland, and England do not suffice to make up 15,000 marks a year the King will supply the deficiency out of lands in his hand. If there are no such lands the K. will make up the 15,000 marks out of the first wards until escheats accrue (333). Mandate to magnates, knights, and free tenants in Ireland to be intente and respondent to Edward as their lord (335). Then follows a grant to Edward of the cities of Dublin and Limerick with their counties, and of the vill and castle of Athlone, previously reserved, to hold to Edward and his heirs, Kings of England, for ever; and again is the important provision repeated that the land of Ireland shall never be separated from the Crown of England (371).

The following are a few of the acts of Prince Edward, abstracted from the above-named four Rolls:—Mandate by Edward to Richard de la Rochelle, deputy justiciary of Ireland, to attend to the pacification of Ulster, where some Irishmen have risen against Edward; to take from Edward's treasure money for that purpose; to collect retainers; and cause the people of the country to aid by money and otherwise in its defence (411). Power to Peter de Repenteney, seneschal of Ulster, and Henry de Mandeville, to draw to Edward's peace all the Irishmen of Ulster (412). Edward's mandate to Richard de la Rochelle and the Treasurer of Ireland to discharge the arrears of fees in Irish castles, and, if possible, to withdraw some of those fees (433). Edward sends into Ireland the seal which he used ere he was knighted, in order that he who is deputed to the office of Chancery in that country may use it in his place. Mandate to the magnates, knights, free tenants, and lieges in Ireland to be obedient to the impression of that seal, and intente and respondent to him who holds it in Edward's name, as Chancellor (453). Edward notifies to Hugh Bishop of Ossory, his Treasurer, and Richard de la Rochelle, his seneschal in Ireland, that Geoffrey de Ruilly, clerk, sent by them, had paid into the Prince's wardrobe to the keeper thereof 600 marks of silver of the Prince's treasure of Ireland (455). Edward's letters nominating his justiciary of Ireland, the Master of the Templars, the Prior of the Hospitallers, his Chancellor in Ireland, and John de Kenley to audit once a year the account of Hugh Bishop of Meath, Edward's Treasurer in Ireland (881).

Then follow acts of the King from the King's Rolls:—
 “The King to Edward his eldest son and heir. The “extent made by the deputy of the justiciary of 500
 “librates granted to Godfrey de Lezignan ere the King “gave Ireland to Edward was so defective that no profit “could be made from the grant. Godfrey would not, “therefore, accept it. The King and Queen to remove “all ambiguity have ordained that out of 5 cantreds in “Connaught the cantred to be selected as the best by “Edward, and that in which the castles are situated, with “the castles themselves, shall remain to him; and of the “3 other cantreds Godfrey shall select 2 to remain to him
 “in place of 500 librates. Godfrey having agreed to be “satisfied with these 2 cantreds, whether worth more or “less, the King prays Edward to acquiesce.—20 June “1255” (447).

Further letters from the K. on the same subject (448).
 The King's letters to Richard de la Rochelle, lieutenant of John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland. In the plaint brought before the lieutenant by Thomas Bishop of Clonmacnois against Florence Archbishop of Tuam touching lands in Connaught, the lieutenant had made a contract with the bishop for receiving a profit. Mandate to the lieutenant to respite the plaint until the arrival in Ireland of Edward the K.'s son and of the justiciary, in order that it may be determined before them (456). Mandate to the justiciary either to give to the Archbishop of Tuam an exchange for the vill of Enachdune, and to fortify a castle there, if it would be to the advantage of Edward the K.'s son, or to restore that vill to the archbishop (459). Peter of Savoy had counselled the King that Edward should go to Ireland and remain there during the winter for the ordering of his affairs. The King approving this counsel commands Edward to cross over to Ireland as speedily as he can (461). List of persons who have gone to Ireland on the service of Edward the King's son (496). The King wills that for the future the seal of Edward his son shall run in Ireland, and that under it, as formerly under the King's seal, justice be administered (500):—

“The King to Edward his eldest son. Had lately “learnt that in a recent conflict near Down, the com“monalty of the city and county of Down had defeated “Brian O'Neill, who presumptuously bears himself as “king of the Kings of Ireland. The King highly extols
 “the manifest zeal and devotion of the commonalty.
 “The messengers from Ireland having prayed the King
 “for some graces, the latter exhorts Edward to treat the “suppliants so liberally that others may be animated to “seek the increase of his advantage and honour” (661).
 That the messengers here referred to were rewarded appears from Nos. 670, 677, and 678.

“The King to the Treasurer of Ireland. As Edward
 “the King's son has and holds of the King's gift the “land of Ireland as freely and peaceably as if the King
 “held it, Alienor, his consort, is entitled to her gold out
 “of fines and oblations in Ireland, as Alienor Queen of “England, the King's consort, is entitled to Queen-gold
 “in England. Wherefore the King commands the Treas“urer to cause his son's consort to have her gold accord“ingly” (835).

The last-mentioned document and others already referred to prove how fully Ireland had been granted to Edward. He became in point of fact to all intents lord if not King of Ireland, and had his Treasurer, his treasure, his Exchequer, his Chancellor, and his justices in that country. The appointment of justiciary was not excepted in the grant, and Edward attempted to exercise it, but the King commanded the magnates and subjects of Ireland not to be intente to any justiciary, constable, or keeper, who should come to that country without being appointed by the K.'s letters patent (584). That Edward, however, continued to have his justiciary of Ireland even after the date of these letters appears from several documents (see title Edward in index).

The King also interfered to prevent the alienation of Crown lands in Ireland by Edward, as appears by the following abstract:—

"The King to archbishops, &c., knights, and free tenants in Ireland. Having granted to Edward his son the whole land of Ireland, so that that land should not be separated from the Crown of England, Edward had, without the K.'s licence, made alienation of Crown lands in that country. The King neither will nor ought to submit to this. Wherefore the King gives to Henry his nephew and son of the King of Almain, power to revoke all alienations of manors and lands made by Edward in Ireland, to take these manors and lands into the King's hand, and to commit them to custody to the K.'s use" (844).

Shortly after the date of these letters protection was given to Henry of Almain when about to proceed to Ireland to execute, no doubt, the powers thus entrusted to him; but there is nothing in these pages to show that he carried them out.

The see of Dublin being vacant by the death of Fulk de Saunford, late archbishop, the King had granted the issues thereof to Edward his son, to defray his expenses to the Holy Land. Mandate to the escheator of Ireland to allow Edward's substitutes to have those issues (902).

There appears to be a difference of opinion as to whether Edward went to Ireland after that country was granted to him previous to his departure for the Holy Land. There is in several documents mention of his future arrival there.

In letters dated 29th July 1255, the King says that Edward is shortly going thither (457); three days afterwards the King mentions Edward's immediate departure for that country (460); on the 17th of the following month Peter of Savoy counsels his going thither; the King commands him to cross over from Gascony as speedily as he can, to reform and regulate the state of Ireland, and to return to the King in England at Easter (461); a plaint is respited till the close of Easter unless Edward should sooner go to Ireland (465); in a document inrolled on the Patent Rolls of the following year there is a list of persons who have gone to Ireland on Edward's service (496); and we have a writ for payment of a fee to a person about to go with him (518). None of these documents, however, establish the fact that Edward went to and actually arrived in Ireland.

On Edward's departure for the Holy Land he appointed lieutenants or vicegerents in England to act for him in relation to Ireland. They were Walter Archbishop of York, Philip Basset, Roger de Mortimer, and Robert Burnel (896). The lieutenants having deputed Maurice Fitz Maurice as justiciary of Ireland during Edward's and their pleasure, the King commands archbishops, &c. in Ireland to give counsel and aid, and to be intente and respondent to Maurice as the King's justiciary in that country (924).

Ere we conclude our notice of Prince Edward in connexion with Ireland, we must refer to one other document relating to him, which seems to us of great historical interest. It bears date 10th June 1265, previous to some of the documents we have last drawn attention to, and is noticed in Pauli's Stephen de Montfort. The following is an abstract of it:—

“The King to archbishops, bishops, and others in Ireland. Had believed that the disturbances long prevailing in his kingdom had been thoroughly quelled by the ordinance made at London regarding the liberation of Edward the King's son, who after the hateful battle of Lewes, had, to secure the peace of the kingdom, of his own free will given himself up as a hostage. The King, his son, the magnates, and the commonalty had sworn to observe this ordinance. But his son had against it and his own oath, gone over to certain marchers and other rebels against the King, and by his adhesion favoured and upheld those against whom he ought to prove himself an enemy. According to rigour of law and his own deed, Edward had thus forfeited his right to the kingdom and all his demesnes. The King therefore commands the archbishops, &c. not to favour, aid, or obey Edward or his bailiffs, but to strive to promote peace and concord in Ireland, so conducting themselves that no danger accrue to that country from those who have shown themselves to be rebels there.

“Letters in nearly the same form to Walter de Burgh commanding him by no means to give aid or counsel in fomenting Edward's rebellion, &c.

“By the King himself, the Earl of Leicester, justiciary, and others (776).”

We are told by a good authority that the documents on the Rolls were between the battles of Lewes and Evesham issued under the dictation of Simon de Montfort; in fact, the King himself, lower down on the very Roll from which the above abstract is taken, says as much, and annuls them. Now this being so, how comes it that the battle of Lewes is styled hateful in this document, which is tested both by the King, and by Simon, as justiciary? The expression in the original is post illud detestabile bellum de Lewes. That that battle was hateful to the King we can readily imagine, but could it have been so to Simon? How is the expression to be accounted for? Edward is stigmatised as a rebel in this document, and archbishops, &c. in Ireland are commanded not to favour, aid, or obey him. But the gallant Edward soon showed that he was no rebel.

7. The following are some of the documents relating to the government of Ireland:—The King having till his return from Gascony committed to Queen Alienor the government of England, Wales, and Ireland, subject to the counsel of Richard Earl of Cornwall, his brother, provides for vacancies of sees in Ireland (217). We may here remark that in consequence of this grant, documents on the Rolls are, until the King's return, tested by the Queen and the Earl of Cornwall. Discord having lately been stirred up in Ireland the King and Edward his son desire to be certified regarding the state of that country (727); it being expedient that order should be taken for the government of Ulster, the King commands the justiciary by counsel of the Treasurer and escheator to provide for its custody (1024); power to the justiciary to order and dispose of the custody of the sheriffs of Limerick, Waterford, and Tipperary (1025); the King prays archbishops and bishops in Ireland to strive that controversies and wars may cease, and unity and mutual love prevail among barons, knights, and others in that country (1155); having heard that measures vary in Ireland, notwithstanding the ordinance of Henry III., the King assigns Elias of Winchester to hold pleas of the market, and to view and examine measures (1391); Robert de Ufford to the King. The affairs of the latter in Ireland are much improved. The thieves who were at Glendelory have departed, many of them having gone to another strong place. The Irish offer 7,000 marks for a grant from the King of English laws.—5 Edward I. (1400).

“The King to Robert de Offord, justiciary of Ireland.
 “Rejoices exceedingly to learn by the justiciary’s letters
 “that the state and peace of Ireland are ameliorated; “greatly commends the justiciary’s diligence in this “respect, and hopes for a continuation of his successful
 “and virile exertions. As to the offer which the Irish “community make to the King, of 8,000 marks for a “grant of the use of English laws, the King wishes
 “the justiciary to know, that having fully deliberated
 “with his Council, it seemed meet to them that a grant
 “of English laws should be made, because the laws
 “which the Irish use are detestable to God, and so “contrary to all law that they ought not to be deemed “laws. The common consent of the people, or at least “of the well affected prelates and magnates of Ireland, “must first, however, regularly intervene. The King “therefore commands the justiciary to ascertain the “opinions of the prelates and magnates by a conference,
 “and having agreed for a higher fine in money, to arrange

“with them what may seem most for the King’s honour
 “and advantage. They shall, however, be prepared to “send to the King for once only a certain number of “good and valiant foot soldiers” (1408).

8. Of inquisitions and extents we have a large number, of which the following are some of the more remarkable and important:—

The justiciary to cause an inquisition to be taken as to what belongs of regal right to William de Valence in the vill of Ross (54); inquisition as to the value of lands of six Irishmen in Decies (135); inquisitions regarding the lands of Philip Daubeny in Decies (85); and those of Geoffrey de Costentin (146); extent of the lands of Ralph de Picheford (179); writ and inquisition touching Sir John de Verdun’s liberty of Meath (810); inquisition as to the doings of Sir Henry de Mandevyle in Ulster (929); writ commanding the justiciary of Ireland to take an inquisition as to whether the citizens of Limerick are enfeoffed of a fishing pool in the water of Limerick, and what is its value; whether the Irish had hostilely entered land outside the city for which the citizens paid rent; whether any and what prises had been taken from them by justiciaries, and whether any compensation had been made to them; whether an ordinance had been made for payment of compensation to them for the burning of their city; and whether the citizens enjoy the same liberties as the citizens of Dublin.—27 Oct. 1274 (1056); inquisition thereupon.—22 Nov. 1275 (1181).

Letters of the justiciary of Ireland regarding the last-named inquisition. It had been properly taken, except in regard to the extent of 11 carucates of land at 20*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* a year. The citizens make a great stand against the enemies of the Marches, and the King would do well to give them a grant (1205).

Inquisitions finding that the Archbishop of Armagh and his predecessors never after the conquest of Ireland had seisin of wreck of the sea in the tenement of Termonfeekin (1482); as to lands withdrawn from Kilsheelan after the exchange made with Walter de Burgh for the land of Ulster (1520); as to whether it would be to the loss of the King and the damage of the city of Dublin if the King should grant licence to the Carmelite friars to dwell on a piece of ground charitably given to them, and to found and dedicate a church there (1609). Writs and inquisitions as to the liberties of Walter de Lacy in Meath (1645); as to the lands of John Fitz Thomas in Ireland (1912). This inquisition, or rather these inquisitions, for there are four of them, is of very great length, and relates to lands in Kildare, Kilkenny, Waterford, Cork, Kerry, and Connaught. As to the damage wrought by Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, against Sir William Fitz Warin in the lands of the latter in Ulster (1918). As to nationality of John Fitz Nigel, claimed as an Irish villein by Thomas de Clare (1916). As to whether knights and free tenants in the liberty of Meath ought to be put on assizes, juries, or inquisitions without that liberty (1953).

Extent of the lands of William de Mohun in the co. Kildare and elsewhere in Ireland (1963). Writ and inquisition as to knights and advowsons held of Christiana de Mariscis in Ireland (2010). Extent of lands held in demesne and seigniory in Ireland at his death by Sir Roger de Mortimer (202); Sir Roger in right of his wife held a portion of the vast possessions of the Earls Marshall, and this extent is not only of great length, but of interest and importance for the ancient topographical history of Ireland. Unfortunately, the latter part of it is in a great measure illegible. The Editor finding that there was among the Carew Papers at the library of Lambeth Palace a document, which he thought might be a full copy of it, hastened to compare his abstract with the latter document; but much to his disappointment he found that it was a copy of only a small, and that not the most interesting, portion of the extent. Possibly the scribe of Elizabeth's reign laboured under the same difficulty as the Editor in that of Victoria, and found the original mostly illegible. From the document at Lambeth, however, the Editor was able to fill up some names, which he has done within brackets.

Writ and inquisition as to what lands in Ireland William de Marisco died seised of in fee (2201); inquisition as to lands held by William de Mohun, deceased, in the counties of Kildare and Kilkenny (2324); extent made on the King's behalf of the lands which belonged to Christiana de Mariscis in Ireland, 12 Edw. I. (2339 and 2340).

9. The following are some of the documents referring to kings and princes of Ireland, the Irish, &c. :—

The K. does not intend to commit to any person the lands of the King of Connaught, or of the King of Thomond, but wills that those lands be kept in the same state as they are in (189); grant to Stephen Longespée, the King's cousin, that if the King should not wish to retain the four cantreds in Connaught, which Fedhlim O'Connor holds at his pleasure, Stephen shall be the first to obtain that land from the King, provided that he give so much for it as another would give (237); Conor O'Brien's threefold offer for land in Thomond (273); the King writes to Fedhlim O'Connor that he had done him no injury by giving to Godfrey de Lezignan two cantreds of land in Connaught. Some of Fedhlim's relatives who would not derogate from his right, if any, to those lands had offered to the King large sums of money for a grant of them. Edward the K.'s eldest son and the said Godfrey are shortly going to those parts, and the King had enjoined them to provide that no injury arise to Fedhlim (457):—

“Fedhlim O’Conor, King of Connaught, to the King.
 “As the King’s subjects ought gratefully and humbly “to commend his good deeds, returns infinite thanks to “His Majesty for the various honours conferred on him,
 “but chiefly for the King’s orders to William de Dene,
 “then justiciary of Ireland, to cause restitution to be “made to him for the losses which Walter de Burgh
 “had caused in his land of Tyrmane. As the justiciary “had died ere receiving the King’s letters Fedhlim had “received no advantage from them. Walter and his “associates had caused damage to the amount of 6,000
 “marks in the cantred where lie the castles of the King
 “and of Edward his son; besides the damage, estimated
 “at 3,000 marks, which Walter had caused to the church “of Elphin; and besides the burning of churches, and
 “the slaying of clerks and nuns. Wherefore he prays
 “the King to command Sir Richard de la Rochelle, “now justiciary, and the K.’s Council in Ireland, to “cause Walter to render full justice to himself and the “church of Elphin for the damage which Walter had “caused. For no promise made to him by the Irish
 “had he receded, or would he recede, from the King’s “service. Places himself, his people, and all he has “under the protection of the King, and of the Lord
 “Edward; and confides to the Lord Edward from then “until the arrival of the latter in Ireland, all his property,
 “and all his rights, if any he has, in Connaught” (713).

Aedh or Hugh O’Conor, King of Connaught, to the King, praying the royal licence and assent to the election of a bishop in the church of Achonry, vacant by the death of Thomas, late bishop. The church has only 20 marks in rents (775). The King, with the assent of the lieutenants of Edward his son, gives to John de Muscegros power to receive into the peace of the King and of Edward all the Irish who will come thereto (920).

The two documents referred to in Nos. 952 and 953, must be taken on Rymer’s authority, the Editor having in vain attempted to identify them from the references which he gives. It is probable, however, that they exist among the records at the office:—The mayor and commonalty of Carrickfergus in Ulster to the King, regarding the war raised by Aedh or Hugh O’Neill, Commoy O’Kathran, and others (952); letters of kings of Ireland to Edward I., as to what they had done to rout the K.’s Irish enemies, &c. (953); power to Hugh Bishop of Meath and others to treat, if he will do so, with Teige O’Conor regarding his petition for a lease of Connaught (1135); the Irish having prayed the King to grant to them that they might use and enjoy in Ireland the same laws as the English, the King commands archbishops, &c. to meet on days to be appointed and then debate whether the King can make this concession (1681); power to Theobald de Verdun to receive his Irishmen into the King’s peace (2298).

“Donald Rufus MacCarty, lord of the Irish of Desmond, to the King. Vehemently desiring to be sub“jected to the King’s domination, and wishing beyond “measure to acquire the King’s friendship by his service,
 “he sends to the King Brother Walter of Kilkenny, “reader of the Dominicans of Cashel, to lay his affairs
 “before the King. Prays the King to place confidence
 “in what Brother Walter shall show, knowing for cer“tain that Donald will take care firmly and faithfully to “perform what he shall say on his behalf.—13 Edward I.” (2362).

10. The following are a few of the many documents which relate to the King in connexion with Ireland, and which may be found on referring to his name in the index:—Writ for payment of money out of Irish treasure for golden fringe for the King’s flag (14); writ to the Treasurer and Chamberlain of Dublin for payment of 200*l.* for cloth and fur bought for the King’s use (47); the King notifies that he had received at Gloucester the King’s seal, which the King had committed to Ralph de Norwich to be borne in Ireland, and the other seal which was wont to be kept at the Exchequer there while Ireland was in the King’s hand (513); having heard that his creditors in Ireland complain that he did not care to pay his debts, the King commands his Treasurer and Chancellor in that country to cause in presence of the justiciary an inquisition to be taken as to what debts the King owes in Ireland, who are the King’s creditors, and how the debts were contracted. The King will, on the first opportunity, cause letters patent to be made under his Irish seal for payment of all clear debts (973). Assignment of John de Ffide to view the state of debts due to the K., and of those which the King owes in Ireland from the time of his coronation.—6 Jan. 1279–80 (1630).

11. Grants of lands are numerous, of which the following may be taken as specimens:—Grant in fee-farm to Robert de Muscegros, of the whole cantre dof Traddery, co. Clare (4); grant in fee to Oliver de Aspreville of vills in Connaught (35); grant to Thurstan de Perepunt of lands in Coleraine (104); grant in fee to Jordan of Exeter of vills in Connaught, rendering the service of one knight’s fee (228); grant to Stephen Bauzan of lands and tenements (262 and 263); grant in fee-farm to John

Fitz Geoffrey of the cantred of the isles in Thomond [Barony of Islands, co. Clare] (289); grant of lands to Richard Cocus [Cook] (291); grant in fee to Robert Walerand, of the manor of Rush and the land of Balscadden in the valley of Dublin, assigned by Edward the K.’s son, in place of 40 librates of lands in the wastes of Ireland (520); inspeximus and confirmation of grant in fee by Edward the K.’s son, to William de Trubleville, of the manor of Ballymadun (564); feoffment by Edward the K.’s son to John Fitz Thomas of the lands of Decies and Desmond which belonged to Thomas Fitz Anthony, father of Margery, John’s wife, with custody of the castle of Dungarvan, rendering at the Exchequer, Dublin, 500 marks, and to Edward the tenth part of one knight’s fee (629); the K.’s charter confirming that of Edward his son, whereby the latter granted in fee to Warin de Bassingburn the manor of Any, in the county of Limerick (741); the King commands the seneschal of Ulster to take into the King’s hand the lands and tenements whereof Walter de Burgh, late Earl of Ulster, died seised in fee (955); the King having heretofore granted to Thomas de Clare 400 librates of land in Thomond, now grants to him in tail the whole of the land of Thomond, saving to the King his royalty and crocia, four pleas of the Crown, and the fees of English knights (1194); grant in tail by the King to Thomas de Clare of the manor of Any in Ireland in exchange for the manor of Bliburgh (1504); release by Thomas Fitz Maurice to the King of the cantred of Occassin, the half cantred of Oblyce, with advowsons of churches and chapels, and 13 vills in Corcomroe (1622).

12. As to legal proceedings, a glance at the index will show how numerous in this volume are judgments and orders, &c. in England on cases and appeals from Ireland. Some of them with ordinary legal proceedings are referred to among the following documents :—

The K.'s letters to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer commanding them to supersede on the ground of informality a writ which had issued from the Chancery of Edward the King's son (529); in a plaint by writ of right before the justices of Edward the K.'s son at Dublin between John de Verdon, plaintiff, and the Abbot of Mellifont, tenant, of lands in the county of Louth, the abbot having pleaded that he could not answer thereto without the King, Edward ordered his justiciary to require the abbot to come to England to show whether he was or was not entitled to answer without the King. The abbot having produced two charters before the King in his Great Parliament at Oxford, John de Verdon would not further prosecute his plaint. Wherefore the abbot is remitted to Ireland in the same position as he was in when he left it, and the justiciary is commanded to restore to him all the lands seized to compel his appearance before the King (582). The K. to Edward his eldest son; William de Trumbleville, marshal of his household, complains that having been impleaded by John de la Hyde, who had married the daughter of Walerand de Wellesley, he had not obtained justice against John owing to Walerand's influence. The King therefore commands Edward to direct his justices of Ireland to take with them two discreet men to investigate the plaint, and to send to the King the purport thereof. The King, by advice of persons skilled in the law, will then exhibit to William justice in the premises (696). The King notifies that Covina, who was the wife of Dermot MacCarthy, attorned in the King's presence Robert le Despencer in all pleas and complaints for or against her in Ireland (1052); pleading before the King between Agnes de Vesey, Matilda wife of Emeric de Rochechouart, and Agatha de Mortimer touching their rights in the county of Kildare as coparceners of the inheritance of Gilbert and Walter, Earls Marshall of England, and order thereupon that Agnes shall appoint the officers therein named in that county (1096); writ of right in the K.'s court at Dublin between Geoffrey de Prendergast and Meyler de Bermingham and Basilia his wife regarding lands in Ireland, and writ of error thereupon (1163); Agatha de Mortimer demands against William de Valence and Joan his wife the forest of Tagmon as appurtenant to the manor of Tagmon, which she has as her purparty of the inheritance of Walter, formerly Earl of Pembroke. William and Joan say that this forest is not appurtenant to the manor of Tagmon, but to that of Wexford. Mandate to the justiciary to certify to the King by extent, if any was made of the forest; if not to take an inquisition thereupon (1299); William and Joan come and surrender the forest to Agatha; judgment that she have seisin (1445). Letters of the justiciary of Ireland to the King regarding suitors who when a decision or judgment had been given against them in that country betake themselves to the King's presence and demand remedies from the Chancery of England, which they might without difficulty have obtained from the Chancery of Ireland. They thus act in order that cases may be protracted, and their adversary borne down by labour and expense. The justiciary therefore prays the King to enjoin his Chancellor that before he admits these frustrators of causes to plead he inquire whether they had sought a remedy from the justiciary, and if not, that they be compelled to do so (1511).

13. The following are some of the numerous grants of free customs and liberties, markets, fairs, and free warrens:—

Grant to Henry Audley of a market and fair at Dunleer (22); to the citizens of Dublin of a fair (40); to Geoffrey de Geynville and Matilda his wife of all liberties and free customs enjoyed in Meath by Walter de Lacy, her grandfather (69, 78; see also 256); to Stephen Longespée and Emiline his wife of free warren in their demesne lands in Ireland, and of a market and fair at Corofin (112); to Maurice son of Guy of Rocheford of a market and fair at Typerneyvin (Tipperkevin) (116); to the mayor and burgesses of Drogheda towards Uriel of the K.'s prisage of wines in their port (118); to John de Cogan of free warren in his demesne lands, and of markets and fairs (121). Roger le Bigod, Earl of Norfolk and Marshal of England, not to be molested in regard to his liberties of Ross (153). Grant to Robert de Muscegros of vills, markets, fairs, and free warren (155); to John le Botiller of free warren in his demesne lands (219); to Jordan of Exeter of free warren in his demesne lands and of markets and fairs (250); the Lord Edward's charter granting to Thomas Archbishop of Tuam a yearly fair at his vill of Tuam (672); grant to Maurice son of Guy de Rocheford of a weekly market (852); to John de Cogan of free warren, and of markets and fairs (853); to the citizens of Waterford of a yearly fair (1693); to the citizens of Dublin of a yearly fair (1694); to Thomas de Clare of a market at his manor of Corkmoy, in the county of Limerick (2283); to Theobald de Verdun of markets and fairs (2303 and 2304).

14. In the preface to the former volume we referred to the large possessions in Ireland of the Earls Marshall, and stated that on the death of the last of them those possessions became divided among co-heiresses, or their descendants, as we might have added. We have in this volume several documents on this subject, among which is the partition of those possessions made between the Earl's heirs, as they then existed, an important and very useful document (933). Alienor widow of William Earl Marshall the younger, and sister of Henry III., married in second marriage the celebrated Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester, and several of the documents relate to her dower in Ireland as the Earl Marshall's wife. King Henry III. paid the amount of that dower to the Earl and Countess, seeking repayment from the heirs. The following are some of the documents referring to this subject generally:—

The Earl Marshall's heirs to be summoned to the Exchequer, Dublin; the debts due by them to the K. to be computed; and to be distrained for debts due by them (9); the justiciary to certify to what portions of the inheritance of W[alter] late Earl of Pembroke Isabel wife of Reginald de Mohun and Joan wife of John de Mohun are entitled (29); the justiciary to cause debts which the heirs of Walter Marshall, late Earl of Pembroke, owe to the King to be levied by distress against them (28); mandate to the justiciary to assign to William de Fortibus and Matilda his wife an equivalent for their portion of that inheritance which had been assigned in dower to Margaret, who was the Earl's wife (30); the new and old vill in the co. of Kilkenny, which belonged to Matilda, who was the wife of Anselm Marshall, to be extended and divided among the co-heirs of Walter Marshall, Earl of Pembroke (110); agreement between the Earl Marshall's heirs granting to William de Valence, the K.'s brother, and Joan his wife the manors of Ferns and Odogh in lieu of lands assigned in dower to Margaret, who was Earl Walter's wife (103); these manors were subsequently passed to William and Joan by fine of Hilary term, 1252-3 (139). Mem. that on Feb. 10, 1260-1, there issued from the Exchequer nine summonses to divers sheriffs to distrain the heirs of Earl Marshall for arrears of 400 marks, which the King had paid for them to Simon de Montfort and Alienor his wife for her dower in Ireland (700); letters of the lieutenants of the Lord Edward commanding the justiciary or escheator of Ireland to make restitution to Alienor wife of Roger de Leyburn and Agatha wife of Hugh de Mortimer of their portions of the pleas and issues of the county of Kildare, of which they had been deprived by their sister and coparcener, Agnes de Vesey (896); plea before the King and Council as to the rights of coparceners of the inheritance of Earls Marshall in the county of Kildare, Ireland (935); inspeximus of letters patent of Henry III. granted to Richard de Clare, formerly Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, one of the heirs of Walter Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, and of Anselm, his brother, respecting his purparty of Walter and Anselm's inheritance (1618).

15. The following are specimens of documents illustrating the history of the Mint of Ireland:—

Writ for payment to Roger de Haverhulle, keeper of the K.'s Mint, Ireland, of 20 marks for his maintenance (162); commission to the justiciary to inquire what money had been coined to the K.'s prejudice against the K.'s orders and the statutes of the Mint in Ireland, &c. (202).

In January 1253-4 the King's Council in England having provided that the Irish Mint should cease until further orders, an order was made that its dies should be sent to England and its moneyers dismissed until an inquisition concerning it should be taken (309). That the Irish Mint, however, was only temporarily suspended appears from the following and other documents:—

Account of the issues of the Irish Mint, 28 Dec. 1280 to 4 June 1282 (1930); mandate to Iter of Angoulême and Gregory de Rokesley assigned to audit the accounts of the King's Mint of Ireland to do so as quickly as possible.—2 Aug. 1283 (2109); memoranda regarding accounts of the Irish Mint, 11-12 Edw. I. (2330).

That there was a Mint in Waterford as well as in Dublin appears from several documents, and among others the following:—

View of the account of the keepers of the Mint at Waterford.—5 July 1282 (1938).

16. A most interesting class of documents is that which deals with the trade or commerce of Ireland in these early times. We have nothing about Spanish, Genoese, or Venetian merchants, but there is frequent mention, among others, of those of Florence and Lucca; and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, are directed to aid merchants of Gascony in recovering their debts (2023). There are many details showing that the trade of Ireland in wheat, oats, wool, hides, leather, but more especially wines, was very considerable in the 13th century. In relation with this subject the following documents may be noticed.—

Mandate to the Treasurer and Chamberlain of Dublin not to make to merchants any payment that shall prevent the former from always having for the K.'s use 1,000 marks for transmission to Gascony (50); licence for the Abbot and monks of St. Wivin of Coningham to buy in Ireland three ship loads of corn and convey them to Scotland for their maintenance (61); licence to the Abbot of Furness to purchase in Ireland all kinds of victuals and convey them to his abbey (68); a similar licence for the abbey of Glenluce, Scotland (106); licence for the men of Cardigan to purchase in Ireland two ship loads of corn for their own use and the sustenance of the K.'s workmen of Cardigan (131); the King having released the men of Bordeaux from payment of prisage on wines exported to England, Ireland, and Wales grants that letters patent under the seal of their commonalty shall be sufficient proof that the wines belong to the men of Bordeaux (342); letters commanding the justiciary of Ireland to cause all the merchants of Lombardy with their chattels and merchandise found within his bailiwick to be arrested, the people of Asten', Papunen', Alban', and Taurium having taken prisoner Earl Thomas of Savoy, the K.'s uncle (485); recognizance of Milo O'Connor, Archdeacon of Clonmacnois, and William de Geinville, rector of Ardnureher, acknowledging that they owe to Adam de Basinges, citizen of London, three lasts of hides to be delivered at Dublin on June 24, 1260 (645); foreign merchants with their wares coming to and departing from Ireland, being burdened beyond measure with new customs, prisage, and undue exactions, the King commands the justiciary to cause it to be proclaimed throughout Ireland that all merchants with their merchandise may safely and securely come to that country, and freely carry on their trade, subject to lawful and ancient customs without further exaction (972); mandate to the justiciary of Ireland to prevail on the magnates of that country to grant a custom on wool, skins, and leather, similar to that which had been granted to the King in England (1117); the King commands the association of merchants of Lucca in Ireland to cause to be sent to Dublin all the money which they may receive from the new custom on wool and hides (1287); the merchants of Ireland had represented to the King that the collectors of the new custom in that country exacted from them 10s. for each sack of wool, because sacks in Ireland are larger than in England, while for each sack of wool in England, which though of less weight is of equal value, they only exact half a mark. The King as a grace to the merchants commands the justiciary not to exact more than half a mark for each sack of wool (1305). Complaint between Nicholas le Marchant and his associates, merchants of Bruges and Dykemuth in Flanders, against Thomas de Wynton', burgess and formerly mayor of Dublin, regarding 54 sacks of wool (1312); the King acquits Guy Count of Flanders regarding 2,022*l.*, part of 4,755*l.* 17*s.* which he had promised to pay as restitution for goods of merchants of England, Ireland, and the marches of Wales, arrested by Margaret Countess of Flanders and Hainault (1404); the King notifies that having assigned certain merchants of Lucca as keepers of the new custom, he wills that they have power to inquire regarding this custom, to attach those who conceal or export goods without it, &c., and to do all other things relating thereto; similar letters to the bailiffs of ports in Ireland (1429).

17. Documents relating to monasteries are numerous and interesting in this volume, but among them we do not find many original grants of land. The reason of this is probably because statutes or provisions against granting lands to religious houses, called Statutes of Mortmain, were introduced in the reigns of Henry III. and Edward I., and thenceforth such grants could not be made without licence. For the same reason we must not expect to find such grants hereafter; but this does not, of course, prevent inspeimus's of previous grants. In page 734 we give a list of all the monasteries, 61 in number, mentioned in this volume, and the following are specimens of some of the documents relating to them :—

Royal assent to the election of Brother William, Prior of St. Thomas, Dublin, as abbot of that house (37); on confirmation of the election and fealty received seisin of the abbey's lands to be given to him (38); for this grace the abbot gave 10 marks to the King (39). The manor of Wamoclan belonging to the abbey of Baltinglass having been taken into the K.'s hand owing to the transgression of some of the brothers, the justiciary is directed to cause the abbot to have seisin thereof, provided he give security that the brothers shall stand their trial (64); grant in frankalmoign to the abbey of Tracton of land which the K. had recovered in his court at Dublin by default of the abbot; the abbot to give security for payment of 60 marks to the King (66). Inspeximus of grant of lands by William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, to the Abbey of St. Saviour of Duisck (70); the K. confirms the union of the abbey of Kyllenny with that of the vale of St. Saviour (71); confirmation of liberties for, and grant of land to the abbey of Mellifont (169, 170, 171, 172); lands, tenements, and rents delivered by the King's order to the Prior of the Holy Trinity, Dublin (482); royal assent to the election of Eugenius, canon of Bangor, as abbot of that house (514); licence to elect having been granted to the Prior and convent of St. Thomas, Dublin, the King of special grace gives power in lieu of the King to grant the royal assent to the election of another abbot, to receive fealty from the elect, and restore the temporalities to him, if confirmed. Letters shall first, however, be taken from the elect and from the prior and convent that this grace shall not cause prejudice to the K. nor be converted into a precedent (590).

“Complaint of the Abbot of Mellifont to the King.

“Although they hold their abbey and granges of the King, and hold nothing of the gift of the lords of Meath, the bailiffs of Sir Geoffrey de Geneville extort from them and their tenants, dues which they ought to render to the King alone. The bailiffs in this respect imitate the bad practices of Walter de Lacy and his brothers, who for their own benefit pillaged the monastery of its goods and granges. No prince or prelate could check their violence; but during the peace enforced by Sir John Fitz Geoffrey, the King's justiciary, such practices were prohibited. Wherefore they pray the King to maintain, protect, and defend their house according to the tenor of their charters” (635).

“Patrick Archbishop of Armagh and primate of all Ireland to the King. Having by virtue of his authority as metropolitan considered the appeal between the Abbot of Bangor and the Bishop of Down, he had judicially determined that the bishop's process against the abbot was irregular, and that the abbot's appeal was legitimate; he had therefore nullified the bishop's process for the removal of the abbot, restored the latter to his former position and dignity, and bound by sentence of excommunication those who disturb him. Prays that the King will cause the temporalities to be restored to the abbot” (719).

The K.'s letters to Isabella Countess of Albemarle commanding a ship belonging to the Abbot of St. Mary near Dublin which had been arrested by her bailiffs at Yarmouth in the Isle of Wight, to be delivered to the abbot's proctor (778); exemplification of grant in frankalmoign by the King to the church of All Saints in the eastern portion of Dublin (839); exemplification of charter, whereby Dermot King of Leinster and Dublin grants in frankalmoign to Edan Bishop of Louth, his confessor, to the use of the canons of the only daughter of that church, the land of Baldoyle with its tenants (840); grant and confirmation in frankalmoign by Almaric de Ofda to the church of All Saints near Dublin, of lands which the canons had of the gift of the ancient kings of Ireland (841); the church of the Franciscans of Dublin of the K.'s foundation being threatened with ruin, the King gives 100*s.* for its repair (872); inspeximus and confirmation of charter of grant by Wyrreys Peche to the church of St. Catherine near the Salmon Leap, of lands and liberties, &c. (842); election without the King's licence having lately been made in the church of St. Patrick of Saul, of Brother Molys, Prior of Bangor, as Abbot of Saul, and the election having been justly quashed, the Bishop of Down, as diocesan, with consent of the King's lieutenants in Ireland, appointed Geoffrey de Stoks, canon of Carlisle, as Abbot of Saul. The King of special grace commands the escheator to deliver the temporalities to Geoffrey (980). The King commands the Treasurer of Ireland to make restitution to the Dominicans of Roscommon for money, wheat, and oats, &c. taken from them by the justiciary during the troubles between the justiciary and him who called himself King of Connaught (1120).

18. Letters of attorney are numerous in this volume, and are, some of them, of a peculiar form. The person requiring attorneys in Irish courts names one or two, and the King then grants power to them to name other attorneys in the Chancery of Ireland. Letters of protection are also numerous. There are, moreover, several licences to individuals to use English laws in Ireland. We have already referred to the offer made by the Irish of 8,000 marks for a general grant of English laws, to which the King and his Council were favourably inclined (1408). A larger fine was, however, required with a supply of good and valiant foot soldiers; and we do not learn the ultimate result of the offer.

19. Of municipal grants we have the following among others:—Grants to the burgesses of Drogheda towards Uriel of liberties and franchises (120, 854); murage of Youghal (1144); murage of Drogheda (1517); murages of Kilkenny (1913 and 2136); murage of Dublin (2181). The King having granted to the citizens of Cork certain customs to improve their walls, had learnt that the bridges of that vill are ruinous, and the port there so deteriorated that unless a speedy remedy is provided the vill itself will suffer no small detriment. The King therefore grants that the customs may be applied to the improvement of the port and bridges, as well as to that of the walls (2247); grant of murage to the bailiffs, burgesses, and men of Cork (2248).

20. The documents relating to the Exchequer of Dublin or Ireland are so numerous as to merit being viewed in a separate class. We can only refer to the title relating to them in the index, extending to four and a half pages, and showing to what an extent the Irish Exchequer was carried in the days of Edward I.

21. We also have to refer to the numerous important and interesting documents specified under the titles of the various justiciaries, a list of whom follows the index. Want of space prevents us from particularizing them here.

22. Under our last head of miscellaneous we range a large number of documents, of which the following are specimens:—Those relating to the grant of lands in Ireland to Godfrey de Lezignan the King's brother. A difficulty having arisen owing to Godfrey not being willing to accept the extent made of the lands, the matter was arranged by the King and Queen in the letters already referred to (447); the King moreover gave him a bond for 300 marks for his trouble in seeking for the land (452), with an annuity of 300*l.* a year until he should obtain possession (467). The numerous documents referring to Godfrey, which will be found enumerated under his name in the index, prove the utmost anxiety on the King's part to provide for his relative. Another numerous class of documents are those referring to Christiana de Mariseis, and her exchange with the King of her castles and lands, &c. in Ireland, for a grant for life of lands in England (1771). There being some delay in carrying out the arrangement Christiana wrote to the English Chancellor, praying him for love of her brother Otto to give counsel and aid in expediting her affairs, so that she may be out of trouble, for it seems to her a trouble to be so aggrieved on account of her bounty to the King and the service she has rendered to him (p. 463).

The following are some further documents which we range in the class of miscellaneous:—The K. having learnt that the justiciary had let the K.'s demesne and other lands to persons of the K.'s household, commands him no longer to do so (212); the K. being about to cross over to Gascony commands his justiciaries, his other officers and subjects in England, Wales, and Ireland, to be intente and respondent to Queen Alienor, and if the King die before his return they shall deliver to the Queen all the K.'s castles and lands in their custody, and all their bailiwicks to be held by her to the use of Edward the K.'s son till he shall reach his age (218); the King commands the Treasurer of Ireland by counsel of the justiciary, to increase by all means within his power the value of the King's demesne lands in Ireland, and to commit more remote lands to farm or in champerty. The fealty of those who thus hold lands shall be answered for at the Exchequer, Dublin (1072); mandate to the justiciary to distrain, notwithstanding their liberty, the men of Leinster to render their share of the money promised by the commonalty of Ireland, for the cutting off of Carbrý Maclaclin's head (252); mandate to the justiciary to settle all waste lands in Ireland before Michaelmas, a. r. 38; if he find any waste lands after that period he shall take them into the K.'s hand and safely keep them until further orders (253). Power to the justiciary to let the King's waste lands in Ireland for eight years (286); power to him to enfeoff suitable persons of all the King's waste lands in Ireland; fit sites shall be reserved to build vills and castles (1697); assignment in dower by Hen. III. to Alienor his consort, of castles and territories in Ireland, with liberties (255 and 271); mandate to the justiciary of Ireland not to permit persons from Scotland to be received in Ireland, and if he find any such seeking confederacies with the Irish to arrest and keep them in custody until further orders from the King or the Lord Edward (652). The King to Walter de Burgh. As it appears by inquisition, &c. that Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, was of full age on Sept. 1 last past, and he could not come to Edward the K.'s son, the King in lieu of, and by consent of the latter, has taken fealty from Gilbert for the lands which belonged to his father in Ireland, and restores them. And as Edward has no seal at hand, the King in his name commands Walter to give to Gilbert seisin of the castle of Kilkenny and of his father's other lands. Similar mandates to the justiciary of Ireland, Maurice Fitz Maurice, and Maurice Fitz Gerald (750). Grant to Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester, out of the K.'s stannary of Devon, of 100 marks a year, to be deducted out of 400*l.* a year the dower in Ireland of Alienor, the Earl's wife and sister of the King; and whereof the heirs of Walter Earl Marshall, for whom the King is surety, are bound to acquit the King (769).

The following letters show the spirit of the north in the time of Edward I.:—"The commonalty of Ulster, " both of English and Irish, to the lieutenants of the " Lord Edward. Sir William Fitz Warin, whom they had " sent to Ulster as seneschal, had fully restored peace " between English and Irish, and had settled the whole " land to the advantage of the Lord Edward, and the " advantage of the community. This land had, previously " to the arrival of the seneschal, stood in a state of ruin " through Sir Henry de Mandeville, to whom the Lord " Edward had formerly granted the bailiwick of Twiscard. " Although he had justly lost the bailiwick he threatens " the commonalty to recover possession thereof from the " lieutenants by paying to them the great price which " he ought to have paid for it to the Lord Edward, but " which still remains iniquitously unpaid. If the lieutenants do grant the bailiwick to Sir Henry, the commonalty will rise against him, saving their fealty to the Lord Edward. They are unwilling to subject to war the land of Ulster now settled in peace, and that land will remain so by the counsel of Sir William Fitz Warin, and the aid of the commonalty, so long as they shall have Sir William as seneschal.—27 Dec. 1272." (p. 159).

We continue our specimens of miscellaneous documents:—Petition of Robert Owen to the King, praying for remuneration for his service as the King's serjeant in Ireland (930); King Edward I. notifies to the magnates and others in Ireland his accession to the throne, and calls for an oath of fealty from them (937); mandate to the Treasurer and Chamberlain of Dublin to cause allowance to be made to Robert de Thurlcby for payments of money to James de Audley, formerly justiciary of Ireland, to carry on war against the King's enemies and rebels in that country, without which war could not have been maintained (1053); the King commands the Prior of the Hospitallers in Ireland to proceed to that country on pain of the loss of his lands there (1146); mandate to Stephen Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland, to certify the cause of caption and detention in the prison of the castle of Dublin of Jordan Locard and Nicholas de Houcche for error for having while constituted justices of gaol delivery, Dublin, liberated a prisoner detained in that prison (2113). Having learnt that a mine of silver had been found in Ireland, the King commands the justiciary and Treasurer of Ireland to convert it to the King's profit (1293); the K.'s writ to the justiciary, commanding him to cause the King's pools in the water of Limerick, in which salmon and eels are taken, and the K.'s fishery in that water, to be extended, and to cause them to be delivered according to the extent to Robert de St. Edmund; petition thereupon of Robert de St. Edmund (1416). The King had granted to Thomas de Clare, that when the men of Glindelore should be pacified or quelled, Thomas should have a general summons of knights' fees and other military service in Ireland in order to bring peace to his land of Thomond. The men of Glindelore being now pacified and quelled the King commands the justiciary to cause Thomas to have the above service and summonses (1476). Inspeximus and confirmation of letters under the seal of the commonalty of the citizens of Dublin, granting to Hugh de Kersey a moiety of the chief sergeancy of the sea-shore of the city of Dublin (1706); inspeximus and confirmation of grant to the Knights Templars of mills, villis, lands, and possessions in Ireland (1763). The Bishop of Waterford to the King. Prays that the King will not find fault if the Bishop has not been able to perform the King's commands in appeasing the merchants lately placed in Ireland. It would be injurious to the King to deliver the management of the Exchequer to Walter the usher, for as the justiciary of Ireland is aware, no good has been found in him. As for the sheriffs sent to Ireland, as Thomas de Mynimes, Henry Picot, and others, who have nothing, they are injurious to the King and more to the people, because they receive the King's money and then go away, having nothing to be distrained by, &c. (1881); the King being much in want of money to repress the malice of the Welsh, commands Thomas de Clare, in company with the escheator of Ireland, to hold a conference with abbots, priors, citizens, merchants, and communities of cities, burghs, and mercantile vills, &c. in Ireland, touching their making a loan to the King (1980); petition to the King regarding grievances from Philip son and heir of Sir Richard de la Rochelle, with the King's answers thereto (1986); Theobald de Verdun, constable of Ireland, to Robert Bishop of Bath and Wells, regarding an inquisition held by the justiciary as to the manor of Ballymagarvey. Prays counsel and aid from the bishop, as he fears that the justiciary will take the manor into the King's hand because he had entered without the King's licence (1988); bond by Alienor Queen of England, to Roger de Clifford and the Countess his wife, for 500*l.* for the manor of Ratoath, Ireland, which the latter had sold to the Queen (2055); receipt for 1,000 marks lent by the clerics and laity of Ireland, in aid of the King's Welsh expedition (2062); writ to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to allow out of the issues of the earldom of Ulster to William Fitz Warin, late seneschal thereof, various sums for his wages and robes, maintenance of hostages, repairing and improving castles and houses in Ulster, wages of constables and sheriffs, &c. (2073); inspeximus and confirmation of charter of Queen Alienor granting in fee tail to Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, her cousin, and Margaret his wife, the manor of Ratoath, Ireland (2102); Irish waste lands demised to John de Saunford by the justiciary of Ireland, pursuant to power given for the purpose (2115); mandate that the King's customary tenants of the city and county of Waterford, who derive their origin from the customary tenants of the King's great grandfather [Henry II.], shall have English law according to the charter of that King (2134); the King having given to Thomas de Clare the lands, &c. which belonged to O'Brien, an Irishman, and which had escheated to the King by O'Brien's forfeiture, commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to exonerate Thomas regarding the debts wherewith those lands, &c. had been charged (2286); writ to the Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, for allowances to John de Saunford for his expenses in going with the justiciary and retainers into Connaught, &c., and into Kildare, to fight Irishmen and rebels of Offaly (2291); rolls of profits, assizes, the King's services when an army is proclaimed, and prisage of wines, 8-12 Edw. I. (2329); charges against the Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland (2332); documents touching Stephen Bishop of Waterford the justiciary, 12 Edw. I. (2337).

We here conclude our summary. Short and inadequate though it be, we trust that it may yet prove of some use in showing the value of the portion of English Public Records relating to Ireland, abstracted in this our second volume.

Annexed is a table showing the classes of Public Records from which we have derived our information. It may suffice to say in reference to this table, that having found only two entries relating to Ireland on the Pipe Rolls after the 45th Hen. III., to the end of that monarch's reign, and having found no entries on the Vascon Rolls from the 3rd to the 10th of Edward I., we discontinued the search in these two particular classes. On the other hand, we commenced and continued to the end of the limits comprised in this volume a search through a new class of records, the Chancery Files. These documents remain generally filed as they were centuries ago, and deserve more attention than they appear hitherto to have received from the public. They are of importance for parliamentary, municipal, ecclesiastical, and monastic history, and the Editor has found among them several documents of great interest for that of Ireland. Their number is enormous, there being, according to a rough estimate, 244,750 documents among them, most of which it will probably be the Editor's duty to inspect.

In conclusion, I have to thank gentlemen who have kindly assisted me in my long and sometimes difficult labours. To Mr. Alfred Kingston of the Public Record Office, I beg to express my acknowledgments; Mr. Walford D. Selby of the same office I have most warmly and cordially to thank for frequent and able assistance accorded with never varying kindness and courtesy. I have also to thank my young friend Mr. Gustavus F. Handcock of that office, for material and efficient assistance in the laborious work of arranging and putting together the numerous slips for the index in this volume. My best acknowledgments are also due to Mr. Henry Guy Hewlett, keeper of records in the Land Revenue Office, who has with constant kindness given me very able assistance, particularly in regard to legal documents. Having again been favoured with the valuable aid of Mr. William M. Hennessy of the Public Record Office, Ireland, in regard to many ancient names of places in that country, I have to thank him most warmly. I should have wished to have consulted him about all the names of places regarding which I had difficulty or doubt; unfortunately I found this impossible, but the assistance he has given is of the greatest value.

Walter Bishop of Meath.

After the preface was in print the Editor discovered a brief of Pope Honorius IV. dated in 1286, which renders it doubtful whether the name of the above-mentioned prelate ought to be placed in the list of Bishops of Meath, though he is many times styled as such in the documents abstracted in this volume.

Feb. 11.

315. The K. to the Bishop of Killaloe [Laonensis], the Archdeacon of Waterford, and the Minister of the Franciscans in Ireland. As it has ever been the custom that in vacancies of sees in Ireland licence to elect should be demanded of the K., and that on election the K.'s assent should be required, as was done in the last vacancy of the see of Meath, namely, before Richard, formerly Bishop of Meath, was elected, the K. marvels that B. Archbishop of Armagh and Brother Geoffrey de Cusac should oppose the K.'s right in this respect. Wherefore the K. commands the above-named bishop, archdeacon, and minister, that in the cognizance of the cause brought before them by authority of Papal letters between Hugh bishop elect of Meath of the one part, and the said Archbishop and Brother Geoffrey of the other part, touching a licence to elect as aforesaid, they so bear themselves that the kingly dignity may suffer no lesion. Otherwise the K. cannot refrain from interfering in regard to the Archbishop and Brother Geoffrey aforesaid. Witnesses, Queen Alienor and Richard Earl of Cornwall. Windsor. [Close, 38 Hen. III., m. 13 dors.]

1253-1254.

Feb. 11. 316. The K. to John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland. Hugh Fitz Lucian shows to the K.'s council in England that John Malet demanded by writ of right against him 2 parts of 4 carucates of land at Cnok [Castleknoek] in the county of Dublin. Hugh essoined himself for illness; and 4 knights of the county aforesaid, found that he was ill. John afterwards obtained a writ to remove the plaint to the court of the K.'s justices in eyre at Dublin, and there accused Hugh of having risen during his illness without licence; confined himself to that default, and prayed that seisin of the land be adjudged to him. The justices in eyre thereupon adjudged seisin of the land to John by reason of that default. If this was so there was error in the proceeding, for the default allowed against Hugh in the county in which he had essoined himself ought not to have served the plaintiff, and ought not to have been allowed because the plaint had, on the prayer of the plaintiff himself, been removed from that county to the K.'s court before the default was adjudged. The K. therefore commands the justiciary, that if the proceedings were as stated, he restore seisin of the land to Hugh, and subsequently cause justice to be rendered to the parties according to law and custom of the realm. Witnesses, Queen Alienor and Richard Earl of Cornwall the K.'s brother. Windsor. [Close, 38 Hen. III., m. 13 dors.]

Feb. 11. 317. The K. to his justices of Ireland. Richard de Clare, Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, has in his land in Ireland, sheriffs and justices of his own, exercising jurisdiction according to the laws and customs of England. The master of the Templars in Ireland complained to the K.'s justices of a false judgment in the earl's court at Kilkenny, touching the last presentation to the church of Baligaveran, and the K.'s justices ordered the record of this plaint to come before them by 4 knights, which they ought only to have done, as is alleged, in case of a false judgment in the county court. The K. therefore, commands his justices to cause the record of this plaint to come before them by the Earl's justices and not by 4 knights. If the K.'s justices find that the judgment was just they shall cause execution of it to be made; if it was unjust they shall cause it to be amended according to law and custom of England. Witnesses, Queen Alienor and Richard Earl of Cornwall. Windsor. [Close, 38 Hen. III., m. 13 dors.]

Feb. 11. 318. The K. to his justices of Ireland. Sends transcript of a writ out of the K.'s chancery in Ireland which does not accord with the course of the K.'s chancery in England. Then follows transcript of a writ of summons, commanding the sheriff of Limerick to require Gerard de Roche, junior, to restore to Walter, son of Richard de Burgh, the manor of Glindonolan, or otherwise to appear before the K.'s justices of Ireland at Dublin, in the octaves of Michaelmas. And as it is the K.'s will that writs touching suits in Ireland should be in the same form as writs in England, the K. commands his justices in Ireland, not to proceed on this writ, but to cause one to issue according to English form; and to revoke anything that has been done under the informal writ. Witnesses, Queen Alienor, and Richard Earl of Cornwall. Windsor. [Close, 38 Hen. III., m. 13 dors.]

Feb. 11. 319. Grant to Godfrey de Lezignan, the K.'s brother, of 500 librates in the waste lands of Ireland, with the manor of Anny in Munster, which belonged to Geoffrey de Marisco, to hold of the K. in fee by the service of 3 knights. Bazas.

Mandate to John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland, to cause 500 librates to be assigned to Godfrey, and seisin thereof and of the manor to be given to him. [Chart., 37-38 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 8.]

Feb. 11. 320. The K. notifies to John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland, that he had given to Godfrey de Lezignan, his brother, 500 librates in the waste lands of Ireland, with the manor of Any, which belonged to Geoffrey de Marisco in Munster, and had confirmed them by his charter before the K. gave the land of Ireland to Edward his son. Mandate to the justiciary to give seisin to Godfrey accordingly. Bazas.

The K. ordered this letter to be so dated, that it should come before the charter to Prince Edward. [Cart., 37-38 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 7.]

Shortly before the K. gave Ireland to Edward his son, he had granted to Godfrey de Lezignan, his brother, 500 librates of land there, with the manor of Any comprised therein. The justiciary and Richard had postponed complying with the K.'s mandate to assign the 500 librates, because all Ireland had, as they alleged, been previously assigned to Edward. Godfrey having subsequently ascertained that the manor of Any was of the K.'s demesne, and had been assigned in dower to the Queen, surrendered it. The K. now desiring to carry out the grant in favour of his brother, commands the justiciary and Richard to cause 4½ cantreds in Con'acia [Connaught], to be assigned to Godfrey having subsequently learnt that the manor of Any was of the K.'s demesne and had been assigned in dower to Edward's mother, the Queen, surrendered it into the K.'s hands. But the K. being anxious to effect the grant commanded Edward, and the latter commands the justiciary, to cause 4½ cantreds, in Conacia [Connaught], if they suffice, to be assigned to Godfrey, in place of the 500 librates. If the 4½ cantreds are by extent worth more than the 500 librates, the surplus shall remain in fee to Edward; if less, the deficiency shall be supplied out of 1½ cantred in Tothemon' [Thomond]; so that Geoffrey shall have fully 500 librates of land, to hold in fee of Edward and his heirs, kings of England, by the service of 1 knight's fee. The K. wills and ordains that Godfrey and his heirs shall for ever hold the 500 librates of Edward and his heirs, lords of Ireland, by the service of 1 knight. 1255.

March 26. 436. The K. to Richard de la Rochelle, lieutenant of John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland, and seneschal in that country of Edward the K.'s son. A year and more before the K. had given Ireland to the latter, he had granted to Godfrey de Lezignan 500 librates of land in $4\frac{1}{2}$ cantreds in Conacia [Connaught]; if the $4\frac{1}{2}$ cantreds did not suffice, the deficiency should be supplied in $1\frac{1}{2}$ cantred in Thomond; if they were worth more than 500*l.* a year, the surplus should go to Prince Edward. The K. had commanded an extent to be made, and seisin of the cantreds to be given to Godfrey. The K. again commands that the extent be made, and that seisin be given to Thomas de Castro, Godfrey's attorney. Richard shall give protection, counsel, and aid to Thomas and Godfrey's other bailiffs. The K. sends Sir Richard de Trubleville, marshal of his household, to see and certify how this matter shall be carried into effect. Westminster. [Pat., 31 Hen. III., m. 10.]

March 26. 437. Letters of protection for Thomas de Castro, gone by the K.'s order into Ireland on the service of Godfrey de Lezignan, the K.'s brother, to endure while he shall be in that country. Westminster. [Pat., 39 Hen. III., m. 10.]

April 28. 442. Prince Edward to Richard de la Rochelle, his seneschal of Ireland, and Hugh Bishop of Ossory, his treasurer. The K., ere the Prince started for Spain, had granted to the latter at Bordeaux all debts and arrears due to the K. out of all the issues and profits of Ireland; saving to the K. those arising from custodies and vacancies of cathedral churches, episcopal and abbatial investitures [erocia], in that country. The Prince ought to receive all those debts and arrears from Easter, A.D. 1254. Mandate to Richard and the Bishop to forward to the Prince in Gascony all issues of this kind which they have in hand, and to levy and send those which remain to be paid. Owing to the large expenditure to which the Prince is subject in Gascony, he is much in want of money. Bazas. [Vascon Rolls, 39 Hen. III., m. 8.]

April 30. 443. David Elect of Cashel came to the K. within the time assigned to him and rendered due fealty for the temporalities of his archbishopric. Mandate by the K. to the justiciary to cause to be quit the sureties given by the Elect for rendering that fealty, and to restore to the latter his bond thereupon. Westminster. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 12.]

May 18. 444. The K. commands John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland, or his lieutenant, to maintain and defend the liberties and rights of William de Valence and Joan his wife in the county of Wexford, so far as belongs to Joan's purparty, in the same manner as Walter Marshall, late Earl of Pembroke, enjoyed those liberties and rights in his lands and counties in Ireland. Clarendon. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 13 dors.]

[About May.] 445. The K. commands the Bishop of Ferns and his associates, justices in eyre in Ireland, to cause to be ressumoned, notwithstanding the K.'s order for respite, the plaintiff which was before them by the K.'s writ in their eyre at Dublin, between Walter de Burgh, plaintiff, and Gerald de la Roche, tenant, of the land of Glenhonhelan. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 13 dors.]

June 1. 346. Mandate by Prince Edward to the Bishop of Ossory and Richard de la Rochelle to send to Gascony about 2,000 crannocks of wheat dried in vessels [turioli], and to take time for payment of it till Michaelmas ensuing or later. Edward by no means wishes that out of the money at present collected the Bishop and Richard pay for corn, but that they send the money with all other moneys they can collect. Further mandate to cause a good granary to be made on board the ship which carries the wheat to receive the latter; and to send 2,000 pieces of timber [bordi] to make wooden towers [Brutachia] Bordeaux. [Vascon Rolls, 39 Hen. III., m. 7.]

June 20. 447. The K. to Edward his eldest son and heir. The extent made by Richard de la Rochelle, deputy of the justiciary of Ireland, of 500 librates, granted to Godfrey de Lezignan ere the K. gave Ireland to Edward, was so trifling and poor that little or no profit could be derived from the K.'s grant, and Geoffrey would not therefore accept the extent, although he had undergone great labour and expense in regard to this land. The K. and the Queen, Edward's mother, in order to remove all ambiguity and contention in this matter have ordained that out of 5 cantreds in Connae' [Connaught] the cantred to be selected as the best by Edward, and that in which the castles are situated with the castles themselves, shall remain to him; and of the 3 other cantreds Godfrey shall select 2 to remain to him in fee in place of 500 librates. Godfrey has agreed to be satisfied with these 2 cantreds, whether they are worth less or whether they are worth more. The K. prays that Edward will acquiesce in this order, which is made as well for his as for Godfrey's advantage, and that he will ratify it by commanding Richard de la Rochelle, by letters patent in duplicate according to the form which the K. sends, to assign to Godfrey the 2 cantreds which he shall select. Woodstock.

Then follows form of letters patent to be addressed by Prince Edward to Richard de la Rochelle, setting forth most of the facts above stated, confirming the order, and commanding the deputy to assign to Godfrey, Edward's uncle, the 2 cantreds to be selected by the latter. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 10 dors.]

June 22. 448. The K. having while in Gascony granted to Godfrey de Lezignan, his brother, 500 librates of land in Conaë' [Connaught] before he had given the land of Ireland to Edward his son and heir, and being desirous that Godfrey should have the benefit of the grant, ordains, wills, and commands, in order to exclude all contention and ambiguity, that in lieu thereof Godfrey shall have for ever 2 entire cantreds in Connaught. There shall be no question regarding the land which Phehelim Okonephor [Fedhlim O'Connor], an Irishman, held in Connaught on lease from the K. The best cantred, however, with that in which the castles lie, with the castles themselves, shall remain to Edward; and Godfrey shall out of the remainder select those which he may deem desirable, and shall be content with them, whether they be worth more or less. Woodstock. [Pat., 39 Hen. III., m. 7.]

June 26. 449. Letters of simple protection during 5 years for Hugh elect of Meath [Midensis]. Silverstone. [Pat., 39 Hen. III., m. 3.]

June 26. 450. The K. to Richard de la Rochelle, seneschal of Edward the K.'s son in Ireland. The latter had sent the record and process of a plaint in the K.'s court in Ireland between the Master of the Templars in that country and Richard Fitz Gilbert Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, touching the complaint of the former in the Earl's court, at Kilkenny, of a false judgment in an assize of Darreïn Presentment of the church of Balligaveran. The seneschal had certified that neither the Earl nor his predecessors ever had justices in Ireland; but that pleas were always held before their seneschals, who would not appear when summoned to the K.'s assizes, Dublin, and that they would not deliver the record as the Earl's justices but as his seneschals and bailiffs; for which reason the seneschal had not sent to the K. the record of the proceeding in the Earl's court. The K. therefore commands the seneschal that if the Earl's seneschals and bailiffs delivered the record as justices he shall send 1255.

it to the K. under his seal, without prejudice to the K. or his son. When the K. has had this record before him he shall send his counsel how to proceed in this plaint. Woodstock. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 9 dors.]

July 4. 451. Letter of simple protection for John de Musecgros, gone to Ireland by the K.'s licence; to endure so long as he shall be there by that licence. Geddington. [Pat., 39 Hen. III., m. 6.]

July 4. 452. The K. notifies that he is bound to Godfrey de Lezignan, his brother, in 300 marks of silver, for the various delays, expenses, and journeys which the latter had incurred in seeking for the land given to him by the K. in Ireland. Geddington. [Pat., 39 Hen. III., m. 6.]

July 7. 453. Prince Edward to archbishops, bishops, abbots, priors, barons, knights, free tenants, his bailiffs, and lieges in Ireland. Sends into Ireland the seal which he was wont to use ere he was knighted, in order that he who is deputed to the office of chancery in that country may use it in the Prince's place. Mandate that they be obedient to the impression of that seal, and intente and respondent to him who holds it in the Prince's name, as chancellor. Bordeaux. [Vascon Rolls, 39 Hen. III., m. 7.]

July 26. 454. Letters of protection for 1 year for Reynard [Reynardus] Archbishop of Armagh, gone to the Court of Rome by the K.'s licence. Nottingham. [Pat., 39 Hen. III., m. 5.]

July 27. 455. Prince Edward to Hugh Bishop of Ossory, his treasurer, and Richard de la Rochelle, his seneschal in Ireland, notifying that Geoffrey de Ruilly, clerk, sent by them, paid on the octave of St. John the Baptist [July 1], a. r. 39, into the Prince's wardrobe, in Gascony, to R. de Dunion, keeper thereof, 600 marks of silver of the Prince's treasure of Ireland. Mandate that they cause Geoffrey to be quit thereof. Bordeaux. [Vascon Rolls, 39 Hen. III., m. 6.]

July 29. 456. The K. to Richard de la Rochelle, lieutenant of John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland. Has been informed that in the plaint brought before the lieutenant by Thomas Bishop of Clonmacnois [Cluanensis] against F[lorence] Archbishop of Tuam, his suffragans and tenants, touching lands in Con' [Connaught], the lieutenant had made a contract with the Bishop for receiving a profit. Mandate to the lieutenant to respite the plaint until the arrival in Ireland of Edward, the K.'s eldest son and heir, and of John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland, that it may be determined before them. Nottingham. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 8 dors.]

July 29. 457. The K. to F. Ochonour [Fedhlim O'Connor]. Has done him no injury by giving to Godfrey de Lezignan 2 cantreds of land, in Conaë' [Connaught]. Some of Fedhlim's relatives, who would not derogate from his right, if any, to those lands, have offered the K. large sums of money for a grant of them. Edward the K.'s eldest son and heir, and the said Godfrey, the K.'s brother, are shortly going to those parts. The K. has enjoined them to provide that no injury arise to Fedhlim. Exhorts him to persevere in his fealty. Nottingham. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 8 dors.]

July 29.

458. The K. to Richard de la Rochelle, seneschal of Edward, the K.'s son, in Ireland. Reymund Fitz Griffin having complained to the seneschal of a false judgment delivered against him in the court of Roger Bygod, Earl of Norfolk and Marshal of England, in the county of Carlow, in a plaint between John de Lascelles and Clarice his wife, plaintiffs, and the said Reymund, tenant, of 5 knights' fees in Kenles, Finnon and Fothord, the seneschal, unduly caused the record of the plaint to come before him by 4 knights, and not by the Earl's justices. Mandate that the seneschal cause the record to come before him by the justices. If the seneschal find the judgment to be just he shall cause execution of it to issue; if unjust he shall cause it to be amended according to law and custom of England. Nottingham. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 8 dors.]

July 30.

459. Mandate to John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland, either to give to the Archbishop of Tuam an exchange of land, in Con' [Connaught], for the vill of Enaudon' [Enachdune], and to fortify a castle there, if it would be to the advantage of Edward the K.'s son, or to restore that vill to the Archbishop. Nottingham. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 8 dors.]

July 30.

460. The K. to Edward, his eldest-son and heir. Florence Archbishop of Tuam on the part of himself, his suffragans, and all the clergy of Ireland, together with the Bishop of Killala [Aladensis], had laid before the K. certain grievances oppressing the church of Ireland, adding that unless the K. should apply a remedy the church robbed of its rights and liberties would tend to its ruin. The Archbishop complains, first, that they and their tenants are dragged, against the ancient liberties of their churches, into pleas before justices in other provinces, so that they are obliged to yield to suits or make ruinous compositions; secondly, that some of the K.'s justices, sheriffs, and bailiffs in pleas before them agree to share a profit with one party, by which the other party incurs loss and is defrauded of its rights, and this the K. bears grievously, because it presses not only on the clergy but on all the people of Ireland; thirdly, that frequent attachments and summonses are issued against them; fourthly, that Irish barons prevent Irishmen faithful to the K. from bequeathing their chattels, and crusaders from fulfilling their vow or redeeming it when they will; and, fifthly, that burgesses and their tenants are distrained to make suit in causes not touching the bishops or themselves. It becomes the kingly dignity, and is to the advantage and honour of Prince Edward to defend the rights and liberties of the church, to nourish it with patronage, to pity the afflicted, and to curb the rebellious. The K. therefore commands his son to call before him the archbishops, bishops, abbots, barons, justices, and other magnates of Ireland, by counsel of John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland, and other discreet men of his council and other magnates, and to cause such a remedy to be applied to the grievances as may tend to the welfare and advantage of the church, of Edward himself and of Ireland. The K. would himself have applied a remedy but for Edward's immediate departure for that country. Nottingham. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 8 dors.]

Aug. 17.

461. The K. to Edward his son. Peter de Saband had lately counselled the K., that when truce between the K. and the King of Scotland shall have been prolonged, and provision made for the seneschalship of Gascony, Edward shall go to Ireland and remain there during the winter for the ordering of his affairs; and that he come to the K. at Easter. The K. approving this counsel commands Edward to cross over to Ireland, as speedily as he can, to reform and regulate its state, and to return to the K. in England at Easter. York.

Mandate to Peter de Saband, that if he should chance to go to Gascony he put the state of that country in order, and make provision for the departure and crossing over into Ireland of Edward; and then come to the K. in England. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 7 dors.]

Aug. 18.

462. Mandate by Prince Edward to Hugh Bishop of Ossory and Richard de la Rochelle to cause to be delivered to Peter Colum, citizen of Bordeaux, 50 sacks of wheat, with 20 marks for his expenses. Lormont. [Laureus Mons]. [Vascon Rolls, 39 Hen. III., m. 6.]

Aug. 22.

463. The K. pardons to William de Trublevyle 60s., exacted from him by summons of the K.'s Exchequer, Dublin, for 3 scutages assessed while he was in the K.'s service in Gascony. Mandate to the barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to cause William to be quit thereof. Durham. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 4.]

Aug. 22.

464. Memorandum that Sir Nicholas de Fenes received at Lormont [Laureus Mons] the seal of the lord Edward. [Vascon Rolls, 39 Hen. III., m. 5, in margin.]

Aug. 25.

465. Prince Edward to Richard de la Rochelle, his seneschal in Ireland. Meyler de la Roche has shown that Robert de la Hide and Dionesia his wife, Nicholas Dunhevet and Philippa his wife, had impleaded him, by writ of entry, of the fee of Muntirraunichan before certain justices with whom the plaintiffs conspired, and that the plea was protracted from month to month without authority. As Stephen Longespée, of whom the fee is held, may incur danger if Prince Edward is called to warranty, mandate to the seneschal to cause the plea to be respited till the octaves of the ensuing close of Easter [April 30], unless the prince himself should previously go to Ireland, or send thither John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of that country. Bordeaux. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 4, m. 1.]

Aug. 28.

466. Letters of protection during 1 year for Reginald de Ocle gone to Ireland by the K.'s licence with John de Muscegros. Newcastle-upon-Tyne. [Pat., 39 Hen. III., m. 3.]

- Sept. 16. 468. Mandate by the K. to the treasurer and chamberlain of the Exchequer, Dublin, to pay to Robert Walerand, out of the issues of Irish bishoprics, abbeys, and priories, 20*l.* for Michaelmas, a. r. 37, and the like amount for Michaelmas, a. r. 38, as his fee. Warkworth. [Liberate, 39 Hen. III., m. 2.]
- Sept. 26. 469. Letters of simple protection during 1 year for William Tregoz, clerk, gone to Ireland on the service of Richard de Clare, Earl of Gloucester and Hertford. Newcastle-upon-Tyne. [Pat., 39 Hen. III., m. 1.]
- Sept. 26. 470. The K. to Richard de la Rochelle, lieutenant of John Fitz Geoffrey, justiciary of Ireland, Waleran de Wellesley and his associates, justices in eyre in Ireland. On the part of the prior of Blessed Mary of the Bridge of Fermoy, founded for the soul of King John, it is shown that the prior being impleaded of 2 carucates of land in Finnon had called to warranty the son and heir, under age, of Nicholas de Ponte, deceased, but the lieutenant and justices, because the prior did not mention the name of the heir in the call to warranty, held the prior "undefended." As the prior ought not to be deprived of the possession of his land by such an illusory objection which cannot be argued before the age of the heir, the K. commands the lieutenant not to take, by reason of it, any step detrimental to the prior or his house. Newcastle-upon-Tyne. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 5 dors.]
- Michaelmas. 471. Writ to the sheriff of Warwick and Leicester commanding him to cause Roger Earl of Winchester, who had married Alienor one of the heirs of Walter, late Marshal, to appear in the octaves of Hilary to answer to the K. for 217*l.* 2*s.* 10½*d.* their share of 400*l.* a year which the K. had paid for them and their co-heirs to Simon de Montfort and Alienor his wife, for her dower out of the lands in Ireland of W[illiam] Marshall, Alienor's former husband.
Similar writs to the sheriff of Somerset regarding Reginald de Moun and Isabella his wife, and to the sheriff of Lincoln regarding Agnes de Vesey for sums of the like amount of 217*l.* 2*s.* 10½*d.*; to the sheriff of Salop regarding Roger de Mortimer for 506*l.* and 1 mark; to the sheriff of Hereford regarding Humphrey de Boun for the like amount; to the sheriff of Somerset regarding Joan de Moun for 217*l.* 2*s.* 10½*d.*; and to the sheriff of Salop regarding Hugh de Mortimer for the like amount. The same day is given to Richard Earl of Gloucester to answer for his portion. [Memoranda, Q. R., 40 Hen. III., Rot. 1, and Memoranda L. T. R., 40 Hen. III., Rot., 4 dors.]
- Oct. 13. 472. Mandate [by Prince Edward] to Richard de la Rochelle, seneschal of Ireland, the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer there, to cause Sir R. de Rochester to have all the arrears of the fee which he has in the Castle of Limerig [Limerick]. Bordeaux. [Close, 39 Hen. III., p. 4, m. 1.]

1255.
Nov. 3. 473. The K. had ascertained by inquisition made by Richard de la Rochelle, seneschal in Ireland of Edward the K.'s son, that the K. holds 4 carucates of land in Ulveston, Ireland, which belonged to Robert de Schardelawe and were given to him by Agnes de Weston, free from all debt, in exchange for 4 virgates of land in Angoldesthorp, in the county of Leicester, and 11 acres in Eston, in the county of Derby. 503. Petition of the Archbishop of Tuam, his suffragans, and their tenants, regarding certain grievances; with replies thereto.

They say that they are aggrieved by being dragged from their province and counties to remote places for purposes of litigation;

Respecting this, it is provided that all pleas shall commence in their counties, and that all things belonging to justice shall be therein pleaded and determined according to law in the eyre; excepting causes which from their nature cannot be sent thereto, such as assizes of dareign presentment, writs quare impedit, dower unde nihil habet, purparty between heirs, nuper obiit, fine made, attachments against prohibition, as well of waste as of pleas in the ecclesiastical court; and other similar writs such as præcipes in capite, and advowsons of churches. These pleas, though commenced without the county shall be remitted to the justices when they come thither:

They likewise say that they are aggrieved because the K.'s servants issue attachments and summonses in their lands; obliging their tenants to go out and labour until they heavily ransom that labour;

This is altogether forbidden; if henceforth [the K.'s servants] do this, or presume maliciously to aggrieve persons by these summonses without order of their superiors, or without just cause, and are thereof convicted by inquisition, they shall be removed from their bailiwicks and heavily ransomed:

They also say that they are aggrieved because when they are amerced in the K.'s court, they do not dare, through fear of further heavy amercement, to prosecute their rights and those of their churches;

Respecting this, it is provided, that if persons bond fide prosecuting their rights become subject to an amercement, they shall be more lightly dealt with than legal rigour would demand, and this according to the extent of their offence, their substance, and their tenure:

They further say that they are aggrieved in this, that if any one of their tenants be indicted for an offence, and wish to put himself thereupon on the country, this is denied, and certain proofs are improperly admitted against him;

As to this it is provided that when persons against whom an offence is charged, wish to put themselves on the country, it shall not be denied to them to do so, unless in a case where it is not possible:

They likewise say that they are aggrieved because they are impleaded respecting lands which they and their ancestors have peaceably held in the time of the Lord Henry, the K.'s grandfather, from the conquest by the English, and even before the arrival of the latter in Ireland;

Regarding this, it is ordained that if petitioners declare regarding the seisin of their predecessors before the time of Henry, the K.'s grandfather, and before the conquest of the English, and do not declare of the time of the K.'s grandfather, nor after the time of the said conquest, they shall lose their right; and if a tenant puts himself on a great assize averring that time, and if the assize find that the petitioner or his ancestors never had seisin within the time of the K.'s grandfather, nor after the conquest, then the petitioner shall lose his cause; and the tenant shall be freed from the demand;

The writ called Utrum shall be granted to archbishops, bishops, abbots, priors, and chapters holding parish churches appropriate, touching the sanctuary of the churches, which is not granted touching other fees;

If a bailiff or other person be proved to have taken, in order to render aid or favour, the whole or part of lands impleaded, he shall be removed from office, lose the land, and be subjected to heavy ransom.

- Nov. 8. 524. Inspecimus and confirmation of charter of Edward the K.'s son, dated at Windsor, Nov. 6, 1256, and granting to Godfrey de Lezignan, the K.'s brother, in lieu of 500 librates of land given to him in Ireland, 160 librates therein described in England, 200l. a year until Edward should provide Godfrey with 200 librates in England or Ireland, and 140 librates in Ireland, namely, the manor of Lowethe [Louth] and Castle Frank. If by a proper extent the latter lands shall fall short of 140 librates, the deficiency shall be supplied in the vale of Dublin. Godfrey shall render to Prince Edward the service of 1 knight's fee, and shall enjoy the lands in Ireland with free warren, &c., as fully as John Fitz Geoffrey, Maurice Fitz Gerald, Theobald le Butyler, John Fitz Thomas, or others enjoyed them. As Edward claims no right in the 500 librates of land which the K. had retained to Godfrey's use, Edward renounces all claim thereto which may invalidate this grant. Witnesses, Guy de Lezignan, William de Valence, the Prince's uncle, John Fitz Geoffrey, Godfrey de Genville, Reginald de Mohun, William de Wilton, Godfrey de Langele and others. Witnesses to the inspecimus, Richard Earl of Cornwall, Guy de Lezignan and William de Valence the K.'s brothers, Richard de Clare Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, Robert Walrand, Drogo de Barentine, Walter de Merton, Master John Maunsel, William de Grey, Waukelin de Arderne, William de Turberville, William Gernun. - Dec. 30. 526. The K. having granted to Godfrey de Lezignan in compensation of his expenditure and loss regarding the land given to him in Ireland, 500 marks out of the debts due by the Jews to the

- 1256-1257. 527. Hereford in Wales. John le Bretun for the first part of the year, and Henry de Pembridge for the second, render their account:—to Imbert de Munferraunt for his expenses in going into Ireland as the K.'s messenger, 20l. by the K.'s writ. [Pipe, 41 Hen. III., Rot. 2 dors.]

[Cancelled because otherwise enrolled below.]
- Jan. 27. 529. The K. to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. It having long ago been provided that the same laws should be used in the land of Ireland as in the kingdom of England, and that the same writs for the recovery of lands and tenements should run in both countries, the K. marvels that the treasurer and barons should have, as Thomas Bishop of Lismore had information, permitted to emanate from the chancery of Edward the K.'s son in Ireland, against the bishop aforesaid, a writ contrary to the form usual in the kingdom. Then follows recital of a writ by Edward the K.'s son ordering the sheriff of Waterford to command the said Bishop of Lismore to restore to Walter Bishop of Waterford the manors of Artmordeglan, Kilmolas, Kilmerdin, and Mochel, which he claims as the right of his church, and into which the former bishop had not entry save by Alan, late Bishop of Lismore, to whom Griffin, heretofore bishop, demised it, the latter having unlawfully entered therein after the death of Robert, formerly bishop, who had thereof unlawfully disseised Robert Bishop of Waterford, predecessor of Walter aforesaid. This writ is contrary to law and the form of writs approved in the kingdom, because a writ of entry does not go beyond the third person; because an action does not lie for intrusion into land unless to him who has right therein; and because he cannot be called an intruder who by hereditary right or by right of his church succeeds to his predecessor. Wherefore the K. commands the treasurer and barons to supersede this writ, and to revoke what has been done under it in the court of the K.'s son. Windsor.

In a plaint by writ of right before the justices of Edward the K.'s son at Dublin, between John de Verdon, plaintiff, and the Abbot of Mellifont, tenant, of 3 carucates of land in Mulygadaveran and Thulachalyn, and 5 carucates excepting 3 acres used in salt works, the Abbot having pleaded that he could not answer thereto without the K., Edward ordered Alan la Zuche, his justiciary of Ireland, to require by writ of scrive facias the Abbot to come to England to show whether he was or was not entitled to answer without the K.

The Abbot came before the K. at Oxford a month after Trinity, and produced before the K.'s great Parliament, a charter of grant of Henry, the K.'s grandfather [Vol. I., No. 50], and another charter of grant of the K., dated April 4, a. r. 37 [ante No. 171], both herein recited; and William of Wylton came by the Lord Edward and testified that John de Verdon would not further prosecute his plaint against the Abbot. Wherefore the Abbot is remitted to Ireland in the same position as he was in when he left it; and the justiciary is commanded to cause to be delivered to him all the lands seized to compel the Abbot's appearance before the K. This the K. enjoins on the fealty and love with which they were always bound to the K. and to the crown of England.

Transcript of the dean's account of money received in England for the crusades, and of expenses for messengers sent into Ireland.

Walter Marsill, citizen and merchant of Florence, sent into Ireland by the K. and the Bishop of Hereford, had received from Laurence de Somerote, commissioner of the bishop, and of Master Rostand, and collector of the money of the crusades and of the tenth in Ireland, 2,000 marks; item received, 619 marks, 2*s.* 6½*d.* of good money; item received, 36 marks, 2*s.* 11½*d.* of other money by weight; item received by the said Walter from Master Thomas de Pywlesdon, substitute of Master Laurence in Ireland, 400 marks. The said Master Laurence was sent into Ireland by the K., and rendered full account of his receipts before the archdeacon and Sirs Philip Lunel and William Bonquer.

Sum total received by Walter in Ireland, 3,055 marks 5*s.* 6½*d.*

Whereof the said Walter paid to Maynet Spina and his partners, citizens and merchants of Florence, 1,752 marks 2*s.* 6*d.* of a debt of 4,000 marks, in which the Bishop of Hereford was bound to them for the K.; and so the said Maynet had of the money of the crusades and of the tenth, as well out of the three bishoprics of Worcester, Coventry, and Hereford, as in Ireland, 4,000 marks, and 100 marks for losses, expenses, and interest, by order of Master Rostand. And be it known that the Pope, by papal letters now at hand, assigned the money of the crusades and of the tenth in Ireland and in the three bishoprics, to meet this debt. The said Walter owes of money received in Ireland 1,300 marks 43*s.* 0½*d.*; his partners owe 450 marks of the money of the three bishoprics; and so the above company owes in all 1,753 marks 3*s.* 0½*d.*, for which they have accounted, as they say, before the K.'s council, Master Rostand and Sir Philip Lunel. [Jan. 26.]

646. Thomas Archbishop of Tuam to the K. The see of Elphin over which he once presided, having become vacant by translation of the archbishop, some canons of that church presumed, contrary to the custom of the kingdom, to elect M[ilo], archdeacon of Clonmacnois [Cluanensis], without waiting for the K.'s licence, and in contempt of the dean, the archdeacon, and treasurer of Elphin. Having, as belonged to his office, inquired regarding this election, he had found that there were many defects in it; and his delegates had decreed that it be quashed. The elect had presumed to carry away, ere they had reached their destination, the K.'s letters of licence, obtained by the dean and archdeacon. The archbishop's delegates having, by their sentence, declared that the power to elect on this occasion had devolved on the dean and archdeacon, and their associates of Elphin, he had, by virtue of his authority as metropolitan, approved this sentence; and the dean, archdeacon, treasurer, and their associates, had elected as bishop, Thomas Abbot of Boyle [de Buellio], of the diocese of Elphin. Being unwilling to confirm this election till it had received the royal assent, he prays the K. to give it. Given on the morrow of the conversion of St. Paul. [Royal Letters, No. 793.]

Jan. 30.

647. The K. to Stephen Lungespeye, justiciary of Ireland. The chapter of Elphin having during vacaney in their see demanded and obtained the K.'s licence, had elected Milo Archdeacon of Clonmacnois [Clonensis], as bishop; the royal assent having been given, the K. had asked Thomas Archbishop of Tuam, to do what was his in this matter. Mandate to the justiciary, that if the elect be confirmed he take fealty from him and give him seisin of the temporalities, having first received letters of the dean and chapter, to the effect that this grace shall not in future elections prejudice the K. Noyon.

This grace was granted to the elect on the prayer of the Archdeacon of Besancon, brother of G. de Genville. [Pat., 44 Hen. III., No. 72, m. 3.]

650. The K. to the Archbishop of Tuam. The Chapter of Elphin having during vacancy obtained the K.'s licence had elected Milo archdeacon of Clonmacnois, as bishop. The K. had given the royal assent without opposition, and had asked the Archbishop to do what was his in this matter, commanding the justiciary to restore the temporalities, if the election should be confirmed. The dean, archdeacon, treasurer and provost of that church, however, subsequently presented to the K. as their elect Thomas Abbot of Boyle [de Buellio] of the Cistercian order, asserting that the election of the dean had been irregular, the royal licence not having been waited for, and had been quashed. Under these circumstances the K. might well hesitate; but giving faith to the Archbishop's letters on this behalf, he grants the royal assent to the abbot's election, praying the Archbishop to inform him which of the elect he can admit without detriment to his right. Had lately learnt by letters of the Prior of St. Thomas of Down, of Sir Roger de Altaribus, knight, and Roger le Tayllur, mayor of Down, that in a recent conflict near Down, the commonalty of the city and county of Down had by the help of Divine grace defeated Bren Onel [Brian O'Neill], who presumptuously bears himself as King of the Kings of Ireland. The K. highly extols the manifest zeal and devotion of the commonalty. The prior and messengers from Ireland had supplicated the K. to prevail on Edward to confirm the liberties of the prior's church; to relieve the citizens and commonalty from payment to him of 100s. a year in order that they might inclose their vill; to confer in fee on the knight aforesaid some land in Twyscard, which had fallen into his hands by the slaying of the aforesaid Irishmen, and out of which he was wont to receive 40s. a year; and to grant to the mayor for their losses some relief regarding 23 marks and 40d. of rent. Prays that the bishop admit John and institute him as rector. Windsor. [Pat., 45 Hen. III., m. 5.]
- [1261 about Aug.] 713. F[edhlim] Okonchonur [O'Conor] King of Connaught [Conaccia] to the K. As the K.'s subjects ought gratefully and humbly to commend his good deeds, returns infinite thanks to his majesty for the various honours conferred on him, but chiefly for the K.'s orders to William de Dene, then justiciary in Ireland, to cause restitution to be made to him for the losses which Walter de Burgh had caused in his land of Tyrmane. As the justiciary had died ere receiving the K.'s letters, F[edhlim] had received no advantage from them. Walter and his associates had caused damage to the amount of 6,000 marks in the cantred in which lie the K.'s castles and those of Edward the K.'s son; besides the damage, estimated at 3,000 marks, which Walter had caused to the church of Elphin, then in the K.'s hand; and besides the burning of churches, and the slaying of clerks and nuns. Wherefore he prays the K. to command Sir Richard de la Rochelle, now justiciary, and the K.'s council in Ireland, to cause Walter to render full justice to himself and the church of Elphin for the damage which Walter had caused. For no promise made to him

- [Nov. 12.] 717. Brief of Pope Urban [IV.] submitting to the K. complaints regarding the K.'s justiciary and bailiffs in Ireland, as follows:—That they prevent the Archbishop of Dublin, his suffragans and their officials, from hearing and deciding causes touching pecuniary matters and defamation, and touching laymen, though by ancient custom they had cognizance of such causes; that they hinder even clerks from summoning clerks before an ecclesiastical judge, and rectors of churches from taking proceedings regarding chapels belonging thereto; that they would not permit the Archbishop and his suffragans to compel payment of fines legitimately inflicted by them, or to take cognizance of matters of usury, to punish the usurers, or to inquire, as belongs of right to their office, regarding adulteries or matters matrimonial; if citizens or burgesses leave by their will houses or land to a church or religious house, or if laymen attached to the soil, commonly called Betagii, leave their chattels to ecclesiastics, the K.'s officials impede the ecclesiastical judge in carrying out the will of the deceased; if the K. inhibits the ecclesiastical judges from proceeding in causes, the justiciaries and bailiffs punish the judges with pecuniary fines for having commenced proceedings, even though they should have obeyed the inhibition, and sometimes consign them to prison; if inquisitions find that the Archbishop, his suffragans and officials, have taken cognizance of causes not matrimonial or testamentary, they are subjected to pecuniary punishment or imprisonment; if an ecclesiastical judge is obliged to promulgate sentence of excommunication against a layman, the latter procures that the judge shall be inhibited from proceeding in the cause, and after such inhibition the K.'s officials prohibit that the layman be shunned as excommunicated. The Pope, therefore, prays and exhorts the K. to restrain the justiciaries and bailiffs from thus violating ecclesiastical liberty and usurping divine rights. His Holiness has by letters commanded the Bishop of Dromore and the Prior of the Dominicans de Ponte in the diocese of Armagh, that if the justiciaries and bailiffs do not allow the Archbishop and his suffragans to have free cognizance of the causes aforesaid, they shall compel them to do so by ecclesiastical censure. Viterbo, 2nd of the ides of November, in the 1st year of the Pope's pontificate. [Papal Bulls, Urban IV.]

719. P[atrik] Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of all Ireland, to the K. Having by virtue of his authority as metropolitan considered the appeal between the Abbot of Bangor and the Bishop of Down [Dunensis], his suffragan, he had judicially determined that the bishop's process against the abbot was irregular, and that the abbot's appeal was legitimate; he had, therefore, nullified the bishop's process for the removal of the abbot, restored the latter to his former position and dignity, and bound by sentence of excommunication those who disturb him. Prays that the K. will cause the temporalities of his house of Bangor to be restored to the abbot. [Royal Letters, No. 797.]

Milo late archdeacon of Clonmacnois [Cluonensis] who, contrary to the liberty of the Archbishop and of his church and against all right, had been confirmed and consecrated by the Archbishop of Armagh as Bishop of Elphin, and to whom the K. had granted the temporalities, died on Monday next after the feast of the Epiphany last past [Jan. 9]. Prays that the K. will grant the temporalities to Thomas who had, after licence obtained, been duly confirmed and consecrated as bishop of that see. 724. The K. to William de Bakepuz, his escheator in Ireland. The chapter of Elphin had during vacancy in their church, some time since, elected Thomas then Abbot of Boyle [de Buellio], of the Cistercian order, as Bishop of Elphin; and the Archbishop of Tuam having, as metropolitan, consecrated the elect, had prayed the K. to restore the temporalities. But a portion of the chapter aforesaid, having elected as bishop Milo Archdeacon of Clonmacnois [Cluonensis], he was consecrated by the Archbishop of Armagh, and having obtained the temporalities, personally opposed Thomas as bishop before the K. For this reason the temporalities could not, during Milo's lifetime, be restored to Thomas until the rights of either party should have been discussed before the proper judge. The Archbishop of Tuam having now by his letters informed the K. that Milo was dead, the K. commands the escheator, there being no further obstacle, to restore the temporalities to Thomas, as bishop, having first received from him, of the K.'s special grace on this occasion, the oath of fealty which he and the other bishops and prelates of the kingdom are bound to render. Westminster. [Pat., 46 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 12; and Close, 42-47 Hen. III., m. 5.]

During recent vacancy in the see of Armagh by the death of Abraham, late Bishop of that see, the Dean and Chapter thereof, having first demanded and obtained licence from the K., had postulated as Archbishop Patrick, late Bishop of Raphoe [Ratbotensis]. The K. gave the royal assent to this postulation, the Pope confirmed it, and the elect having, according to custom, rendered fealty, the K. had restored the temporalities to him. Mandate accordingly to the escheator. Westminster. [Pat., 46 Hen. III., p. 1, m. 12; and Close, 42-47 Hen. III., m. 5.]

it of him in capite. Mandate to the justiciary to certify as to the rights in this manor of the K. and of Sir John, and to cause an inquisition to be taken whether the K. ever had the custody of it, save when Walter de Lacy was under age and in the K.'s custody, or when Walter was in exile. Windsor.

Richard de la Rochelle to the Lord Edward. Had received the letters of the latter directing him to certify as to the rights of the K. and of Sir John de Verdon in the custody of the manor of Ardmass, which belonged to Richard de Cruces. The latter had otherwise held of Edward in capite, and Edward's predecessors kings of England, had the custody of this manor and of other lands in Meath, although held of the Lord of Meath, because the holders held in capite other lands of Edward's predecessors. By reason of the custodies which Edward's predecessors held in Meath the justiciary had, after the death of Richard de Cruces, entered this manor of Ardmass in Edward's name, although Richard had held it of Sir John. The inquisition herewith sent will show what right Sir John has in this manor.

Inquisition taken by writ of the Lord Edward regarding the manor of Armays. The jurors say that, excepting the custody of Richard Gernun, who held of Archibald le Flemmeng in Meath and of the K. in Uriel, which custody was seized by Sir Richard de Burgh, then justiciary of Ireland, neither the K. nor the Lord Edward ever had custody of the lands of Sir Walter de Lacy unless when the latter was in exile. Sir Walter had custody of all the lands of William Pipart in Dissart, and Artsalach in Meath, which Ralph Fitz Nicholas held for some time, as well as of other lands of the K.'s gift. Sir Walter was then absent from Ireland; on his return he deprived Ralph of the custody, and gave it to a knight named Walter le Petit; but subsequently at Ralph's entreaty restored it to him as a free gift. King John, the Lord Edward's grandfather, formerly had the custody of the manor of Armaiss in Meath, and of other lands of Robert de Cruces, Richard's father, but this was when Sir Walter was in exile. June 10. 776. The K. to archbishops, bishops and others in Ireland. Had believed that the disturbances long prevailing in his kingdom had been thoroughly quelled by the ordinance made at London regarding the liberation of Edward the K.'s son, who after the hateful battle of Lewes had, to secure the peace of the kingdom, of his own free will given himself up as a hostage. The K., his son, the magnates, and the commonalty had sworn to observe this ordinance. But his son, as the K. is grieved to say, at the instigation of him who strives to sow the seeds of discord, had against the ordinance, and his own oath, gone over to certain marchers and other rebels against the K., and by his adhesion, favoured and upheld those against whom he ought to prove himself an enemy. According to rigour of law and his own deed Edward has thus forfeited his right to the kingdom and to all his demesnes. The K. therefore commands the archbishops, &c. that they be intente and respondent to H[ugh] Bishop of Meath, to whom in the K.'s name he had intrusted the office of justiciary of Ireland; that until further orders they do not favour, aid or obey Edward or his bailiffs, but that they sedulously strive to promote peace and concord in Ireland, so conducting themselves that no danger accrue to that country from those who have shown themselves to be rebels there. At the appointed day Richard the appellant appeared in armour, as was his duty, Robert the defendant did not appear, but remained in the castle of Trim. By writ of Walter de Lacy, obtained at the instance of his wife, the plaint was, contrary to justice, adjourned. Richard the appellant thereupon appeared before Henry the justiciary, and complained of the injury done to him. The justiciary removed the plaint to the K.'s court, Dublin; and there concord was made, the appellant withdrawing from his appeal. From that day the liberty of Meath remained in the K.'s hand until it was granted to Sir Geoffrey de Jenville as his portion. They further say, that as to the assizes of the lord, and of the county of Dublin, there would now be a decrease in value of 400 marks, because a great part of the country is destroyed; on improvement of the country there would be a decrease of 500 marks, and the lord would not have knights to take the great and other assizes, as he now has. 860. The K. to W[alter] de Burgh, Earl of Ulster. When he gave Ireland to Edward his son, the K. retained episcopal and abbatial investitures, and thereby became entitled to the custody of churches and abbeys in vacancies. But by virtue of a feoffment of the county of Ulster which Edward had made to the earl, the latter had dragged into his court the Archbishop of Armagh, and the bishops and abbots of that county, compelling them and their tenants to answer regarding their holdings and in other pleas belonging to the Crown, as if they were subject to the earl which they are not. The earl further usurps the custodies of abbeys when vacant, arbitrarily extorts amerciaments from prelates, and inflicts other enonities on them. The K. neither can nor ought to permit this, and therefore commands the earl to desist from such injuries and oppressions, to allow the archbishop, bishops and abbots to hold their lands, tenements, and possessions in peace, and to restore to the Bishop of Down the amerciaments he had taken from him. By

861. Inquisition taken at Kilkenny in the vigil of the Circumcision, 54 Hen. III., by Richard Palmer, Simon Kenah, Alexander of Salisbury, Simon Rike, Philip Kift, Jordan Atehulle, Richard the tailor, Richard of Kerdif, Geoffrey of Axbridge, Robert the miller, Henry White, and Walter Colt, Who Say that Hugh Rufus, formerly Bishop of Ossory, and his successors, were wont yearly to receive an ounce of gold, sometimes from the provostship of Kilkenny by the hands of the provosts there, and sometimes from the exchequer of the castle of Kilkenny by the hands of the treasurer and bailiffs of the castle, for a portion of land extending from Keverocke's well to the water called Bregath' running under Coterel bridge. The said Bishop Hugh had granted this land in fee for this gold to William Earl Marshall to enlarge his vill. The bishops of Ossory were wont yearly to receive this gold until the land of Leinster was partitioned between the coheirs of Earl Walter [Marshall]. A charter of William Marshall was hereupon exhibited proving these facts, and a transcript thereof is annexed to these presents. They further say that the Earl and his predecessors were wont to receive a toll out of the vill [of Kilkenny] from 9 o'clock on Friday till 9 o'clock on Saturday. They believe that the said Bishop has a right, . . . but they know nothing thereof, unless by the Earl's charter. William held a market in Kilkenny of the grant of Hugh Bishop of Ossory for 10 years, and he ought to have surrendered it. They say that the toll is worth 5s. a year.

[Annexed] Charter of William Marshall Earl of Pembroke, whereby he releases to Hugh Bishop of Ossory and his successors all complaints of him or his heirs against the Bishop regarding lands and tenements. Has moreover promised to the Bishop that he will within 10 years restore to him or his successors the market place [forum] of the vill of Kilkenny, and that he will aid him in seeking the rights of his church against those who withhold them (excepting the lands which the Earl holds by charter of the Bishop), and in maintaining the liberties of that church. Witnesses, Thomas Fitz Anthony, Ralph Fitz Pagan, and Roger Everard. [1202-1218.]

863. In order to meet the arrears of the annual payment due to the Papal See the K. had assigned to Sinicius, chamberlain of the Pope, the tenth of ecclesiastical profits in Ireland, granted to the K. by His Holiness. As this tenth was insufficient the K., in order to discharge those arrears, assigned to Sinicius the tenth granted by the Pope in the diocese of Lincoln. Sinicius only received in the name of the church 1,100 marks and no more of the tenth of Ireland, because that tenth had been granted by the Pope, and subsequently by the K., to Alienor, Queen Consort, to pay her debts. It appears that Richard Salueterre and Bartholomew Jacob, merchants of Florence, had received in the name of the church, and at the mandate of the Queen Consort and of Sinicius, 250 marks out of 400 marks which Sinicius had ordered to be paid to them by the Bishop of Meath and the Dean of Ossory, agents for the tenth in Ireland. As, however, Sinicius did not receive the 250 marks, but the K. commanded them to be paid to the Queen Consort, the tenth of the diocese of Lincoln sufficing to satisfy the church, the K. acknowledges that Sinicius had only received 1,100 marks as above, of the tenth of Ireland, and acquits and discharges the church and Sinicius regarding the 250 marks aforesaid. He shall previously, however, take from the prior and convent letters sealed with their seal, undertaking that this grace shall not be drawn into a precedent, nor in future elections cause prejudice to the K. Mandate accordingly to the escheator. Winchester. [Pat., 55 Hen. III., m. 25.]

Sir W[illiam] Fitz Warin, whom they had sent to Ulster as seneschal, had fully restored peace between English and Irish, and by the security of good hostages had settled the whole land of Ulster to the advantage of the Lord Edward and the profit of the community. This land had previously to the arrival of the seneschal, stood in a state of ruin through Sir H[enry] de Mandevill, to whom the Lord Edward had formerly granted the bailiwick of Twiscard. He then faithfully served Edward, though, as now appears by faithful inquisitions taken by the seneschal, he ought justly to have lost the bailiwick from the first. Sir H[enry] also assigned this bailiwick to Sir W[alter] de Burgh, late Earl of Ulster, and the latter died invested with it. Nevertheless, after his death, Sir H[enry] entered upon and held the bailiwick to the grave prejudice and loss of the Lord Edward, until Sir W[illiam] took it from him. Although he has justly lost the bailiwick, he threatens the commonalty to recover possession of it from the deputies by paying to them the great price which he ought to have paid for it to the Lord Edward, but which still remains iniquitously unpaid. If the deputies do grant the bailiwick to Sir H[enry] the commonalty will rise against him, saving their fealty to the Lord Edward. They are unwilling to subject to war and turbulence the land of Ulster now settled in peace, and assure the deputies that that land will remain so by the counsel of Sir W[illiam] Fitz Warin and the aid of the commonalty so long as they shall have Sir W[illiam] as seneschal. 930. Petition of Robert Owen to the K. Having in the time when Richard de la Rochelle was justiciary, and F[romund] le Brun chancellor in Ireland, been appointed as K.'s serjeant in that country, the justiciary and others of the K.'s council had promised to remunerate him for his service. From that time Roger had prosecuted the K.'s pleas; the justiciaries and others of the K.'s council had promised to satisfy him, but they had not satisfied him. Roger might have received a large salary from the magnates of Ireland, but had received nothing. Wherefore he prays the K. to requite him for the long and important service which he had rendered to the K., and which he begs may be inquired into.

Roger further prays that the K. will cause an exchange to be made by view of the justiciary, between the K.'s lands in the district of Tassagard [Saggard] near the land of war, and Roger's lands in the manor of Newcastle of Lyons adjoining the land of peace [the pale]. It would be more advantageous to the K. to possess the latter than the former lands. [Royal Letters, No. 2473.]

932. The mayor and citizens of Dublin to the K. Having learnt from the statement of the justices in eyre in Ireland, and from letters of the K.'s burgesses of Drogheda, that the chattels of Alice Augustin of Drogheda, and other burgesses of that vill, had been unjustly seized at Southampton, by John de la Bulehuse, burgess of the latter vill, and Peter his servant, for a debt which they claim of Alice in the name of Theobald de Fanestoke her late husband, the mayor and citizens pray the K. that Alice may not be further molested thereupon, that her chattels may be released, and that Richard le Curteis, burgess of Bristol, son and heir of Richard le Curteis, may make payment to her of 100*l.* worth of silver, in which he is bound by agreement made between them in the presence of the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer of Ireland. [Temp. Hen. III.] 934. Letter probably to the K. regarding the state of Ireland. That country is poor, and there is almost nothing in the Treasury. They can obtain aid neither of men nor of money from Ulster, which is the fifth part of Ireland. Norman French. [Royal Letters, No. 838. Decayed.]

EDWARD I.

1272, Michaelmas. 935. Morrow of all Souls. Plea before the K. and Council between Agnes de Vesey and Emeric de Rochechouart, Matilda his wife, Alienor de Vallibus, and Agatha de Mortimer, regarding their rights as coparceners of the inheritance in the county of Kildare, Ireland, of Gilbert and Walter, Earls Marshal of England. The said Agnes, Matilda, Alienor, and Agatha were daughters of Sibil who was the wife of William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby. The county of Kildare was assigned to them in right of the said Sibil, their mother, who was one of the sisters and coheirs of the said Gilbert and Walter; and the said Agnes by extent made in the reign of Hen. III., derived a purparty of 27 librates, 12 solidates, 8 denarates, and 1 obolate; the said Matilda a purparty of 12 librates, 7 solidates, and 1 obolate; the said Alienor a purparty of 14 librates, 5 solidates, 7 denarates, and 1 obolate; and the said Agatha a purparty of 19 librates, 5 solidates, and 10 denarates, out of the profits of pleas in the said county. In the partition nothing was done either regarding the surplus issues of the county, the profits of the seal, or appointments of bailiffs, but everything in the county became the property of the 4 coheirresses. After the death of Margaret Countess of Pembroke, wife of Walter Marshall, and who held this county in dower, the said Agnes took possession of it, of the profits of pleas and of the seal and appointment of bailiffs, and on complaint of the said Matilda, Alienor, and Agatha, the latter were by order of W[alter] Archbishop of York, R[oger] de Mortimer, and R[obert] Burnell, Lieutenant of the K. in England, lately restored to their rights. The said Agnes thereupon complained that she had been ejected from her seisin without having been summoned, and demanded of the K.'s justiciary and escheator in Ireland to have that seisin restored to her; and the said Matilda, Alienor, and Agatha ask that justice be rendered to them.

The said Agnes comes and says that she cannot answer to this writ without the said Matilda her coparcener. Wherefore the said Emeric and Matilda are summoned for the octaves of Hilary. [Coram Rege, 1 Edw. I., No. 1, Rot. 18.]

Michaelmas. 936. Octaves and quinzaine of Michaelmas. Before the K.'s Council. Ireland. Agatha de Mortimer puts in her place William de Grys or Philip Haselewood, against Agnes de Vesey, of a plea of land. [Coram Rege, 1 Edw. I., No. 1, Rot. 24 dors; and 1 Edw. I., No. 2, Rot. 18 dors.]

Dec. 7.

937. King Edward I. notifies to archbishops, bishops, abbots, priors, earls, barons, knights, free tenants, and others in Ireland, that on the death of the Lord Henry, his father, of famous memory, the government of England and the dominion of Ireland had devolved on him; that in his absence the prelates, earls, great men, and commonalty of his kingdom, had yielded to him a willing oath of fealty; that the Irish archbishops and earls, &c. are bound to render to him as their king and lord a similar oath; that he had given power to the Bishop of Meath, Maurice Fitz Maurice, the K.'s justiciary of Ireland, and John de Saunford, his escheator in that country, to receive it; and he commands them to render such an oath. Given by the hand of W[alter] de Merton, the K.'s Chancellor. Westminster. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 20.]

Dec. 7. 938. The K. notifies to the Bishop of Meath, Maurice Fitz Maurice, justiciary of Ireland, and John de Saunford, escheator in that country, that he had given power to them to receive an oath of fealty from the prelates and barons of Ireland as above; and he commands them to receive such an oath. Westminster. [Pat. 1 Edw. I., m. 20.]

Dec. 7. 939. The K. to Maurice Fitz Maurice, his justiciary of Ireland, notifying the death of his father and his own succession as above; and commanding the justiciary to cause the K.'s peace to be proclaimed and observed in Ireland, forbidding all persons on pain of life and limb to infringe that peace. The K. was prepared to render full justice to all in Ireland regarding their rights. Westminster. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 20.]

Dec. 7. 940. The K. commits, during pleasure, to Maurice Fitz Maurice the office of justiciary of Ireland. Given by the hand of W[alter] de Merton, the K.'s Chancellor. [Fine Rolls, 1 Edw. I., m. 26.]

Dec. 7. 941. The K. commits to William Fitz Warin, the custody of the county of Ulster, and of all the lands and tenements of Walter de Burgh, deceased, who held of the K. in capite; to hold as before at the K.'s will. William shall answer for the issues at the Exchequer. [Fine Rolls, 1 Edw. I., m. 26.]

Dec. 7. 942. The K. commits, during pleasure, to John de Saunford, the office of escheatry of Ireland as well of episcopal investitures [crociæ] (which King Henry retained in his hand, and which from his death belong by hereditary succession to the K.), as of other matters appertaining to the office.

Mandate to archbishops, bishops, abbots, priors, earls, barons, knights, free tenants, and others of Ireland to be intentive and respondent to John as the K.'s escheator of Ireland. [Fine Rolls, 1 Edw. I., m. 26.]

1272-3.
Jan. 11. 943. Royal assent to the election made in the cathedral church of Limerick, of Gerard, archdeacon of that church, as Bishop of Limerick. Mandate to the Archbishop of Cashel to do what belongs to him in this matter. Given as above. The New Temple, London. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 19.]

1272-3.
Hilary.

944. Third week of Hilary. Ireland, county of Kildare. Matilda wife of Emeric de Rochechouart, Alienor de Vallibus, and Agatha de Mortimer, appear against Agnes de Vesey in a plea of profits of issues of pleas of the seal, and of bailiffs in this county. Agnes did not come, but essoined herself to one month of Easter, on which day the justiciary and escheator of Ireland ought to have returned the K.'s writ of summons against Agnes. They have now sent the writ, and testify that the summons had issued, but the bearer of it had been prevented appearing on the above day, in consequence of the Irish Sea. Wherefore the sheriff of Dorset, where the said Agnes has lands of the inheritance of the Earls Marshall, is commanded to summon her for the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist, to carry out the partition of that inheritance, and to deposit the surplus of profits of the seal, and of bailiffs, &c. [Coram Rege, 1 Edw. I., No. 3, Rot. 13 dors.]

Jan. 17. 945. Grant to Gerard le Marshall, Archdeacon of Limerick, of custody of the vacant see of Limerick, to hold for one year from Wednesday after the feast of St. Hilary [Jan. 18], according to the form provided between the K.'s lieutenants in England and the said Gerard. Saving to the K. the knights' fees, advowsons, wards, and escheats which shall meanwhile accrue, with all issues of the see from the death of the bishop till Wednesday aforesaid. Mandate to John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland, to deliver to Gerard the custody of the see with its temporalities. Given as above. Westminster. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 19.]

Jan. 20. 946. Grant to Thomas de Cheddeworth, clerk, to whom the K. had given the custody of the vacant archbishopric of Dublin, of power to let to farm or ad campi partem [champerty] the lands and tenements of the see as may be most advantageous to the K. The latter will ratify whatever Thomas may do in this respect. Given as above.

Mandate to knights, free and other tenants of the see of Dublin, to be intente and respondent to Thomas as custodian of the archbishopric. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 19.]

Jan. 20. 947. Commission to Richard of Exeter, the K.'s justice of the Common Pleas, Dublin, to inquire with others, by oath, regarding robberies, burnings, and homicides in Ireland, &c., and to certify to the K. thereupon. Given as above. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 19.]

Jan. 26. 948. Letters of presentation for Simon of Hereford to the church of Rosselawe belonging to the K.'s gift by reason of vacancy in the church of Dublin. Letters thereupon to the Archdeacon of Dublin. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 19.]

1273,
Easter. 949. Third week and month of Easter. Before the K.'s council. Further plea in the plaint of Matilda wife of Emeric de Rochechouart, Alienor de Vallibus, and Agatha de Mortimer, against Agnes de Vesey, touching the county of Kildare, Ireland. [Coram Rege, 1 Edw. I., No. 4, Rot. 8.]

[About 12-
15 April.] 950. The K. to William Fitz Warin, seneschal of Ulster. James de Audley, deceased, late justiciary of Ireland, and William de

Bakeproz, late escheator of that country, immediately after the death of Walter de Burgh, late Earl of Ulster, unwisely endowed Avelina who was his wife, with 5 of his castles in the marches of Ulster now in a hostile state [que de guerra existunt], and of almost all the homages of the hostile Irish of Ulster, retaining the castle of Carrickfergus alone. The seneschal subsequently thinking that more of the Earl's lands had been assigned to Avelina than she was entitled to as dower, re-called into the K.'s hand certain lands. Avelina having thereupon complained to the K.'s lieutenants in England that she had been ejected from her dower lands, the K. ordered the seneschal to render justice to her in this respect. But as there is no reasonable assignment of dower in this instance, and as the castles of her late husband and the homages of persons in a hostile state ought not to have been assigned to Avelina, the K. wills that the county of Ulster and the Earl's other lands be extended, and that according to that extent her reasonable dower be assigned to Avelina, saving to the K. castles, homages, and pleas of assize and county pleas in Ulster. The K. therefore commands the seneschal that in presence of a person to be sent by Maurice Fitz Maurice, justiciary of Ireland, of the escheator of Ireland, and of two bishops or abbots of those parts, he apply a remedy under the above circumstances, and cause justice to be done both to Avelina and the K. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 17.]

April 15. 951. Grant for 2 years to Christiana de Mariseis that Rusticellus Thesdaldi, to whom by the K.'s licence she had given power for the purpose, may appoint attorneys for her in all plaints in Irish courts, provided that the attorneys be appointed before the Chancellor of Ireland, and that the writs made thereupon be produced in the court wherein the plaints are moved. Witness as above.

Mandate to the K.'s Chancellor of Ireland to receive during the above term the attorneys appointed by Rusticellus in the name of Christiana, and to give him writs thereupon if required. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 17.]

[1273.] 952. The mayor and commonalty of Carrickfergus in Ulster to the K. Od' O'Neill, king of Kinel Owen, and Commoy O'Kathran, king of Kenach, had lately raised war in Ulster, and had with all their power, at the instance of Sir Henry and Sir Robert de Maundevill, knights, Thomas Fitz Richard, Thomas and Martin de Maundevill, William de Corrs, and others their relatives and friends, hostilely entered the K.'s land and brought into it homicide, burning, and robbery. Because William Fitz Warin, seneschal of Ulster, distrained those Englishmen for debts due to the K., they burned 5 vills, 2,000 crannocks of wheat, and 3 mills belonging to him, by which they deprived him of an annual rent of 57 marks. They took hostages from the K.'s English subjects, proposing to destroy and lay waste the land, but they were driven to confusion by the valour of the seneschal, Hugh Byset, and their friends. Many of them were taken and confined, one of them died in prison, and the remainder obtained the K.'s peace more leniently than they deserved.

The mayor and commonalty therefore pray the K. that he will apply counsel to these matters; that he will place faith in the seneschal, and quickly send him with a remedy in the premises. They confidently hope to enjoy tranquillity and peace so long as the seneschal shall remain. [Printed by Rymer, I. 520, Record Edition. See Notes.]

[1273.]

953. N[] O'Nel, king of Ynceun, G[] Mac Dumlene, king of the Irish of Ulster, M[] O'Flin, king of Cucuria, E[] O'Hanlon, king of Ergallia, D[] Mac Gilmori, chief of Anderken, D[] Mac Kartan, king of O'Nelich, to the K. After the seneschal and Hugh Byset had defeated the rebels, as in the last abstract, the writers had, at the instance of the seneschal, endeavoured with all their might to pursue and rout the K.'s Irish enemies; but some of the council of Ireland, at the instigation of those enemies, endeavour to oppress the writers. They therefore pray the K. to confide in these matters to the testimony of the seneschal, whom, so long as he shall remain in that capacity, they are ready to obey as the K. himself. Pray the K. that these evil doers may not so easily escape punishment. Otherwise they fear that this war will be followed as an example. [Printed by Rymer, I. 520, Record Edition. See Notes.]

[April
15-25.]

954. The K. to William Fitz Warin, his seneschal of Ulster. From the inquisitions which he had lately caused to be made respecting the doings of Henry de Maundeville when seneschal of Ulster and bailiff of Tuscard, it appears that during that time Henry had perpetrated various trespasses and injuries both against the K. and the commonalty of Ulster. The K. therefore commands William to exhibit justice thereupon to all complainants in that country, and as regards the K., to take such amends on conviction as justice may require. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 17.]

April 28.

955. The K. commands William Fitz Warin, his seneschal of Ulster, to take into the K.'s hand all the lands and tenements in his bailiwick whereof Walter de Burgh, late Earl of Ulster, died seised in fee, his wife's dower lands excepted, and to keep them till further orders. Thomas gives respite until ensuing Michaelmas for the residue of the debt.

1273.

Mandate to the Chancellor to receive the attorneys, as well as Walter and William of London should they go for the purpose, and freely to give them the K.'s writs thereupon. [Close, 1 Edw. I., m. 7 dors.]

July 14.

962. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 15.]

[About
July 15.]

964. The K. to his justiciary and Treasurer of Ireland. Mandate, that on security being taken from Henry for repayment of the value at Christmas next ensuing the corn be delivered to him. [Close, 1 Edw. I., m. 6.]

[About
Aug. 23.]

970. The K. to Geoffrey de Geneville, his justiciary of Ireland. Had granted to Thomas de Clare the custody of the lands of the barony of Offaly which belonged to Maurice Fitz Gerald, long since deceased. It appears, however, as well by record of Robert de Ufford, formerly the K.'s lieutenant in Ireland, as by testimony of others, that Maurice held the barony of Roger de Mortimer, Matilda his wife, William de Cantilupe and Eva his wife, Humphrey de Bohun and Alienor his wife, daughters of Eva de Breouse, and heirs of Walter and Anselm Marshall, by the service of 12 knights for their portion of the inheritance; and that by partition between them each of the sisters derived a tenancy in common of four knights' fees in the barony. It moreover appears that the castle of Legh, which is the chief castle of the barony, with the third part of the custody, ought to accrue to the said Matilda as the eldest of the sisters, nor was it the K.'s intention that by gift of the custody to Thomas, the said Roger and Matilda should be prejudiced, for which reason the K. had commanded to James de Audley and Maurice Fitz Maurice, formerly his justiciaries in Ireland, that this castle with the third part of the custody of Offaly, saving the dower of Maurice's wife, should be restored to the said Roger and Matilda, but this was not done. The K. therefore commands Geoffrey that, taking with him a sufficient posse, if need be, he cause the castle with the third part of the custody of Offaly, saving the dower of Maurice's wife as above, with all the issues of the barony from the time when its custody first came into the K.'s hand, to be restored to the said Roger and Matilda. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 15.]

Sept. 2.

971. The K. to William Fitz Warin, seneschal of the honor and county of Ulster. Having by letters patent appointed Geoffrey de Geneville justiciary of Ireland, the K. commands William to deliver to him the castles, lands, and tenements belonging to that honor and which are in his hand by the K.'s commission. St. Martin's the Great, London.

The K. commands the same William to be intente and respondent regarding the honor and county of Ulster to Geoffrey de Geneville, appointed justiciary of Ireland. [Pat., 1 Edw. I., m. 5.]

Sept. 2.

972. The K. to Geoffrey de Geneville, justiciary of Ireland. Foreign merchants with their wares coming to and departing from Ireland are burdened beyond measure with new customs, prisage, and undue exactions. One of the bearers of the letters, which were in duplicate owing to the dangers of the sea, perished by shipwreck, and the other was so delayed that he could not arrive in time. Pending the time mentioned in William's letters of protection the bailiffs of Geoffrey's court of his liberty of Trim proceeded against William by writ of right in that court in a plaint between Richard de Feypo, plaintiff, and the said William, deforciant, of lands and tenements in Balimachethan and Maciston. The K. commanded the justiciary to provide that saving the claim of the adverse party William should not be precluded from his just defence, but the justiciary had deferred to do this because there was in the letters of protection no special mention of pleas moved or to be moved, although it is not the custom of Chancery to use such words. In order therefore to save William from danger of disherison the K. again commands the justiciary that during the term contained in the letters William shall not be placed in default in any plea. 1274, Michaelmas. 1039. Pleas before the K. The K. while in Gascony had commanded his lieutenants in England to cause to come before them Thomas de Clare and William de Valence, and to render justice regarding a contention arisen between them. Thereupon the said Thomas complains that William owed him 1,200 marks out of 3,500 marks for which he had sold to the latter the custody of the lands of Maurice Fitz Gerald in Ireland, till the age of his heirs, then minors, with the marriage of the heirs.

William admits the sale and that 1,200 marks of the purchase money are unpaid, but he says that Thomas sold the custody to him on the day of Maurice's death, and that he specified in the sale the custody of the castle and honour of Leghey, which he bound himself to warrant to William, as appears by the deed which the latter produces. He further says that after the sale Roger de Mortimer came to the present K. before his passage to the Holy Land, and submitted that he could not give or sell either to Thomas or any other person the custody of the castle and honour of Leythe, because it belonged to him, Roger, till the age of Maurice's heirs, Maurice having held the castle and honour of him and of Matilda his wife by knight service. Thereupon the present K. restored the custody to Roger and Matilda, commanding his justiciary of Ireland to give them seisin thereof.

Since, therefore, the K. has taken this custody from William and given it to Roger and Matilda, William prays that by equity of the court he be not compelled to pay the whole of the purchase money, but that so much may be allowed to him as the K. took from him of the custody.

Further Roger de Mortimer, for himself and his wife, complains that William had not as yet permitted them to enter the said castle and honor, and prays that the mandate to the justiciary of Ireland be executed.

William as before acknowledges that the K. restored to Roger and Matilda the custody of the said castle and honor, and alleges that it is hard to eject him from a custody which Thomas had sold and bound himself to warrant to him. He prays that his indemnity be provided for, &c.

Judgment that William restore the castle and honor to Roger and Matilda, to hold as a custody till the age of the heirs of Maurice Fitz Gerald; that there be allowed to William in his payment to Thomas so much as the custody of the castle and honor is worth; and as this allowance cannot be made until the value of the castle and honor, and of the other lands of Maurice Fitz Gerald is ascertained, the justiciary of Ireland is commanded to extend and value all the lands which Maurice held at his death; this extent shall be made known to the K., and meanwhile the distress against William for the 1,200 marks in arrear shall cease. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 12, Rot. 12 dors, and No. 13, Rot. 10 dors.]

Oct. 11. 1050. The K. to Geoffrey de Gyenville, his justiciary of Ireland. Having learnt by the complaints of many persons that some magnates, citizens, burgesses, and others frequently exceed the liberties granted to them by the K.'s progenitors, Kings of England, and the K. himself, and under the veil of those liberties inflict injury on many persons and usurp regal rights, the K. commands the justiciary that when on account of transgression he shall take into the K.'s hand any of those liberties he shall retain them there, and not restore them until the K. shall have been certified, and shall have given his pleasure thereupon. Tower of London. [Close, 2 Edw. I., m. 3.]

These payments have not been allowed to Robert at the Exchequer. The K. therefore commands his Treasurer and chamberlain of the Exchequer, Dublin, to cause speedy allowance to be made to Robert in the premises, taking from him security that on the K.'s summons he will be prepared to charge the heirs of the said James with receipt of the money, so that the K. may recover it against the heirs. Oct. 27. 1056. The K.'s writ to Geoffrey de Genville, justiciary of Ireland. Had received petitions from the citizens of Limerick, praying relief regarding an annual rent of 100 marks for a fishing pool in the water of Limerick, regarding another rent of 40 marks for 40 carucates of land without the city of Limerick, which the Irish had hostilely entered, and regarding divers prises [prisæ] which James de Audley and other justiciaries had taken from them. They further pray that the K. would cause to be collected and paid to them 20 marks from each county of Ireland which Richard de la Rochelle and other magnates ordered and decreed to be paid to them for the burning of their city, and other damage done by those magnates when they were staying in that city with the K.'s army to subdue the Irish. As, moreover, King John had by his charter granted to them the same liberties as were enjoyed by the city of Dublin, they finally pray that the K. would by his charter specify those liberties. The K., previous to granting those petitions, wishes to be certified and to obtain the justiciary's counsel regarding each point in them, and therefore commands the latter to inquire by the oaths of knights and other free men of Ireland whether the citizens were enfeoffed of the said fishing pool for 100 marks, payable to the K., or received it for a term now expired, and answered therefore against their will; what is the annual value of the said fishing pool; whether the Irish occupied a great part of the land aforesaid against the citizens, if so, how much; the value of the residue; how much ought to be allowed to them for that occupation; what justiciaries had taken the prises, from whom, and their value; whether any compensation was made for them; whether the above ordinance and decree were made by consent of all, both great and small; and whether the citizens received anything in respect of them. He shall, moreover, inquire what liberties the citizens of Dublin enjoy; whether the citizens of Limerick enjoy the same liberties; which of them they have used, and which not; and whether it would be to the K.'s detriment that he should grant to the latter citizens his charter specifying the liberties as prayed. The inquisitions with this writ shall be sent to the K. before the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist next ensuing. The justiciary shall also send to the K. at the same time his counsel in the premises, and shall cause to be respited the exactions which the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer make against the citizens. Stepney. [Inq. P. M., 2 Edw. I., No. 73.]

By judgment of the court and grant of the parties, it is now ordered that Agnes and her heirs shall appoint the following officers in the county of Kildare, namely, a seneschal for its custody, a chancellor to keep its seal, and if need be, a treasurer to receive its issues. The justiciary of Ireland having learnt his death, assigned to her by mandate of the K., for 40 days after notice of his death, the lands, tenements, and chattels to which she was entitled, with reasonable expenses. But the then Barons of the Exchequer, considering that Agnes was not entitled without the K.'s special mandate to the issues of the lands after her husband's death, because Agnes admitted having released her dower, the sheriff of Kildare was ordered to levy out of her lands and chattels and bring before the Barons 289l. 10s. 6d. which she had received of the issues before notice of her husband's death. This seems contrary to right. The K. therefore, wishing to provide for the indemnity of his cousin, and to render her justice, commands the justiciary to audit the accounts of all receipts by the K.'s escheator, Maurice's executor, and Agnes herself out of goods and chattels on the lands at Maurice's death; to allow her expenses before notice of his death and for 40 days after; to cause her to have her portion of the residue, and the executors their portion; and to cause to be restored what had been otherwise taken by her. William de Valence and Joan his wife occupied, contrary to the assignment, the forest of this manor; thereupon Agatha demands justice, and prays that she may be put into possession of her share. - Michaelmas. 1163. Ireland:—Geoffrey de Prendergast, of Ireland, had complained to the K. that Meyler de Bermingham, and Basilia his wife, had demanded by writ of right in the K.'s court at Dublin, against

William de Prendergast, Geoffrey's father, the vills of Faycarkehill, Kilterkane, and Lisnegoll', whereof the said Geoffrey had been tenant before the writ obtained; had impleaded William, and by deceiving the court recovered the tenements by William's default as if he had been tenant; that Meyler and Basilia by judgment of the court of Dublin obtained seisin, not only of the above tenements but of others in Adhelice, Typeredely, Knogbalihilte, Gareskil, Lysemestan, Corclenan, Denmor, Drumfin, Knockenesagard, Kilbasharn', Balimurchud, Balienese, and Kimanasse; that Geoffrey was ejected from the tenements by a judgment which did not bind him, the more especially as he was not summoned to the plea nor named in the writ; that he brought an assize of Novel disseisin before William de Bakepuz and Richard de Aston, and by their judgment recovered his seisin; that Richard de Middleton, to whom on the complaint of Peter de Bermingham, son of the said Meyler, King Hen. III. had committed the examination of this assize with power to correct error, if any, in the process, decided that there was error in the taking of the assize, and unjustly restored his seisin to Peter; that the K. commanded Geoffrey de Geneville, justiciary of Ireland, to summon the parties before him and before Thomas de Clare, Chancellor of Ireland, the justice of the Common Pleas, Dublin, and the other counsellors of the K. in Ireland, and inquire whether there was error in the record or process, if so, to amend it, and if any difficulty prevented the plaint from being determined in Ireland, then to send to the K. the record and process, and the rolls and writs as well on one side as on the other; and that the said Geoffrey de Geneville did send the record of the assize of Novel disseisin and also that of the above plea on writ of right; and also the record of Richard de Middleton, all which records are in the bundle of records returned before the K. of Michaelmas term, a.r. 3 Edw. I.

Record of Richard de Middleton:—

Peter de Bermingham had complained to Edward, the K.'s eldest son and lord of Ireland, that Geoffrey de Prendergast, of Ireland, had arraigned before William de Bakepuz and Richard de Aston, justices assigned, an assize of Novel disseisin against Peter, William of Ross, Basilia de Bermingham, and others named in the Lord Edward's original writ, of tenements in the castle of Moylak, on the water de Suiry [of the Suir], Picharcherbik, Kileronan, Lisnegol, Athelis, Typeredoly, Gassikli, Coyclenan, Dommor, Drumfin, Cnokeyesagard, Lysmaskan, Killeshern', Balimurchud, Balioneuse, and Lysnaysin; Peter, the tenant, assigned reasons why the assize ought not to be held, but the justices proceeded to take it, removed Peter from the seisin, and unjustly adjudged it to Geoffrey with damages taxed at 1,000 marks. Thereupon Peter prayed the Lord Edward to cause the proceedings of the justices to be inquired into, and the error, if any, to be amended according to the law and custom of England and Ireland, which are the same. The Lord Edward, therefore, before his departure for the Holy Land, enjoined Richard de Middleton, then Chancellor of the Lord Edward's father, the K., to associate with himself the K.'s justices, counsellors, and others skilled in the law, to inquire into the proceedings, and to amend error, if any, in the record or proceedings on the assize. The K. also on the requisition of the Lord Edward commanded James de Audley, justiciary, and Fromund le Brun, Chancellor of Ireland, to send before the K. and Richard under their seals by Monday after the beginning of Lent [carneprivium] last past the record and proceedings on the assize, to summon Geoffrey to be there, and meanwhile to take the tenements into the K.'s hand and safely keep them, until justice should be rendered to the parties.

On that day James and Fromund sent the record and proceedings as follows:—

The assize comes to recognize if William of Ros, Basilia de Bermingham, Peter de Bermingham, Thomas de Flannville, and others in the writ named, disseised Geoffrey de Prendergast. William and Basilia did not come because they were not found. Peter says that he did not commit a disseisin, because he says he entered into the land as his inheritance, and that after he had been in peaceful possession the said Geoffrey came and disseised him. Peter brought a writ of Novel disseisin before Richard Fitz Griffin, justice assigned, against the said Geoffrey, recovered seisin of the land, and prayed judgment whether an assize of Novel disseisin ought to be brought on an assize of Novel disseisin. Geoffrey says that he did not disseise Peter and that the assize ought to proceed; and says that lately in a. r. 48 of Hen. III., after the disturbance in Ireland, the ordinance recited in the Lord Edward's writ, hereafter following, was made by the council of the Lord Edward and the commonalty of Ireland; and that according to that ordinance Geoffrey relinquished this land which Maurice Fitz Gerald had delivered to him; that the latter occupied it, and in the time of the disturbance delivered the custody of it to Geoffrey; that the assize ought to proceed, because the Lord Edward had commanded his justiciary of Ireland that he did not wish the above ordinance to be invalidated, but rather to be upheld for the peace and tranquility of Ireland; and that if this were so the caption of the assize would be reduced to nothing. Peter says that the ordinance aforesaid was not as Geoffrey alleges, but that if it were so it was not observed; that this ordinance ought not to be inquired into by the assize but by those who were present at the making of it; that the mandate directed to the justiciary of Ireland ought not to hold good or avail the said Geoffrey, because it was not the intention of the Lord Edward to unjustly oppress any person, nor to eject Peter from the seisin which he had recovered by law and custom of Ireland, but rather to maintain him; to prove this Peter produces letters of the Lord Edward directed to the justiciary of Ireland of the latter date. Peter further says that no ordinance made as above either can or ought to infringe common right; and as he has recovered the lands against Geoffrey by assize of Novel disseisin he prays judgment whether an assize ought to be taken on an assize. Geoffrey demands that the assize proceed according to the mandate of the Lord Edward directed to the justiciary on his behalf, as the assize previously taken before Richard ought to be reputed null according to mandate of the same.

As the justices wish to be fully certified by the jurors of the assize regarding those points alleged on either side they determine that it shall be chiefly inquired whether Geoffrey, according to the above ordinance, relinquished the lands with goods and chattels thereupon or not.

The jurors say upon their oath that the above ordinance was made as alleged by the council of the Lord Edward and the commonalty of Ireland; that at the time of the disturbance Maurice Fitz Gerald sent Adam de Terreby, the said Geoffrey's valet, to Hugh de Cotes, then the said Peter's bailiff, to deliver the lands to the use of Geoffrey; that Hugh on Adam's arrival left the castle and lands through fear of Maurice, and that Adam entered the castle and lands with letters of Geoffrey, directing the burgesses and tenants there to be intente and respondent to Adam as Geoffrey's bailiff; that Adam appropriated the castle and lands to the use of Geoffrey, remained there for 15 days, and took from the Betaghii of the lands and the burgesses of the new castle [of Moylak] to the value of 10s. for his sustenance, whereof he repaid nothing; that afterwards Maurice removed Adam and put Robert Wodelok in his place to keep the castle and lands to Geoffrey's use; that he subsequently sent Adam Keting in the same way, and removed Robert; Adam collected the revenue of the lands to the use of Geoffrey for the term of Easter in the same year, to the amount of about 16 marks which were stolen from his custody; that Adam and Geoffrey according to the ordinance aforesaid in the quinzaine of Easter of the year aforesaid left the castle and lands unoccupied for 3 weeks before Peter had taken out his writ of Novel disseisin against Geoffrey, whereby he recovered his seisin; that Geoffrey's bailiffs found no goods or chattels in the castle; that Geoffrey was willing that Peter should have 16 marks of rent but did not pay them to him; that Peter after recovering seisin recovered 16 marks against Adam de Keting by writ of Replegiare facias, and that a day was given to Geoffrey and Peter in the quinzaine of Michaelmas at Dublin to hear judgment.

Afterwards the Lord Edward sent his writ to David de Barre, justiciary of Ireland, as follows:—On the part of Maurice Fitz Gerald and Geoffrey Prendergast it has been shown that on the quelling of the disturbance in Ireland it was provided and ordained in regard to the restoration of lands that all persons should have the same estate in lands, tenements, castles, wards, farms, goods, and chattels as they had at the beginning of the disturbance, namely, on the day of St. Nicholas, in a. r. 48, Hen. III. [Dec. 6, 1263]; that Maurice Fitz Gerald having by reason of the disturbance occupied the new castle of Moylak on-the-Suir, committed the custody thereof during the disturbance to Geoffrey, who was unjustly disseised thereof by R[ichard] de Vitri, Meyler de Bermingham, Basilia his wife, and Peter de Bermingham; that Maurice and Geoffrey on the confirmation of peace at Dublin, in the quinzaine of Easter in the same year, claiming no right in the castle by the occupation aforesaid, altogether abandoned it under the ordinance; and that Peter claiming to have been disseised of the castle by that occupation, brought an assize of Novel disseisin before Richard Fitz Griffin, justice assigned, against the said Maurice and Geoffrey, and caused it to be taken contrary to the form of the ordinance aforesaid in order fraudulently to exclude Geoffrey from his action of Novel disseisin. Wherefore the Lord Edward commands that the assize taken contrary to the form of the ordinance be annulled, that Geoffrey be allowed to have Edward's writ of Novel disseisin, and that he have justice according to law and custom of Ireland.

The justices having decided in consequence of this writ that the jurors of the assize should be again consulted regarding the grounds of their previous verdict, the jurors found that the ordinance had been observed between Geoffrey and Peter, and therefore it was decided according to the tenor of the writ that the assize of Novel disseisin taken before Richard Fitz Griffin be annulled, and that Geoffrey's assize of Novel disseisin against Peter and others mentioned in the writ be taken. Writ to the sheriff to cause a view to be made, &c.

Afterwards the judges proceeded to take the assize as appears in the following Record:—

The assize came to recognize whether William of Ros, Richard de Vitri, Basilia de Bermingham, Peter de Bermingham, Thomas de Flannville, William Marshall, Richard Bulleye, and Ralph Burdun disseised Geoffrey de Prendregast of his free tenement in 16 vills as before, and of 2 carucates of land and 10 marks of rent with 2 mills in Faythirkil, 1 carucate in Kiltercan, 3 carucates in Lisnegol, 1 librate of pepper in Athelis, 100 solidates of rent in Tiperdeli, Clökemalilhilt, Gariskil, and Lismiscan, 3 marcates of rent in Gorcelenan, 1 carucate in Dommor, 1 marcate of rent in Drumfin, $\frac{1}{2}$ marcate of rent in Knochenesagart, $\frac{1}{2}$ carucate in Kilbasharn, 12 solidates of rent in Balimurchud, 10 solidates of rent in Balieneuse, and 32 acres of land in Lisnescan. Richard de Vitri and Ralph Burdun are dead, William Marshall and Richard Bulley cannot be found. William of Ros says that he committed no disseisin against Geoffrey, because he says that he came thither by order of Sir Robert Fitz Warin, then sheriff of Tipperary, his lord, as his servant and clerk, to perform his office, and not to disseise any person, and this he swears. Thomas de Flannville says that he made no disseisin, but came thither as keeper of pleas of the Crown in discharge of his duty, to view a monk who had been killed, and this he swears. Basilia and Peter say that they made no disseisin, and that Basilia had no unjust seisin in severalty of the lands, tenements, and rents, but they say that Meyler de Bermingham, formerly husband of Basilia, in the court of the Lord Edward, before his justices and by his writ, recovered those lands and tenements, and that by writ of judgment of that court directed to Robert as sheriff, Meyler entered into and had seisin of those lands. Wherefore they say that they did not disseise Geoffrey, and thereof appeal to the records. Basilia further says that if any disseisin was made against Geoffrey it was not made by her, but by Robert the sheriff, his servants and Meyler. Peter adds that after Meyler, his father, had recovered the lands by judgment of the court of the Lord Edward he delivered them to him, Peter, as heir thereof, and prays that the truth thereof may be inquired into. Geoffrey says that no plea was moved in the court of the Lord Edward between Meyler and Basilia and himself regarding those lands, and that no judgment was given between them whereby he could be deprived of his free tenement. Geoffrey avows that Meyler and Basilia had by writ of right in the court of the Lord Edward impleaded William, his father, of these lands, but before this writ had been obtained Geoffrey had for $2\frac{1}{2}$ years being seised of the lands by gift of feoffment of his father, rendering him a yearly rent; and that he had received the issues of the lands till he was disseised thereof by the parties aforesaid, and thereof he prays an assize.

The assize finds that Geoffrey had been in good seisin of the lands by the gift of William his father for $2\frac{1}{2}$ years before the writ obtained in the Lord Edward's court by Meyler and Basilia, yearly rendering to the said William during his life the sum of 80 marks; that of those 80 marks, William released to Geoffrey 20 marks a year at the instance of John Fitz Thomas, Maurice Fitz Maurice, and other friends of Geoffrey; and that Geoffrey held the lands, paying to his father 80 marks a year for his life; that William of Ross committed no disseisin, but that he came thither as clerk of the county and of Sir Robert Fitz Warin, then sheriff of Tipperary, to do his duty by order of his lord, namely, to give seisin of the lands, according to the writ of judgment, to Meyler and Basilia; that Thomas de Flannille committed no disseisin, but came thither to do his duty, as the said Thomas avers; that Basilia had unjustly disseised Geoffrey of the lands, Meyler, her husband, having claimed nothing but in her right; that Peter is not in seisin of the tenements as of the livery of his father, who never made them over to him as heir, but after the death of Ralph of Wigorn, uncle of Peter, the said Peter and his mother enjoyed the disseised tenements; that William Marshall and Richard Bulleye aided the disseisin with the aforesaid; and that Geoffrey has suffered loss and injury by the disseisin to the amount of 1,000 marks.

Judgment that Geoffrey recover his seisin of the tenements with damages of 1,000 marks; that Basilia, Peter, William Marshall, and Richard Burleye, be amerced, that William of

Ros and Thomas de Flannville go without day; and that G. be amerced for a false claim. Be it known that Basilia and Peter challenged this assize before the justices.

The records and proceedings of these complaints were subsequently examined before the said Richard de Middleton, Richard of Staines, Martin of Litlebery, and Robert Fulk. As by the record of the complaint between Meyler de Bermingham, Basilia his wife, and William of Prendregast, it appeared that Meyler and Basilia had by judgment of the Lord Edward's court, before his justices at Dublin, recovered these lands against the said William, the entry which they had therein was not by disseisin but by judgment. Geoffrey appeared before the judges and alleged that William his father could not lose those lands by judgment, because he was no tenant of them, and did not hold them on the day when Meyler and Basilia's writ was obtained; nay, that Geoffrey himself held them in his demesne as of fee by feoffment of his father; and prayed that they might not proceed to judgment before his seisin had been inquired into. A day was given before the justices; Meyler, Basilia, and Geoffrey appeared on that day, and a long altercation ensued between them, because Geoffrey asserted that from before the obtaining of the writ till then he had been in seisin of the tenements; and Meyler and Basilia asserted that William, the father, and not Geoffrey, had been in seisin; Geoffrey would not verify his allegation, but contumaciously left the court; and the judges considering that in so doing he had been frivolous and futile, proceeded in the complaint, notwithstanding Geoffrey's protest, and adjudged seisin of the tenements to Meyler and Basilia. And the said Geoffrey in answer to the writ of right (a writ which is founded on right and than which there is no writ of a higher nature), challenging that he had been in seisin of the tenements on the day of the obtaining of the writ, and appearing on the appointed day would not wait nor verify his allegation, the petitioners themselves being prepared to verify the contrary. Considering then that in the record of the last assize of Novel disseisin, which Geoffrey arraigned against Peter and others, the latter pleaded that the assize ought not to be taken because Peter had claimed the same tenements against Geoffrey by a writ of the same nature, namely, a writ of Novel disseisin, and an assize could not be taken on an assize; considering that by the record of each complaint, namely, as well that before the justices at Dublin, by writ of right of the Lord Edward between Meyler and Basilia, plaintiffs, and William de Prendregast, as that of the last assizes which Geoffrey arraigned against Peter and others, it appears that the first entry which Meyler and Basilia had in the tenements was not by disseisin but by judgment of the Lord Edward's court before his justices; considering that Peter did not enter by any disseisin, but by Meyler and Basilia, who judicially disputed the lands, and thereof subsequently enfeoffed Peter, or surrendered them to him as heir; considering that 1275.

William de Bakepuz and Richard de Aston, the justices assigned to take the last assize, did not allow Peter's allegations and exceptions, nor examine the points involved in the assize, nor the record of the complaint in the Lord Edward's court by writ of right, and proceeded contrary to law and custom of Ireland, which enjoys English law, to take the assize, and awarded damages to Geoffrey, it is adjudged that Peter shall recover such estate and seisin in the lands as he had when the assize was taken, and that the damages, if any, levied out of Peter's goods and chattels shall be restored to him. Geoffrey is amerced; James de Audley, justiciary, and Fromund le Brun, Chancellor of Ireland, are commanded, as well on behalf of the K. as of the lieutenants of the Lord Edward, to execute this judgment; and to take with them sufficient posse of the county of Tipperary, arrest those who resist, and safely keep them till further orders from the K. or the Lord Edward's lieutenants.

The said Geoffrey prays that these proceedings of Richard de Middleton may be examined and error therein amended. And as mention is made of a plea moved by writ of right between Meyler de Bermingham and Basilia his wife, plaintiffs, and William Prendelgast, tenant, the justiciary of Ireland has sent that record with the others, as follows:—

Meyler de Bermingham, and Basilia his wife, demand against William de Prendregast the vills of Falnacarkil, Kilterethan, and Lisnegol, as Basilia's inheritance, whereof William ousts her unjustly, because Ralph of Wigorn, Basilia's grandfather, was thereof seised in his demesne as of fee in the time of King John, father of the K. that now is; and from Ralph the right in the vills descended to William of Wigorn as his son and heir; and from William that right descended to Ralph of Wigorn as his son and heir; but as that right could not descend to the same Ralph, because no one can be lord and heir, the right descended to the said Basilia as daughter and heir of William, and sister of Ralph.

After special pleas between the parties regarding the two first named vills, William by aid of court vouches the Bishop of Lismore to warranty of the vill of Lisnegol, &c. The morrow of the close of Easter is given to the parties to hear judgment at Dublin. William de Prendelgast comes and removes Adam of Derby and Richard de Prendelgast, his attorneys, and wishes to prosecute in his own person.

Essoigns taken at Dublin on the morrow of the close of Easter. William de Prendelgast against Meyler de Bermingham, of a plea of land remaining for judgment, and of a default challenged at Cashel. Thomas Bishop of Lismore, vouched to warranty, is beyond the seas.

Fourth day of the close of Easter. Dotata wife of William, whom he had married after obtaining the writ, of the third part of the land, by Geoffrey son of the said William. And afterwards William assumed the religious habit. A day was given to the parties in three weeks after Easter to hear judgment at Dublin.

Meyler de Bermingham, for himself and Basilia his wife, appear on the 4th day against William de Prendelgaste, of a plea as above. William comes not. It is adjudged that the vill be taken into the hand of the Lord Edward. Geoffrey de Prendelgast and his father are notified to be at Dublin in the octaves of St. John the Baptist.

Pleas at Dublin in the octaves of St. John the Baptist. The sheriff was commanded to take the vill into the hands of the Lord Edward, &c., and the sheriff returns that he has done so, and that William had been summoned. Further pleading by Geoffrey, and he thereupon withdraws. Judgment that Meyler and Basilia recover seisin of the vill.

After hearing these records read, Geoffrey prays that the proceedings of Richard de Middleton be examined, and if by error he had invalidated the judgment in the assize of Novel disseisin taken before the justices, he asks that this proceeding be corrected. And although Meyler and Basilia had recovered the tenements against William Pendelgast by judgment, nevertheless Geoffrey, who held the tenements before the writ of Meyler and Basilia had been obtained, was not a party to the plea, nor named in the writ, and therefore could not be bound by the judgment. And though Geoffrey had lost his seisin by judgment, it is usual for the K.'s court in such a case to adjudicate disseisin. Meyler and Basilia only recovered seisin of the tenements which William held on the day when the writ of right was obtained. Nor do the reasons which Richard de Middleton inserted in his proceeding hold, namely, that Geoffrey, before judgment on the writ of right, had appeared before the justices and alleged that William his father, could not lose the tenements because he, Geoffrey, and not William his father, held them, and prayed that this might be inquired into, and so voluntarily made himself a party when he is not found on the record. Geoffrey only challenged his estate, which he could well do without making himself a party; it fully appears by confession of Peter's attorney that Geoffrey never prayed for an inquisition regarding his allegation. Nor is it an objection that Peter recovered by assize against Geoffrey part of the tenements, for that assize was quashed.

Judgment:—It seems to the court that William de Bakepuz and Richard de Aston rightly proceeded in taking the assize of Novel disseisin, which Geoffrey arraigned against Peter and the others named in the writ; Geoffrey shall again have his seisin which he had previously recovered before William and Richard by writ of Novel disseisin, with his damages taxed by the said justices at 1,000 marks. Michaelmas. 1164. John de la Roche appears against Theobald le Botvler of a plea of 3 carucates of land in the honour of Lusk, which Theobald demands against him. 1177. Sir William de la Rochelle prays the K.'s grace regarding 3 carucates of wood and mountain in Ireland, which belonged to Oculan, an Irishman, in Desmond, and which William after the death of the Irishman took to farm for 7 years from Sir Robert Burnel. Hugh of Hereford, who came to improve the K.'s demesnes in Ireland, deprived him of this land before the term expired. Prays the K.'s grant thereof for a term.
Let him show his evidence.

The said William further prays the K. regarding a debt demanded of him in the Exchequer of Ireland, for which his chattels have been distrained by the K.'s ministers, who have not accounted for the money they have raised. He, therefore, prays a letter to the [justiciary] and Treasurer that he may have redress in this matter.
Let him have a letter thereupon.

He further states that having been assigned with others to go to Cork to provide for Sir Robert Burnel and others, justices of assize, no allowance out of the Exchequer had been made to him for his outlay. The justiciary of the land ordered him by writ to levy

1178. The Prior and convent of the Holy Trinity, Dublin, with the chapters of Kildare and Leighlin, their sees being vacant, allege as an obstacle against the K., that though the K. may confer prebends in the church of Dublin in vacancy of its see, he cannot during vacancy confer the archdeaconry annexed thereto. To the Archdeacon of Dublin in time of vacancy all the jurisdiction and all the spirituality of the see and its suffragans has ever belonged. Nevertheless the said Prior and convent of the Holy Trinity in the year 1200 and being archdeacon by the K.'s collation, cease not to resist in prejudice of the K.'s right, and do not fear the greater excommunication pronounced against them by authority of the archdeacon. As they have persisted for 40 days to the K.'s dishonour and disherison, the archdeacon requires the K.'s counsel, invoking the aid of the secular arm against the excommunicated persons. Who Say that the citizens of Limerick took from Maurice Fitz Gerald, then justiciary, a fishing pool in the water of Limerick for a term of 3 years only, at a rent of 100 marks, payable at the Exchequer, Dublin, to Hen. III., then King, which they fully paid; that on the expiration of the term, 25 years ago, they offered the pool to the said Maurice, who refused to take it from them, but compelled them to retain it against their will; that on Maurice's death they offered it to John Fitz Geoffrey, his successor, and subsequently to all succeeding justiciaries, and they would not take it, but compelled the citizens to hold it:

That the pool is worth in common years and time of peace 20 marks a year, beyond costs of repairs and maintenance:

That of the 40 carucates of land which the citizens ought to hold of the K. for 40*l.* a year, 16 carucates lie waste and uncultivated, owing to the war of the Irish on the other side of the bridge of the city, towards Thomond, of which 16 carucates . . . the citizens from the time when Sir John Fitz Thomas first entered Thomond, to wit, 17 years ago, had not received profit but hindrance . . . and also by the war of Bren Roch Obhren; the residue of the 40 carucates, namely, 24 carucates . . . , whereof the Bishop of Limerick holds 10½ carucates of the K.'s gift, as the site [pro sede] of the pool aforesaid, rendering therefor at the Exchequer of Dublin 10*l.* a year, which are yearly allowed in their fee to the citizens; and the Bishop pays 10*s.* a year and no more for the ½ carucate; That the Prior of the house of St. Mary of Limerick holds in frankalmoign one carucate of the K.'s confirmation for 20*s.* a year payable to the citizens; the infirm of the house of St. Laurence of Limerick hold likewise in frankalmoign one carucate of the K.'s gift free from rent; and so there remain in demesne to the citizens 11½ carucates, which the jurors extend at 20*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* a year; That on account of the occupation of the said 16 carucates of waste lands 7*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year ought justly to be deducted from the farm of the citizens, provided that those carucates lie waste:

That the hitherto existing justiciaries of Ireland often took great and divers prises [prise] from the citizens, but [they know not] what satisfaction has been made therefor to the citizens; the latter have letters [proving the prises] taken by the justiciaries:

That it was never decreed or ordained by the magnates or commonalty of Ireland, that the citizens should have [20 marks a year] from the counties, cities, or burghs in Ireland, for the burning of their city or other damage done to them; but that Sir Richard de la Rochelle, then justiciary, Sir Walter de Burgh, Sir Geoffrey de Ge[neville], and Theobald, the cupbearer, and no other magnates were present at [the making of] that decree, which was [never confirmed] by common assent:

That the citizens of Limerick use all the liberties and free customs used by the citizens of Dublin, and that articles of those liberties are contained in the charter of the latter citizens; that one of the articles frequently turns to the damage of the K. and of the country, namely, that when one of the citizens publicly kills [a man] in the city, and purges himself of the deed by 40 men, he is quit of the felony. He shall also have 20*l.* in lieu of fee for Michaelmas last past for his requirements in Ireland. Further order for payment to him of 40*l.*, namely, 20*l.* for his expenses in that country incurred in carrying on the K.'s affairs enjoined to him, and 20*l.* for his expenses on the K.'s service in England. Dec. 8.

1184. The K. to the justiciary of Ireland. William of Northfield, late Archdeacon of Dublin, having paid the debt of nature, the K. gives to William de Salinis the archdeaconry of Dublin which is of the K.'s gift and is in the K.'s hand by reason of vacancy in the see of Dublin. Mandate to the Dean and chapter of St. Patrick's to give to William a stall in the choir and a place in the chapter. As the Prior and chapter of the Holy Trinity, Dublin, had asserted that this mandate of the K. redounds to their prejudice, because the Archdeacons of Dublin for the time being were wont in vacancies of the see to present to them, and to receive from them the jurisdiction of the spirituality of the city and diocese of Dublin; and as they had asked that the K. should present William to them in order that he might receive that jurisdiction from them, the K. was unwilling to derogate from the right of the parties. He had therefore called to his presence the Dean and chapter of St. Patrick's and the Prior and convent of the Holy Trinity with all acts and muniments touching this matter, and had appointed as auditors between the parties Thomas Bek and Robert de Scardeburgh, clerks. The matter having been debated for several days, the Prior and convent were asked whether they could produce an instance of a presentation of an archdeacon [having been made to them by Kings of England in times past, or any other proof to inform the K.'s conscience regarding their right. On their replying that they had none, they were asked whether it appeared just or right to them that the K. should on their nude assertion revoke the mandate which he had sent to the Dean and chapter in favour of William; to this they answered that for the sake of peace and reverence to the K. they wished that William should remain as archdeacon. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to cause the archdeacon to have the same peaceful enjoyment of his archdeaconry as his predecessors had had, and not to allow him to be impeded by the prior and convent. The justiciary shall however provide that the prior and convent shall not be molested by the archdeacon. Windsor. [Pat., 4 Edw. I., m. 34 dors.]

March 8. 1205. Geoffrey de Gyenville, justiciary of Ireland, to the K. Having been engaged on divers matters touching the K. in Ireland, and especially towards Connaught, could not go to Limerick as directed, to take an inquisition regarding the grievances of the citizens of Limerick, and had therefore by advice of the council of Ireland substituted John de Sanford, the K.'s escheator of that country, who had business in Limerick, to take this inquisition. The inquisition which the escheator had taken he sends inclosed under the seal of the latter and the seals of the jurors, together with the K.'s original writ. As the K. had commanded him in that writ to impart his council in this matter, he states that the inquisition had been properly taken except in regard to the extent of 11 carucates of land in demesne at 20*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* a year. The justiciary had learnt for certain that this land is worth at least 30*l.* in common years. The citizens can pay the K.'s rent without loss and without the waste land; but they make a great stand against the enemies of those marches, and have suffered much damage by the Irish and by the prises of the K.'s justiciaries; and therefore the K. would do well to give them a grant. On the other hand a point has arisen, that if a man of their franchise openly kill another man within the city, and he purge himself of the deed by 40 men he shall be quit of the felony. It would be well to withdraw this, for it seems against right and the Crown. 1207. By mandate of the K. the Barons of the Exchequer, London, caused Rustikellus, merchant of Florence, to come before them on the morrow of the Ascension [May 15], to render his account to the Lady Alienor, mother of the K., and to Christiana de Mariscis, of the issues of Christiana's lands in Ireland for 3 years and 8 weeks from Easter, 56 Hen. III., during which time Rustikellus had custody of them. Whereupon the said Queen and Christiana say that Rustikellus had not rendered his account nor answered as he ought to have done for those issues, whereby they are damnified to the amount of 2,000*l.* Rustikellus acknowledges that he was bailiff of Christiana in Ireland and custodee of her lands there during 3 years and 13 days consecutively, and that on the expiration of that time Thomas de Blakeham came to Ireland and handed to him a letter from Christiana directing him to be intente and respondent to Thomas as her seneschal in all matters relating to the custody of the lands; and that by authority of that mandate he rendered his final account to Thomas as seneschal for all the time aforesaid; and he says that he is not bound to render another account. The said Queen and Christiana pray that Rustikellus may produce the mandate, and his acquittance on the account; he produces nothing, but says that Thomas after the account rendered retained all the rolls and vouchers of the account, and did not give him another acquittance. The Queen and Christiana pray judgment regarding Rustikellus of this, that he acknowledges having been bailiff as aforesaid of Christiana, and that he produces nothing regarding the account but his bare assertion. As it appeared to the Barons that they ought not without the K. and his council, to proceed regarding contracts of this kind made in Ireland, they therefore gave the parties a continuance till the quinzaine of Trinity; and meanwhile the K. and his Council are to be spoken with regarding the premises.

Afterwards Rustikellus produced Christiana's letter directed to him.

At length both parties put themselves on the verdict and record of Geoffrey de Gyenville, justiciary, and Fromund le Brun, Chancellor of Ireland. In the quinzaine of Michaelmas the said justiciary and Chancellor sent their verdict and record in the premises by their letters in custody of the Remembrancer. It is contained in the record that Rustikellus commenced to render his account, but did not render a final one, because he would not charge himself with many items wherewith he ought to have charged himself.

Judgment that Rustikellus render his account to Christiana on Monday next before the feast of All Saints [Oct. 26].

Letters of Geoffrey de Geynville, justiciary of Ireland, whereby in pursuance of the K.'s mandate he certifies to the Barons of the Exchequer, London, that Sir Fromund le Brun, Chancellor of Ireland, and Thomas de Blekeham had been assigned by the Lady Christiana de Mariseis to audit the account of the above-named Rustikellus; that the Chancellor having been prevented doing so by the multiplicity of the K.'s business, had appointed his clerk, Augustin of Nottingham, for the purpose; that Augustin and Thomas had commenced auditing the account, but that Thomas and Rustikellus not having agreed regarding it had prayed the justiciary to name new auditors; that the justiciary had thereupon assigned for the purpose John de Sanford and Thomas de Chedeworthe; that on a day named Thomas and Rustikellus had laid their respective rolls before the auditors, who found them to correspond; that the latter having commenced did not proceed with the audit, because Rustikellus did not charge himself with items with which he ought to have charged himself; that at length Rustikellus said that he should not render another account; and that nothing further was done in the matter, as the said John had testified to the justiciary. Thomas before crossing over into England had stated that he had found errors in the account, and that they had stopped the audit. Wherefore it appears to the justiciary that Rustikellus had rendered no final account. Thomas had received the rolls as appears by the record of the Chancellor and John de Saunford. The justiciary sends enclosed in another letter by the clerk of Lady Christiana the mandate which the K. had directed to him in the premises. Trim. Aug. 24 a. r. 4 Edw. I. [*Exchequer of Pleas. 1212. Henry de Audley, son and heir of James de Audley, formerly justiciary of Ireland, had represented that the Barons of the Exchequer had caused him to be distrained by his lands and chattels to render at the Exchequer in the quinzaine of Easter an account of the whole time during which his father was justiciary, also an account of debts due by James to the K. and the citizens of Cork, and for two reliefs due by Henry himself to the K. Henry is suffering from illness and cannot appear at Easter; and his father's rolls touching his account are still with his clerks and bailiffs. Alienor who was the wife of John de Verdun, deceased, had, by judgment of the Court of Common Pleas, recovered against Theobald, the said John's son and heir, her dower in England. It was afterwards agreed between Alienor and Theobald's attorneys in that country, that if Theobald gave her that dower together with her dower out of her late husband's other lands in Dyveleck [Duleek], Ireland, whereof a plea was pending before the K.'s justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, Theobald should have for his life out of the dower which she had previously recovered against him in Uriel the value of her dower in Welbelewe, Ewyas, and Lodelawe in England, and Duleek in Ireland, by extent thereof to be made, Theobald to have no seisin of the lands in Uriel until Alienor should obtain seisin of her dower aforesaid; all which is contained in a deed made in the K.'s court between Alienor and Theobald's attorneys. Nevertheless, though Theobald has not yet caused Alienor to have her dower in England according to the tenor of the deed, the justiciary and Chancellor have given to him seisin of Alienor's dower in Uriel, by an unjust extent. William and Joan say that this forest is not appurtenant to the manor of Tagmon, but to the manor of Wexford, and that when the Earl's lands were extended that forest was not extended as appurtenant to the former but to the latter manor. Therefore Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, is commanded to certify to the K. by the extent, if any was made, of that forest; and if it cannot be found by extent to which manor the forest is appurtenant he shall then inquire on oath whether the forest is appurtenant to the manor of Tagmon [Taghmum] or the manor of Wexford. The inquisition shall be certified to the K. under the justiciary's seal in one month of Easter. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 26, Rot. 47 dors, and No. 28, Rot. 17.]

The merchants of Ireland had represented to the K. that the collectors of the new custom in that country exacted from them 10s. for each sack of wool, because sacks in Ireland are larger than in England, while for each sack of wool in England, which, though of less weight, is of equal value, they only exact half a mark. The K., as a grace to the merchants, commands the justiciary not to exact or allow to be exacted till further orders more than half a mark for each sack of wool. Westminster. [*Pat., 4 Edw. Hilary. 1312. Nicholas le Marchant and his associates, merchants of Bruges and Dykemuth, in Flanders, appeared against Thomas de Wynton, burgess and formerly Mayor of Dublin, of a plea of 54 sacks of wool belonging to those merchants. This wool had long before the contention between King Henry III, the K.'s father, and the Countess of Flanders been arrested at Dublin by men of those parts. The K. had commanded the Mayor of Dublin to cause the wool to be delivered to the merchants, or to certify why it was not delivered. The bail are amerced and the justiciary is commanded to seize the mayor's goods and chattels until he find good security to come and answer before the K. in 5 weeks of Easter. After Ralph had had for some time seisin of the custody Thomas violently deprived him of it, and married the heir, then under age, without Ralph's licence. Ralph caused Thomas to be summoned before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, before whom Thomas said that he had justly married the heir because he had brought the custody for 40 marks from Robert de Thurgelby, to whom Ralph had sold it, whereby justice was deferred to Ralph. The heir did not come. Mandate to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, to notice Thomas and the heir to appear. The justiciary returned that he had noticed them. Wherefore the justiciary is commanded to take into the K.'s hand all the lands and chattels of Thomas and the heir, and there safely keep them till they shall give security to appear in the quinzaine of Easter. By ordinance of King Henry, the K's father, and his predecessors Kings of England, all measures throughout the realm ought to be one and the same. 5 Edw. I. 1400. Robert de Ufford to the K. The affairs of the latter in Ireland are much improved. The thieves who were in Glendelory have departed, many of them having gone to another strong place. The Irish offer 7,000 marks for a grant from the K. of the common laws of the English, and much desire to have an answer thereupon. 1405. Thomas de Cheddeworth, clerk, to R[obert] Bishop of Bath and Wells. Sir R[obert] Bagod, the bishop's friend, had derived no emolument from the custody which the bishop had obtained from the K. for him, but had undergone great expense in improving its lands; he had lost all he had spent by the death of an infant, the only heir of his father. The land had devolved on a person of full age, and Sir Robert is desirous that the bishop should provide him, if possible, with another ward and marriage in the manor of Swords [Swedes]. In order to show the value of the latter custody, sends inclosed with the presents an extent which he had caused to be made after the death of William de Aveny. The labour which Sir Robert devotes to the K.'s service, and the affection which he entertains for it, deserve consideration. Thanks the bishop from his heart for all he had done for him. Finglas. The morrow of St. Nicholas a. r. 6.

[1276-1282.] 1408. The K. to Robert de Offord, justiciary of Ireland. Rejoices exceedingly to learn by the justiciary's letters that the state and peace of Ireland were ameliorated; greatly commends the justiciary's diligence in this respect, and hopes for a continuation of his successful and virile exertions. As to the offer which the Irish community make to the K. of 8,000 marks for a grant of the use of English laws in Ireland, the K. wishes the justiciary to know that having fully deliberated with his Council, it seemed meet to them that a grant of English laws should be made, because the laws which the Irish use are detestable to God, and so contrary to all law that they ought not to be deemed laws. The common consent of the people, or at least of the well affected prelates and magnates of Ireland must, however, first regularly intervene. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to ascertain the opinions of the prelates and magnates by a conference, and having agreed for a higher fine in money, to arrange with them, or with the larger and sounder portion of them, what may seem most for the K.'s honour and advantage. They shall, however, be prepared to send to the K., for once only, when required, a certain number of good and valiant foot soldiers. [Royal Letters, No. 2679.]

Jan. 28. 1415. The K.'s writ commanding the justiciary of Ireland to cause the K.'s pools and fishery in the water of Limerick to be extended and delivered to Robert de St. Edmund, as in the abstract immediately following. [Fine Rolls, 6 Edw. I., m. 25, and Orig. 6, Edw. I., m. 6.]

Jan. 28. 1416. The K.'s writ to the justiciary of Ireland, commanding him to cause the K.'s pools in the water of Limerick, in which salmon and eels are taken, and the K.'s fishery in that water, to be extended, and to cause those pools and fishery to be delivered according to the extent to Robert de St. Edmund for his services; to hold during pleasure. Robert shall answer at the Exchequer, Dublin, according to that extent. Dover.

Petition of Robert de St. Edmund, the K.'s sergeant, to Robert Burnell, Bishop of Bath, Chancellor. Had remained in the K.'s service in Ireland for 16 years, having been taken over thither by Sir James de Audley when justiciary, and retained in that service at 100s. a year and 2 robes. Had received two robes in the time of Sir James, but none of the 100s. After the death of Sir James had remained on the K.'s service in the time of Sir Maurice Fitz Maurice, Sir Geoffrey de Geneville, Sir Robert de Ufford, and the Bishop of Waterford, still living. During this time he neither received nor asked for his fee because he came to Dover to the K. in the Chancery in the 6th year of his reign, represented his service, and prayed that he might have the pools and fishery belonging to the K. in the waters of Limerick, rendering so much at the Exchequer, Dublin, as they might by extent be valued at in common years. The K. granted this to him by writ.

The writ having been received the Treasurer delivered to Robert the pools and fisheries without making the extent ordered. Robert paid at the Exchequer, Dublin, 20 marks a year for the issues of the pools and fisheries. At the request of men of Limerick, who then held the pools and fisheries on lease, an inquisition was taken by the K.'s writ sent to Sir Geoffrey de Geneville, then justiciary, and by that inquisition it was found that the pools and fisheries were only worth, in common years, 20 marks a year at the highest, a valuation above that of the jurors. The inquisition was sent from Ireland into England, and will be found in the Treasury where the inquisitions are placed of a. r. 4.

At the end of 5 years Robert was by writ commanded to render an account of the issues of the pools and fisheries. Robert answered in his account that he had made payment in full, because by the inquisition before taken by the K.'s order the pools and fisheries were only worth 20 marks a year, and prayed the Treasurer that he might be quit for 20 marks, or that a new inquisition might be taken. They would not do it, but harassed him for 20l. a year; and on this account he is charged with 20l. a year. Robert therefore prays that the inquisition taken in Ireland and returned into England be sought for, and that he be not charged with more than the pools and fisheries are worth in common years. [Inq. P.M., 6 Edw. I., No. 105, Norman French.]

Jan. 28. 1417. The K. to his justiciary of Ireland. Robert de St. Edmund, the K.'s servant, had shown that James de Audley, formerly justiciary of Ireland, had granted to him the chattels of Henry Judas hanged for felony, and which were valued at 13l., in compensation for the losses he had sustained in an expedition with James against Irish rebels in Desmond. Milo of Norhaugh, coroner of the county of Waterford, detains those chattels, and will not deliver them to Robert. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to cause Robert to have the chattels, in compensation of his losses, according to the grant aforesaid. Dover. [Close, 6 Edw. I., m. 13.]

Jan. 28. 1418. The K. to the same justiciary. The said Robert de St. Edmund had shown that James de Audley, lately justiciary of Ireland, having deputed him to provision certain castles in Ireland with corn and other victuals, Robert rendered his account thereof to James' attorney and was acquitted. There remained due to him for victuals 10l. 10s. 4d., which have not been repaid on behalf of the K. The K. therefore commands the justiciary that if it appears by the account that this is so he cause Robert to have that amount. Dover. [Close, 6 Edw. I., m. 13.]

Feb. 2. 1419. The K. to the Dean and chapter of Ossory. The K. had lately prohibited R[] Bishop of Ossory, who had lately come to England, from going to foreign parts without the K.'s special licence; he had nevertheless proceeded thither without licence, for which his temporalities were taken into the K.'s hand. The K., however, subsequently, at the request of Napoleon, Cardinal deacon of the Holy Roman Church, of special grace restored his temporalities to the Bishop, provided that he should submit to the K. regarding his contempt and transgression, and should answer therefor at the K.'s pleasure. The Dean and chapter not having restored, as they had by writ been directed to do, the temporalities in their custody, the K. commands them to restore them, together with the issues received from May 10. The K. wishes to exonerate them from that day. If there is any cause why they ought not to do so, they shall certify it to the K. Waltham. [Royal Letters, No. 3,614.]

Feb. 4. 1420. Luke and Percival of Lucca, and their associates, merchants of Lucca, ought to answer to the K. for all the money arising from the new custom on wools, skins, and hides in Ireland. lains to cause it to be restored, so that the merchants may answer to the K. for the whole amount as they are charged therewith. The Treasurer, Barons, and chamberlains shall not for the future meddle with the collection or receipt of the custom, but shall allow the merchants freely to collect it according to the power given to them. Feb. 5. 1422. The K.'s writ to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland. It has been shown to the K. on the part of Geoffrey de Prendelgast that William his father, whose heir he is, had held of the K. lands and tenements at Farnan, for which he owed suit from 3 weeks to 3 weeks at the K.'s court of Dungarvan; and that William having committed certain defaults at that court, Richard de Turberville, then the K.'s bailiff of that court, took into the K.'s hand 10 marcs of rent in Farnan belonging to William, which are of Geoffrey's hereditary right, and are still unjustly withheld from Geoffrey. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to take an inquisition as to whether these facts are so, and to return it to the K. with this writ in one month of Easter. Dover.

Inquisition taken at Clomele [Clonmel] on Monday next after the feast of St. Dunstan, a. r. 6 [23 May 1278], before Robert de Ufford, justiciary, and the following jurors, namely:—Richard de Valle, Jordan de Mareys, William of London, Richard Christopher, Griffin Christopher, Gilbert Role, Richard Ostiler, Adam Brun, Griffin Fitz Adam, Philip Edeward, William Walensis, and John de Valle, Who Say that King John, grandfather of the K., enfeoffed Philip of Wigorn with lands in Munster, which comprised a theodum in Eskercevene; that the lands and tenements of Fernan are in that theodum; that Philip died seised of those lands; that afterwards Philip of Wigorn, nephew of Philip, and his next heir, entered into those lands and enfeoffed Geoffrey de Marisco of the theodum aforesaid and of the tenement of Fernan; that Geoffrey made an exchange of that theodum and tenement with William Prendegast, father of Geoffrey, for a theodum in Oconil, called Maccaveni; that William Prendegast received 8 marks rent out of the tenement of Farnan; that afterwards Geoffrey de Turbeville, who was Treasurer of Ireland, distrained the said William to render suit at the court of Dungarvan; that William would not render suit, and that therefore the Treasurer aforesaid took into the K.'s hand the 8 marks rent aforesaid. They further Say that that rent of 8 marks ought to belong to the said Geoffrey as heir of the said William,

- 1450. The justiciary of Ireland had been commanded to return [before the K. in England] the record of a plaint had before the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, between Eudo la Zuche and Milisent his wife, plaintiffs, and Geoffrey Bishop of Ossory, whereby the plaintiffs claim to present to the church of Achebo. The plaintiffs allege error in the plaint.
Record sent and herein recited. Eudo and Milisent plead in it that the church belongs to them at present, because King Henry the K.'s father presented the last incumbent, namely, Gilbert de Paunton, deceased, who was admitted and instituted because George de Cantilupe, brother of Milisent and whose heir she is, was under age and in custody of the K. The Bishop disturbs their presentation and they claim damages of 1,000l. The Bishop answers that the church is not vacant, but full, namely, by the presentation of William of Athy. Eudo and Milisent say that if the church is full it is so by the injury of the bishop, because they had presented John de Kirkeby thereto within the term limited, namely, 4 months. The bishop says that they made no presentation to him within the time limited, but that that time having elapsed he had conferred the church on William by authority of [the Council of] Lateran, and of this he puts himself on the country. Eudo and Milisent say that their presentation was within the time limited, and likewise put themselves on the country.
Eudo and Milisent assign as error in the plaint that in England it was an established custom that bishops cannot confer benefices by authority of the Council of Lateran, except after a lapse of not less than 6 months, and Ireland ought to be governed by the laws and customs prevailing in England. The judges of the Court of Common Pleas, Dublin, decided that an inquisition should be taken whether the bishop conferred the church after a lapse of 4 months or not.
Afterwards the bishop grants that he will avoid [deincumbrare] the church, and admit on the presentation of Eudo and Milisent; and for this they remit their damages. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 39, Rot. 16.]

July 13. 1474. The K.'s writ to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland. On the part of Geoffrey de Prendegaste it had been shown to the K. that John de Prendegaste his brother, whose heir he is, having been at his death seised in fee of lands and tenements in Ardenesillach', and Geoffrey having after John's death entered into those lands and peaceably enjoyed a lengthy seisin of them, according to law and custom of Ireland, Richard de la Rochelle, then justiciary of Ireland, ejected him without reasonable cause, and seized the lands into the K.'s hand, seisin thereof being still unjustly withheld from him. The K. wishing to be certified regarding the premises, and to render justice to Geoffrey, commands the justiciary by the oath of good men of his bailiwick to inquire regarding the premises, whether the lands ought by law and custom of Ireland to belong to Geoffrey as brother and heir of John, why Richard seized them into the K.'s hand, whether the K. has any right therein, and if so what right. The inquisition with this writ shall be returned to the K. wherever he may be in England in one month of Michaelmas. Windsor.

Inquisition taken at Dublin on Monday next after the feast of St. Gregory the Pope, in a. r. 8 [18 March 1279-80], by the following jurors, namely:—John le Bret, John de Penrys, Griffin Christopher, Matthew le Brun, Geoffrey le Bret, Walter de Valle, William de Carreu, Maurice le Port, William Fitz Reymund, Adam de Cantynton, Roger Fitz Jacob, John of Meath, Richard Coytyf, Gerald de Stanton, and Philip Edward.

Who Say that John de Prendegast, brother of Geoffrey de Prendegast, was seised in fee at his death of the above lands in Ardenesylach of the gift of John son of Thomas; that Geoffrey,

John's brother and heir, after the latter's death, entered therein and had good seisin thereof; that Richard de la Rochelle, then justiciary of Ireland, ejected Geoffrey from the lands and seized them into the K.'s hand for the following reasons:—John King of England gave in fee farm to Sir Thomas Fitz Anthony his lands of Decies and Desmond at a rent of 200 marks a year; he died seised thereof having had 5 daughters; on the death of the fifth of them without heirs, her share descended to her 4 sisters, of whom Gerard de Rupe married one, Geoffrey de Norrach another, Stephen de Archedeane the third, and John son of Thomas the fourth; Gerard, Geoffrey, and Stephen went against the K. in the war of Kildare, and could not therefore obtain pardon for their lands aforesaid; but John husband of the fourth sister then sided with the K., and had at the Exchequer, Dublin, as his purparty, a part of those lands, but the jurors know not how much; afterwards John crossed over twice or thrice to the Lord Edward, praying for all the said lands of Decies and Desmond at 500 [pounds or marks] a year, and the Lord Edward enfeoffed him for that rent; John had charters and letters patent in duplicate, touching that feoffment, and also the Lord Edward's writ of seisin directed to Sir Stephen de Lungespeye then justiciary of Ireland; the latter said that he should not give John seisin of the lands because he had openly deceived the Lord Edward, and that he should not give any seisin until he should have conferred with the Lord Edward's Council and the other magnates of Ireland; John answered that he should without delay take seisin of the lands, and with this answer he left the justiciary; John moreover went throughout the whole country directing the sub-sergeants [subservientes] to cause to be summoned all free tenants and others in the county to come before him; they did so, and he showed them his charter and letters patent of the Lord Edward, commanding them to be intente and respondent to him as their lord, and they rendered fealty to him; he thus of his own authority, without the justiciary, sheriff, or chief sergeant, entered into seisin of the lands, and so died seised of them.

The jurors say that John was wont in each term to offer to the Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, his rent for the lands, but then they would not receive it of him, because he never had seisin by the said justiciary or other bailiffs of the Lord Edward in Ireland, and because the Lord Edward had been deceived; that they know no other right which the Lord Edward had in the lands; that for the above reason Richard de la Rochelle, then justiciary of Ireland, took into the hands of the Lord Edward the lands in Ardenesylach, and the other lands in Decies and Desmond, and that the said Geoffrey de Prendegast had and has, as brother and heir of said John, right as above to the said lands of Ardsylach by reason of the feoffment of the said John son of Thomas.

[Endorsed.] It seems that this person ought to be restored, saving the right of the K. and others; the K. will prosecute against him in order that he may justly recover under his feoffment. He shall answer when restored without essoign. [Inq. P. M., 6 Edw. I., No. 41.]

1475. The K.'s writ to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland. Hugh son of William of Olton' had arraigned a jury of 24 knights before Roger Liveday and John de Mettingham, in order to convict the jurors in an assize of Mort d'Ancester of having falsely sworn that William, Hugh's father, did not die seized of $\frac{3}{4}$ of a messuage, 50 acres of land, 2 acres of meadow, and 10 solidates of rent in Olton'. The 24 knights in consequence of William having died out of England, being unable to certify whether he had made a feoffment of those lands, prayed that the suit might be respited till the return of the justices, in order that meanwhile some person might be sent to Ireland to certify more fully regarding the premises, and this was granted to them. The K. thereupon commands the justiciary by the oath of good men of the venue of Dungaluwy to inquire regarding points referred to in the following inquisition.

Inquisition taken at Aneri [Ardnaree] in Connaught, before Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, on Thursday next after the feast of St. Luke the Evangelist, a. r. 6 [Oct. 20, 1278], and by the following jurors, namely:—Walter Marshal, Richard le Blund, Thomas Applegard, Elias le Keu, John Traherne, Alexander Bastard, William le Wite, of Foran, Robert Fitz Peter, Hugh de Mortimer, Adam Lathred, William de Lenche, and Nicholas Miauth, Who say that William father of Hugh of Olton' aforesaid died at Dungaliu in Ireland seized of $\frac{3}{4}$ of a messuage, 50 acres of land, 2 acres of meadow, and 10 solidates of rent in Olton'; that William while in Ireland did not give those tenements to John de Blosmeville, nor make a charter of feoffment thereof to him; that William sent no writing sealed with his seal to William de Oddinggesheles, chief lord of the fee, to put John in seisin of the tenements; and that John was not put in seisin of the tenements during the life of William. The K. had by his letters patent granted to Thomas de Clare that when the men of Glindelore should be pacified or quelled Thomas should have a general summons of knights' fees and other military services due to the K. in Ireland, in order to bring peace to his land of Thomond. The men of Glindelore being now pacified and quelled the K. commands Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, to cause Thomas to have the above summons and services. Clarendon. [Close, 6 *Edw. 1477. Letters of Pope Nicholas [III.] directed to the K. Brother John de Derlenton, of the order of Dominicans, and Masters Henry and William, the K.'s messengers, had laid before the Pope, that the K. was desirous that the annual tribute of 1,000 marks, in which the latter was bound on account of the kingdom of England and Ireland, should henceforth be paid by the hands of certain abbots and priors of that kingdom, out of whose monasteries the K. was prepared to assign sufficient possessions for the purpose; if the abbots and priors failed to pay, the K. in conjunction with the Pope would compel them to do so. In reply the Pope assures the K. that he is desirous of complying with his wishes, but having conferred with his brethren he plainly tells the K. that this proposal would tend neither to the honour of the Apostolic See nor the K.'s advantage. The Pope therefore proposes to make no change in what had been so long and so solemnly done in regard to the tribute by the predecessors both of the Pope and of the K. Viterbo. Calends of August in the first year of the Pope's pontificate. [Papal Bulls, Nicholas [III.]]

1482. The K.'s writ to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland. N[icholas] Archbishop of Armagh, Primate of Ireland, having shown that he ought to have, and that his predecessors were wont to have Wreck of the sea in the tenement of Tarmenfechin, but that the justiciary would not allow him to have Wreck, the K. commands the justiciary secretly to inquire according to his fealty and discretion as to the K.'s right herein, and to certify thereupon to the K. Salop.

Inquisition taken by the K.'s writ at Droweda [Drogheda] on the morrow of St. Catherine the Virgin, a. r. 7 [26 Nov. 1278] before Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, as to whether Nicholas Archbishop of Armagh, Primate of Ireland, or his predecessors, ought to have or were wont to have Wreck of the sea in the tenement of Tarumfechin, by the jurors underwritten, namely:—Hugh de Repenteney, Adam de Staneloye, Richard le Blund, Robert le Mercer, Adam Mill, Roger Pipard, William de Grafton, Robert le Blund, Geoffrey Clerk, Geoffrey le Hore, Geoffrey le Jovene, and Robert de Kirkeceath, Who Say that the K. was always after the conquest of Ireland seized of Wreck of the sea in the tenement aforesaid, and that the said archbishop and his predecessors never had seisin of Wreck in that tenement after the period aforesaid.

[Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland], to the K. By an inquisition which he had taken by the K.'s order and returns with the K.'s writ, he had ascertained that neither the Archbishop of Armagh nor his predecessors ever had seisin of Wreck in the tenement of Tarmumfechyn after the conquest of Ireland. 1483. [Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland], to the K. Had received the K.'s letters, which he recites, commanding him to discreetly and securely inquire what right N[icholas] Archbishop of Armagh, Primate of Ireland, claims to have in time of vacancy in some bishoprics within his see to receive their temporalities, how he has it, by what warrant, and from what time, and to certify thereupon to the K. The justiciary certifies that the Archbishop of Armagh has no more right touching bishoprics within his see in time of vacancy, than have any other archbishops in Ireland regarding their suffragan sees. But as some suffragan sees of the archbishop are situated in Irish and woody land, where the English cannot safely go in time of vacancy, the archbishop usurped the temporalities of those sees; and that usurpation has after a sort by abuse passed into a feigned right. The archbishop has no other right in the premises. [Inq. P. M., 6 Edw. I., No. 92.]

The jurors Say that John before his death endowed the Lady Agatha Byset, his stepmother, of all the lands and rents aforesaid, and of his mills; that he held in knight service all the lands which he had of the inheritance of Richard de Burgh; that John's next heirs are William de Fenton and Cecilia his wife, Andrew de Bosco and Elizabeth his wife, David de Graham and Muriel his wife, Cecilia, Elizabeth, and Muriel being daughters of the said John and of age; that John Byset, father of John, had the last seisin of the lands and tenements aforesaid; that those lands and tenements after the death of John the younger came into the K.'s hands, and afterwards into those of Walter de Burgh, formerly Earl of Ulster; that the said Earl, after an inquisition, made over to Robert Bishop of Connor the land of Psallor, and the castle of Glenharm, with 1 carucate of land in the vill of Glenharm, for a rent of 10 marks and 1 hawk, as the right of his church, because the said John Byset had held the land of the bishop at an annual rent of 4 marks; that the said bishop and his present successor held seisin of Psallor for 8 [years] and more, but they had not seisin of the carucate of land, nor of the castle of Glenharm; that the said John the younger died 19 years ago, and that the value of the crannocks of flour aforesaid increases and decreases. been accused; that if William should fail in any of the foregoing articles, all his lands and tenements in Ireland should according to the tenor of said William's charter for ever become the property of the said Cristiana; but if he should satisfy the articles, all those lands and tenements should be restored to him, and his charter be treated as void. 1509. Indictment against Perceval of Lucca, Paganel Lumbard, Lappegras Leonard, Jake Donat Tolazan, Jacke le Jeofne, John Lumbard, Walter Lumbard, and Andrew Lumbard, for usury and clipping money to the damage of the K. and of the people. They plead Not guilty, and of this they put themselves on the inquisition taken before the justices of the Common Pleas in presence of Brother Stephen Bishop of Waterford, the K.'s Treasurer in Ireland, John Bishop of Clonfert, Hugh Bishop of Meath, Sir Geoffrey de Geneville, John de Saunford, the K.'s escheator of Ireland, by the following jurors, namely:—Ririch Makavan, Richard de Feypo, Richard Talebot, Geoffrey of Holywood, John of Wyeumbe, William of Baligadivan, William D'Arcy, Ralph of Montgomery, Alexander Savage, Henry of Eveswelle, Henry Derpatrick, and Almaricus Reyner; Who Say that the merchants aforesaid are not guilty of the usury charged against them, but that they all, except the said Andrew, for two years past and more clipped money of the custom to the amount of 10% and more for purposes of trade as regards the small pieces, and as regards the larger in order to make silver vases; and this they did to the damage of the K. and of the people. Judgment that Perceval and the others aforesaid, except Andrew, with their goods and chattels be taken into custody. Afterwards by counsel of the bishops aforesaid and other magnates they and their goods and chattels were released till the morrow of Trinity before the chief justiciary, on which day by the K.'s Council a day was given to them till the quinzaine of Michaelmas, the one being pledge for the other, in order that they may in the meanwhile seek grace from the K. 1510. Robert de Ufford to the K., praying that he will cause the affair of Th[eobald] Pincerna in the K.'s court to be expedited, for

Theobald's absence may be calamitous to the commonweal of Ireland. Had always found him well inclined and ready in matters touching the state of Ireland and the K.'s advantage, and Theobald had above almost all others given prompt and efficient aid for the improvement of that state. Prays the K. to order him quickly to return to Ireland and to prosecute by attorney his affair in the K.'s court. If contention should arise in Ireland there are few to whom recourse can be had with confidence, the more especially as Sir Geoffrey de Geynville, Sir Theobald de Verdun, Sir Ralph Pipard, and other great men are absent.

[Indorsed.] To the King of England for Sir Theobald Pincerna. [Chancery Files, Bundle 24.]

6 Edw. I. 1511. R[obert] de Ufford to the K. Persons in Ireland frequently bring suits before the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, and before the Irish justices itinerant in divers places, and when a decision or final judgment has been given against either party they betake themselves to the K.'s presence, frequently charge those justices with enormities, and demand remedies from the Chancery of England, which they might without difficulty have obtained from the Chancery of Ireland. They thus act not on account of an injury done to them, but in order that causes which might more quickly and conveniently have been decided in Ireland may be protracted, and in order that their adversary may be borne down by labour and expense. Robert therefore prays the K. to enjoin his Chancellor that before he admits these frustrators of causes to plead, he inquire whether they had sought a remedy from the justiciary of Ireland, and if not that they shall be compelled in shame to do so, until the justiciary shall be found wanting in exhibiting justice. Thus their malice will be obviated, suits be more quickly determined, and the K.'s courts, which are bound mutually to aid each other, will not be disturbed by those frustrations of justice. [Inq. P. M., 6 Edw. I., No. 92.]

6 Edw. I. 1512. Robert de Ufford to the K. Ireland is in every part in a good state, and from day to day goes on from better to better. As he has some things to communicate on that subject prays the K.'s leave of absence to go to confer with the K.; and further prays instructions as to whose custody he shall meanwhile commit the land of Ireland. [Norman French.] [Inq. P. M., 6 Edw. I., No. 92.]

[6 Edw. I.] 1513. Deed poll whereby Thomas de Clare grants in fee to Edmund son of Sir Warin de Bassingburn his manor of Bleburgh, with demesnes and services, &c. in Corynham, Yolthorpe, Messingham, Butwyk, Somerby, and Redburn [all in England], in exchange for a grant in fee of Edmund's manor of Any, Ireland. Witnesses, Sirs Pagan de Chaworth, William Bardulf, Robert Typetot, Adam of Newmarket, Ralph de Trehampton, William de Chaney, Roger de Crescy, and John de Gurnay, knights, Sir William de Saham, William de Bibbesworth, parson of Bleburgh, William de Sholhye, William Cobbe, of Kirketon, Gilbert his brother, Walter Martin. 1520. The K. to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland. Having learnt that some lands and tenements which ought to be appurtenant to the land of Kilsilan had been withdrawn from it by men of those parts after the exchange made with Walter de Burgh for the land of Ulster, the K. commands the justiciary to inquire on oath what lands and tenements were so withdrawn, by whom, and how. Windsor.

Inquisition taken at Clonmele [Clonmel] on Tuesday after the Ascension of our Lord, a. r. 7 [16 May 1279], before Sir Richard of Exeter, Brother W[illiam] Fitz Roger, then Prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in Ireland, Walter de Hay, and Roger Andrew, then justice itinerant, by the following jurors:—William Fitz Jordan, of Kantintun, Nicholas de Stafford, Stephen de Sutton, Milo Lewis, Adam Keting, Philip de Maydewell, William Wallensis, Henry Forester, Robert de Rupe, Richard Coytysy, Richard de, and Thomas Fitz Philip, Who Say that the tenement of Balibothy, of the appurtenances of Kilsilan, was wont to render suit at the court of Kilsilan and royal [aid] when payable, and they were withdrawn by William de Rochelle after the exchange made with Walter de Burgh for the land of Ulster; the lands and tenements of Clonyns were withdrawn by John son of Robert of Stafford after the exchange aforesaid; and the tenement of Achnyre was wont to render suit at the court of Kilsilan, but was withdrawn by Maurice le Bret after the exchange aforesaid. They further Say that the half vill of the land of Bolydissart, in the county of Waterford, was extended to the K. at 10 marks a year, and was held in good seisin till the arrival in Ireland of Sir Otto de Grandison; that then Sir Richard de Carrew brought a writ of Novel disseisin against Sir Otto before Sir Alexander of Nottingham, justice assigned in the cause, and recovered seisin at Clonmel, in the absence of Sir Otto and of his bailiff. They further Say that the vill of the land of Kilgafuy was extended to the K. after the said exchange, and afterwards Sir Richard de la Rochelle, then justiciary of Ireland, delivered the lands of Kilsilan to Sir Walter de Burgh on lease, rendering the extent; and while Walter then held the lands he enfeoffed Geoffrey Lewis with the vill of land, and he holds it. They further Say that the lands of Istelkoran were wont yearly to render to the lord of Kilsilan at the feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist [June 24] a chaplet of flowers and services at the court of Kilsilan, but these were withdrawn by Peter de Byford.

1279. 1588. A day on the morrow of St. Nicholas [7 Dec. 1278], was Michaelmas, given on petition of the parties to Christiana de Mariseis, who came by her attorney, and William de Doverent, who came personally, of a plea that he render to her his account for the whole time during which he was custodee of her lands in Ireland. There were subsequently several continuances of the plea till Michaelmas [1279].

Afterwards Christiana appeared before the barons on Wednesday next before the feast of St. Nicholas [29 Nov. 1279], against William, who did not appear. [Exchequer of Pleas, Placita, Edw. I., No. 9, Rot. 6 dors.]

Michaelmas. 1589. Ireland:—The Abbot of St. Mary of Dunbrothyn [Dunbrody] puts in his place Brother Thomas de Malmesbury or William Suel against the Master of the Templars in Ireland, to hear judgment of a plea of land. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 49, Rot. 55 dors.]

Michaelmas. 1590. Ireland:—Theobald de Verdon puts in his place John of Coventry or Simon Crowe against Matilda de Lacy, of a plea to hear judgment and record, and of a plea of land. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 49, Rot. 56.]

Michaelmas. 1591. Ireland:—John Seintden and Christiana his wife put in their place Jordan son of Letitia, John de Ivestok, or William de Romency, against Walter Fitz Peter, of Cork, of a plea of land [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 49, Rot. 57.]

Michaelmas. 1592. Alexander Cadegan had demanded in Ireland against Richard le Lung one moiety of a carucate of land in Tyrmor, in the county of Limerick, into which Richard had not entry save after a disseisin made by Stephen L'Enfaunt. Richard called to warranty David L'Enfaunt, who came and warranted. Richard said that he ought not to answer, because Alexander had released those tenements to Stephen for 12 marks. Alexander demanded evidence of the release. David prayed a jury thereupon. Alexander said that a jury would not lie as there was no evidence of a release, and thereof he appealed to the justices. David the like. Judgment against Alexander.

As it appears by the record that Alexander had alleged that trial by jury ought not to be taken, because the defendant had no evidence of the release, and the justices of Ireland had determined that Alexander should take nothing by his writ, because he would not take a jury, it seems to the court that there was error in the above judgment. Wherefore it is decided that Alexander shall recover his estate and that David shall answer to the substance. The latter comes and says that Stephen L'Enfaunt never disseised Alexander of the tenements aforesaid, because he had entered by feoffment, and he thereof puts himself on the country, and Alexander likewise. Mandate to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, to inquire into the premises by the oath of a jury of 12 men of the venue of Tyrmor, and to send to the K. in the quinzaine of Easter the inquisition thereupon under his seal. Richard le Lung puts in his place Maurice Cadogan. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 49, Rot. 9 dors, and No. 50, Rot. 6 dors.]

Oct. 17.

1593. The K. commits during pleasure to Thomas of Shrewsbury the office of the chamberlainship of the Exchequer, Dublin. To do and answer therefor as other keepers of the chamberlainship were wont to do and answer. Westminster. [Pat., 7 Edw. I., m. 6.]

Westminster. [Pat., 7 Edw. I., m. 6.]

Oct. 19. 1595. The K. takes under his protection John de Kenleng' and his men and lands in Ireland, and retains him in England for affairs of the K. Mandate accordingly to the K.'s bailiffs and subjects of Ireland. Westminster. [Pat., 7 Edw. I., m. 6.]

Oct. 21. 1596. The K.'s writ to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland. Amabilia who was the wife of John Comyn, has shown to the K. that John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland, had lately, after the death of her husband, taken into the K.'s hands the custody of his lands, believing that it belonged to the K. owing to vacancy in the priory of the Holy Trinity and of the archbishopric of Dublin. Amabilia says that the custody belongs to her, because John's lands were held in socage, and she is the nearest relation of the heir. The Sub-prior and convent of the Holy Trinity, Dublin, asserting that the custody belongs to them, as well in vacancy of the priory as of the archbishopric, the escheator delivered it to them, Amabilia protesting. The K. wishing to be certified regarding the right, as well of Amabilia as of the convent, commands the justiciary to retake into the K.'s hand the custody aforesaid, and inquire by the oath of knights and others of his bailiwick whether the custody belongs to Amabilia, as she says, to the priory, or to the archbishopric aforesaid in vacancy of the priory, by what service the lands are held, &c., and whether the archbishopric was ever in seisin of the custody during vacancy, &c. Westminster.

[Indorsed.] The custody is retaken into the K.'s hand.

Inquisition taken before S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, locum tenens of the justiciary of Ireland, at Dublin, on Saturday in the vigil of St. Dunstan, a. r. 8 [18 May 1280], by oath of the following jurors:—John de Wycumbe, Hugh of Coolock, Bertram de Nugent, John Hamund, Henry de Eweswell, Philip of Holywood, John de Anndon, Henry de Beling, John Bane, of Swords, Thomas de Rathlawe, Richard Brun, Geoffrey of Holywood: Who say that because the lands are held in socage the custody ought to belong to Amabilia, unless the custom of Ireland should prove an obstacle. That custom is such that if homage is contained in a charter or chirograph regarding these lands, made between the Prior of the Holy Trinity aforesaid and John father of John Comyn, last deceased, that John the father rendered homage for those lands to the prior in the K.'s court, but that John Comyn, last deceased, father of the heir, did not render homage. They further say that the custody belongs to the prior by reason of the custom of Ireland aforesaid; that the lands are held of the prior at an annual rent of 100s.; and that the custody does not belong to the archbishop, who never was in seisin of it during vacancy. [Inq. P. M., 7 Edw. I., No. 63.]

The justiciary shall return the inquisition to the K. under his seal and the seal of those by whom it shall be made, together with this writ. Westminster.

Inquisition taken at Dublin between the Friars Carmelite and the citizens of Dublin, before Sir Robert de Ufford, chief justiciary of Ireland, on Wednesday next after the Conversion of St. Paul, a. r. 8 [31 Jan. 1279-80], by the following jurors:—Nicholas of Howth, Geoffrey Daundon, John de Clafford, Simon de Stokes, John de Wycumbe, Robert de Revenile, John Daundon, Nicholas Dardis, Hugh Justice, William Forester, William of Finglas, Hugh Couloc, Who Say that before the gift of 3 messuages in Dublin, made to the Carmelites by Roger Oweyn, James de Bermyngham, and Nicholas Bacun, each of the 3 houses was wont to yield to the citizens, who held the vill of the K. in fee farm, 3*½l.* a year of landgable, and to the heirs of Cecilia daughter of Sir Robert de la Hyde, 5*s.* a year, and the occupiers were wont to answer to the citizens for tallage, watch, pleas, and profits. Wherefore they Say that if a church and sanctuary be there founded the bailiffs of the city cannot distrain the premises as they used to do; and this would tend to the loss and inconvenience of the city to the amount of 6*d.* a year; and that if a church and sanctuary be there founded they will conduce to the profit of souls, both of the neighbouring inhabitants of the vill, and of strangers, and chiefly of those going to the Exchequer of Dublin, who can there conveniently hear divine service. And they Say that in the place where the friars dwell courtesans lived before the arrival of the friars, and evil doers were there harboured.

In answer the justiciary states that having when he received the writ been engaged with the K.'s Irish Council on arduous affairs at Dublin, he could not personally attend at its execution; and as John would not wait till he could go to the place where the land was to be assigned, he had appointed John of Kent, clerk, bailiff [approviator] of the K.'s lands, with the sheriff of Connaught and others to make the extent. Sends that extent to the K. under his seal. Will not venture to undertake to assign the service to be rendered by John, but prays the K. to do so.

1614. Robert de Ufford to the K. Had received from the K. letters directing him to inquire regarding Geoffrey de Geynvile's complaints against the K.'s justiciaries and ministers in Ireland touching writs and other matters, and to make amends to him if he had been wrongly aggrieved. Geoffrey complains that his franchise and county are several and not within the county of Dublin, and that the Chancellor had written regarding various matters to the sheriff, when he ought to have written to himself or to his seneschal. The Chancellor states that he had never written save to the sheriff, but he had always found Geoffrey and his tenants complain thereof. Geoffrey stated that he had been aggrieved by a writ sent to his seneschal commanding him to cause several persons of his franchise to give bail for others to come to answer at Dublin, a thing which had never before been done in his land, as he says. It was replied to him that it had been found by inquisition that he and his tenants ought to receive felons; he answered that he is bound to answer to the K. as to his lord, and his tenants to him in all pleas; and as he has his separate franchise and county, and not in the county of Dublin, neither he nor his men are bound to know the fees of the K.'s counties and to answer for them. The K.'s Council were of opinion that if he and his tenants are not chargeable with the receipt of felons they are yet bound to answer in the K.'s court, unless discharged thereof. Prays the K.'s pleasure regarding these matters.

[Q. R. Irish Exchequer, Bundle 530, E. B. 2543.]
1279-80. Hilary. 1635. Writ to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, commanding him to return before the K. himself the record and process of a plaint before the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, between Basilia who was the wife of Nicholas de Verdun, plaintiff, and Theobald de Verdun, tenant, of Basilia's dower in the lands herein-after mentioned.
The justiciary returned the record, which is preserved in the bundle of the term of Michaelmas, a. r. 5-6, and is as follows:—
Ireland:—Basilia who was the wife of Nicholas de Verdun, demands against Theobald de Verdun third parts of the manors of Lochsyueudy, except the advowson of the church there; Inchelefyre and Kells, excepting 8½ marcates of rent; Coulok, excepting 10 marcates of rent; de la Roche, Dunkul, the new and old vills of Dundalk; Stathmenaveran, or Staemmanatheran, Clommor, Rath, and Rodebank, or Redebank, whereof the said Nicholas formerly her husband and son and heir of John de Verdun, had, with the consent of the latter endowed her ad ostium ecclesie when he married her. Theobald produces a deed of agreement made between the above-named John and John de Cogan, father of the said Basilia, whereby the former endowed her of 100 librates of land in the manor of Lochsyueudy, and it was provided that when Nicholas had reached his age, and had recovered the residue of his inheritance, which was in custody of the Queen, John de Verdun should be quit of the 100 librates; and Theobald asserts that Basilia ought not to be further endowed of John de Verdun's lands.
Afterwards Basilia pleads that she was endowed of the third part of all the tenements of John de Verdun; and of this, she puts herself on the country; Theobald the same.
Mandate to the justiciary of Ireland to inquire, as well by oath of parties who were present at the marriage, as of knights and other lawful men of the venue of Lochsyueudy, where the marriage took place, whether Nicholas endowed her with assent of John as she says, or whether he endowed her of 100 librates, as before. The inquisition thereupon shall be returned in the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 51, Rot. 9.] under the elections, the Pope, of the plenitude of his power, lately promoted him to be bishop, as appears by the Pope's letters, which he sends for inspection. Having been enjoined to proceed immediately to the Pope's presence, he beseeches the K. to order the temporalities of the church to be restored in his name to Hugh de Fraxiniis, his proctor and commissioner general, receiving from him on the bishop's behalf the customary oath of fealty, which the bishop, on his return from the court of Rome, will himself humbly and dutifully tender to the K. Paris, feast of St. Matthias the Apostle. [Royal Letters, No. 3244.]

Feb. 26. 1645. The K. notifies that Christiana de Marisco had attorned before the K. William of Spain and Gilbert of Ypres in all pleas and complaints in Irish courts. Grant that William and Gilbert, or either of them, may make attorneys for Christiana in the Chancery of Ireland. To endure for 1 year. Marlborough. [Pat., 8 Edw. I., m. 22.]

[March 12, date of inquisition.] 1645. Writ directed to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland (on complaint of Theobald son and heir of John de Verdun and of Margery his wife cousin and one of the heirs of Walter de Lacy, formerly lord of Meath), commanding him to search the Rolls and Memoranda of the K.'s Exchequer, and by oath of good men to inquire what liberties Walter de Lacy had in that county of the grant of the K.'s predecessors, and which of them were taken into the hand of Henry III.; to return the inquisition to the K. with this writ; to cause to be restored to Theobald the liberties which the justiciary had taken from him; and if there is any reason why the liberties restored to him should come into the K.'s hands, to take out of Chancery a writ against Theobald, and to cause full and speedy justice to be done as well to the K. as to him, according to the laws and customs of Ireland. Westminster, November 12, a. r. 7 [1279.]

Inquisition taken at Dublin on Tuesday next after the 1st Sunday of Lent, a. r. 8, before Brother Stephen, Treasurer, Sir Thomas de Clare, and others of the K.'s Council, assigned by Robert de Ufford, the justiciary, and by the following jurors:—Reginald de Tiper, Rerie Mapeavan, Henry de Rocheford, Jordan Lokard, John Wolf, William Waspail, Eustace le Poher, Geoffrey del Esse, Roger Andrew, Richard Beket, Philip le Ercedekne, Griffin Fitz Alan, Walter Porcel, and Jordan of Exeter, Who Say that Hugh de Lacy, formerly lord of Meath, was enfeoffed by King Henry the elder of all Meath, and of all liberties which the K. had there, excepting ecclesiastical investitures, for the service of 50 knights; Hugh held and enjoyed those liberties during his life; after his death Walter his son and heir enjoyed them by hereditary right, and by charter and confirmation of King Richard and King John, until Richard Fitz Ranulph appealed in Walter's court of Trim Robert Omalroni of the death of his brother. A day was named for the duel, but Walter's wife, in the absence of her lord at Robert's procurement, commanded her seneschal to respite the duel. Richard the appellor, having collected evidence, came to Dublin on the same day, and complained to Henry Archbishop of Dublin, then justiciary, of the injustice done to him in that court. The justiciary, by counsel of Robert Huseard, then justice of the Common Pleas, Dublin, and of others, took into the K.'s hand all Walter's liberty, save pleas of Vetitum Namium, Hue and Cry, plea of bloodshed, and other pleas belonging to the court baron, neither Walter himself nor any person on his behalf having been summoned to hear judgment; and they made Walter sheriff and keeper of pleas of the Crown in his own lands, to answer therefor to the K. in his court at Dublin.

And be it known that the inquisition and writ aforesaid were delivered to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, to be conveyed to that country and placed in the Treasury there. [Close, 8 Edw. I., m. 6 dors.]

1280. 1646. The K. commands S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, lieutenant of the justiciary of Ireland, to cause Richard de Burgh, son and heir of Walter de Burgh, formerly Earl of Ulster, to have seisin of the castle, lands, and tenements of Esclone, formerly held by Emelina de Lacy, late Countess of Ulster, and which after her death came into the K.'s hands by reason of Richard's custody. Berkeley. [Close, 8 Edw. I., m. 9.]

Easter. 1647. The K. had commanded Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, to cause to come before the K. the record and process of a plaint had in the court of the liberty of Wexford between the Master of the Templars in Ireland, plaintiff, and the Abbot of the Port of St. Mary of Dunbrody, tenant, of 7 carucates of land in Kilbride. The record was sent, and is as follows:—

The Master of the Templars in Ireland demands against the Abbot of Dunbrody 7 carucates of land in Kilbride, which he claims to hold in capite of Sir William de Valence. The Abbot having been summoned for the morrow of the close of Easter, a. r. 5 [5 April 1277], caused himself ultimately to be essoined till the octaves of Trinity in the same year. On the latter day the Abbot came in person before Giles de Barinton and Thomas de Drayton, assigned by Sir William de Valence to hold his pleas, and refused to answer before them because he had been summoned before the seneschal of Wexford and not before them, and so withdrew in contempt of court. Judgment was respited till Sunday after the Nativity of St. John [June 27], and subsequently till Sunday in the feast of St. James the Apostle [July 25], on which day judgment was given that the master should recover seisin of the 7 carucates in Kilbride, and that the abbot should be amerced for unjust detention and contempt.

Afterwards, in the quinzaine of Easter, a. r. 7, the K. commanded Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, to take an inquisition thereupon, and he sent the inquisition, which is in the bundle of Records of Michaelmas term, a. r. 8, as follows:—

Inquisition taken at Ross on St. Swithin's day, a. r. 7 [15 July 1279] before Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, in the presence of the master and abbot aforesaid, by 29 jurors, as to whether the chief seneschals of the liberties of Leinster were wont and were entitled to substitute other seneschals [for them under the seals of their lords used for sealing original writs, &c. The jurors say that the seneschals of the liberty of Kilkenny never were wont nor were entitled to substitute other seneschals for them under the seals of their lords, nor hold the greater pleas save at 2 assizes a year; that the seneschals of the liberty of Carlow were sometimes wont de facto though not de jure to substitute other seneschals for them under the seals of their lords to hold such greater pleas at 2 assizes a year; that the seneschals of the liberty of Kildare were often wont de facto though not de jure to substitute other seneschals for them under the seals of their lords to hold as well the greater pleas which belong to the justiciary as the lesser ones which belong to the sheriff; that the seneschals of the liberty of Wexford were wont for many years past to substitute other seneschals for them, though they had no right to do so, under the seals of their lords, to hold all pleas, as well those held at the 2 assizes a year, in which the greater pleas which belong to the justiciary are held, as well as minor pleas from county to county which belong to the sheriff.

Judgment. Morrow of the Ascension, a. r. 8 [31 May 1280]. Considering that there is manifest error in the process of this plaint, whatever has been done against the abbot aforesaid is annulled, and his seisin of the 7 carucates is restored to him. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 53, Rot. 28 dors.]

Easter.

1648. Thomas de Clare and Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, were commanded to cause to come before the K. the record and process of a plaint lately held before the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, between Nicholas Frend, plaintiff, and Matilda de Lacy, whom Lucian de Weston and Agnes his wife vouched to warranty, and Geoffrey de Geneville, Matilda his wife, and Theobald de Verdun, whom Matilda vouched to warranty, of tenements in Clongel [Clongill].

The record was sent, and is to be found in the bundle of records for Michaelmas, a. r. 6-7. On inspection of it it seems to the K. and his Council that there is error in the process of the plaint; wherefore it is adjudged that whatever has been done under that record against Matilda shall be annulled. Matilda and the other tenants named in the record shall recover their seisin, saving the right of action of the plaintiff and power to Geoffrey and the others hereafter to plead against Matilda. Mandate to the justiciary of Ireland to summon Nicholas Frend to appear before the K. in one month of Michaelmas to prosecute his plea against Matilda. The same day is given to Geoffrey, Matilda his wife, Theobald de Verdun, and Matilda de Lacy. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 53, Rot. 31.]

1649. Ireland:—Hugh de Beumes puts in his place Bartholomew de Northampton against Elias Cendal of a plea of land. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 53, Rot. 33.]

June 8.

1666. The K.'s writ to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, or his lieutenant. It had been shown on the part of Geoffrey de Geneville and Matilda his wife that they hold lands and tenements in Meath of Matilda's inheritance, without the boundaries of any county; that according to the liberty which had hitherto prevailed there all the K.'s writs for summonses, attachments, and otherwise belonging to the office of sheriff, ought to be immediately directed to Geoffrey and Matilda, or their bailiffs, in the same way as writs were wont to be directed to Matilda's ancestors in times past; that writs were for some time directed to the sheriff of Dublin by justices of those parts (the liberty having been taken into the K.'s hand), but that the justiciary still directs writs to that sheriff though the liberty had been restored by Henry III. The K. therefore commands the justiciary by oath of good men of those parts to take an inquisition whether the lands are or are not beyond the metes of that or any other county; whether royal writs before the liberty was taken into the K.'s hand were wont to be immediately directed to Matilda's ancestors or their bailiffs, and at what time; by whom and for what cause the practice was changed; and whether it would be to the K.'s damage that writs should be immediately directed to Geoffrey and Matilda. The inquisition thereupon with this writ shall be without delay returned to the K. under the justiciary's seal and the seals of those by whom it shall be taken. Westminster.

Inquisition taken at Dublin on Wednesday next after the feast of St. Mark the Evangelist, a. r. 9 [30 April 1281], before Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, by the following jurors:—Philip de Staunton, Walter l'Enfaunt, Nicholas de Dunhevet, Walter de Nevile, Walter Porcel, William Cadel, William Prendegast, William Waspayl, Gerald Waspayl, Maurice Purcel, John Punchardun, and Nicholas de Oueche, Who Say that Geoffrey de Geneville and Matilda his wife hold lands and tenements in Meath of Matilda's inheritance, which are without the boundaries of any of the K.'s counties; that the K.'s writs, before the liberty of Meath was taken into the K.'s hand, were wont to be immediately directed to Hugh and Walter de Lacy, Matilda's ancestors, and their bailiffs, and that from the time when the liberty was so taken, this practice was changed by the justiciaries, the Chancellor and other the K.'s ministers by their will and not for any other reason. They further Say that it would not tend to the K.'s damage if the K.'s writs were immediately to be directed to Geoffrey and Matilda as was wont to be done in times past, but that it would tend to the K.'s great profit, because the K. could have greater amerciements from them than from his sheriffs, and the K.'s order would be more quickly and better expedited by them than by sheriffs.

Inquisition taken before Sir R[ichard] de la Rochelle, justiciary of Ireland, and H[ugh] Bishop of Meath, Treasurer of Ireland, by mandate of the Lord Edward directed to them touching the liberties and customs prayed for of the Lord Edward by Sir John de Verdun as his purparty of the lands and tenements formerly of Walter de Lascy in Meath. The jurors Say that it would be to the great damage of the Lord Edward if he granted to Sir John as his purparty the same liberties and customs as were enjoyed in those lands by his coparceners, Geoffrey de Geinville and Matilda his wife. On being asked what damage, they Say as regards pecuniary damage 300*l.* in common years, even if all the tenants of the tenement were decently and well treated, which they could not hope would be done if these liberties were granted to Sir John. Geoffrey and Matilda enjoy all the liberties and customs and all pleas and complaints enjoyed by the Lord Edward in his land of Ireland, one only excepted, namely, that if any one complains of them or of their court they are wont, as they ought, to answer in the court of the Lord Edward.

R[ichard] de la Rochelle, Prince Edward's justiciary of Ireland, and H[ugh] Bishop of Meath, to Edward the K.'s eldest son. Had received Edward's letters, stating that Sir John de Verdun had petitioned him to grant to Sir John the liberties in Walter de Lascy's lands in Meath granted by Henry III. to Geoffrey de Geynville and Matilda his wife, but that Edward would not grant the petition without consulting the justiciary and bishop, as he knew not what the liberties and customs were. Edward had therefore commanded them to search the Rolls of their Exchequer, if necessary to take an inquisition, and certify whether it would be to Edward's damage that he should grant those liberties to Sir John. The justiciary and bishop not having been able to certify by the Rolls had caused an inquisition to be taken, a transcript of which they send inclosed in the presents, whereby Edward may be certified whether it would be to his damage that he should grant the liberties to Sir John. With exception as above, Geoffrey and Matilda enjoy all pleas and pleas and other liberties enjoyed by Edward in his land of Ireland. If the liberties were granted nothing would remain to Edward but pleas of ecclesiastical investitures. [Inq. P. M., 8 Edw. I., No. 75.]

The K. thereupon commands the justiciary to cause restitution to be made to Geoffrey of the lands and tenements, provided that Geoffrey answer before the justiciary for the K.'s rights, saving to Geoffrey his right to recover against John Fitz Thomas's heirs, if he wishes to vouch them to warranty. Similar letters for Philip Denebald, Medler le Brun, and Thomas de Haddon, all going to Ireland with the said John. [Pat., 8 Edw. I., m. 8.]
- July 20. 1713. The K. to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, or his lieutenant. Brother Gilbert, a monk de Innocentia near Athlone, had informed the K. that the Dean and chapter of Clonmacnois [Cluonenses], on the death of Thomas their late bishop had sent a messenger with letters of the chapter to obtain licence to elect, but that the messenger having died on his way they had, to the prejudice of the K., without obtaining licence, elected as bishop a monk of the Franciscan order. The K., however, commands the justiciary that accepting a fine from the dean and chapter for electing without licence, he give the royal assent in lieu of the K. to the election, and if the elect be confirmed that he take fealty from and deliver the temporalities to him, having first received letters under the seals of himself and of the chapter that this grace shall not tend to the K.'s prejudice nor be converted into a precedent. Langley. [Pat., 8 Edw. I., m. 8.]

[Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle 530, J.R. 22,249.]

1280. 1741. Morrow of Ail Souls. Ireland. Complaint by Nicholas Michaelmas. Frend, against Matilda de Lacy, whom Lucian de Weston and Agnes his wife vouch to warranty before the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, of a messuage, 2 carucates and 8½ acres of land in Clongel [Clongill]. Matilda vouches to warranty Geoffrey de Geneville, Matilda his wife, and Theobald de Verdun. They were summoned to appear in one month of Easter wheresoever, &c., by aid of court, and were summoned in Ireland. Afterwards, in one month of Easter, it was testified before the K. that Matilda aforesaid was deceased. Therefore the plaint is without day. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 37, Rot. 23, and No. 58, Rot. 5.]

Michaelmas. 1742. Ireland:—The jury in the plaint between Basilia who was the wife of Nicholas de Verdun, plaintiff, and Theobald de Verdun, is for want of jurors respited to one month of Easter wheresoever, &c. Writ of Habeas corpora to the sheriff. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 57, Rot. 23, and No. 58, Rot. 5.]

Michaelmas. 1743. The Rolls of the Exchequer, Dublin, having been searched, it appears by letters of the Treasurer and Barons of that Exchequer, that Theobald de Verdun had fully satisfied the K. for 200 marks, the amount of his fine for seisin of his lands. The K. therefore commands the Barons to desist from their exaction against Theobald, by summons of the English Exchequer for 200 marks, and to cause him to be quit thereof. [Memda. L. T. R. Edw. I., No. 9, Rot. 2 dors, and Memda. Q.R., Edw. I., No. 8, Rot. 2.]

1280-1281, Hilary. 1782. Octaves of the Purification. Ireland:—Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, had been commanded to send before the K. the record and process of a plaint had before John de Saunford and his associates, justices in Eyre in Ulster, in a. r. 3, between Elias Cendal, plaintiff, and Hugh de Bello Manso, of lands and tenements in the earldom of Ulster, which belonged to O'Hageran, which the present K. had long ago conferred on Robert de Bello Manso, then his valet, and which Hugh now holds of the gift of Robert and of the K.'s confirmation. The justiciary sent the record, which is as follows:—

Ulster. Elias Cendal demands against Hugh de Beaumes, 3½ carucates and 40 acres of land in Ballimackil Cohn', with the advowson of the church of St. Patrick in that vill; against 1280-1281.

Bricius of the vill of Catheran, 30 acres in that vill; and against John Black, 30 acres; against Patrick Dod, ½ carucate; against Robert son of Robert Dod, 40 acres; against Reginald son of Richeward and Emma his wife, 20 acres; against Richard son of Richeward, ½ carucate; against the same, ½ carucate, all in the vill of Catheran, whereof Robert de Cendale, grandfather of Elias, whose heir he is, was seised in his demesne as of fee.

All the parties appear and vouch to warranty Hugh de Beaumes, who comes by Richard Spiring, his attorney, and warrants accordingly. And in regard as well to his own holding as the land which he warrants to Hugh, Bricius, John, Patrick, Robert, Reginald, and Walter aforesaid, he produces a charter of feoffment of the K. made to Robert de Beaumes, Hugh's brother, and the K.'s charter of confirmation made to Hugh of that land and advowson. On this account the justices aforesaid would not proceed further in the plaint, and Patrick and the others aforesaid are without day.

Afterwards on this day at Westminster, Hugh produced 2 feoffments of the Lord Edward the K.'s eldest son, dated respectively Bristol, 13 July, a. r. 47 Hen. III. [1263], and Lewes, 16 May, a. r. 48 Hen. III. And the said Hugh puts in his place John Coly, of Wenlock, or William le Mon, of Stanwey. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 59, Rot. 24 dors.]

1281. 1861. For default of inquisition returned here, the jury between Michaelmas. Basilia who was the wife of Nicholas de Verdon, plaintiff, and Theobald de Verdon, of a plea of dower, is respited until three weeks of Easter. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 64, Rot. 27 dors.]

Michaelmas. 1862. Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, was commanded to send before the K. the record, process, and original writ in a plaint before the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, between Nicholas of Athy and Jordan de Abbecot, that Jordan should keep with Nicholas a fine made before the said justices between John of Athy, father of said Nicholas, whose heir he is, complainant, and the said Jordan, deforciant, of 2 carucates of land in Innescurk.

Record sent and herein set out in full. In it Nicholas complains that though Jordan is by the fine excluded from wards, marriages, and reliefs, he, after the death of Nicholas's father, entered the land and appropriated it to himself contrary to the fine, and to Nicholas's damage of 40 marks. Jordan comes and does not deny the fine, but says that it is void, because John neither at nor after the making of the chirograph was in seisin of the land, and he is therefore not bound to answer. To this it was replied on the part of Nicholas, that both before and after the making of the chirograph, John his father was in seisin of the land, as the chirograph witnesses, and demands judgment thereupon. Judgment that Jordan deliver the land to Nicholas:

Afterwards on Jordan's complaint, the chief justiciary of Ireland was commanded to cause the parties to come before him, and if there was error in the record to cause it to be amended. No error being found, execution of the judgment.

Exemplification of the fine and foot of fine found in the K.'s Treasury, as follows:—

Final concord made in the court of the Lord Edward, the K.'s eldest son, at Dublin, in the quinzaine of Easter, a. r. 53 Hen. III. [1269], before Richard of Exeter and William de Castro, justices, between John of Athy, complainant, and Jordan de Abicote, deforciant, of 2 carucates of land in Innescurk, whereby the said Jordan acknowledges the land to be the right of the said John, as that which John had of Jordan's gift; to hold in fee, rendering a pair of iron spurs or 3d. at Easter, &c. And for this acknowledgment, fine, and concord, &c. the said John gave to the said Jordan in fee 1 carucate of land in Rath, lying near his land of Balilostrelek towards the north; rendering a pair of iron spurs or 3d. at Easter. And the said John gave to the said Jordan a soar hawk.

Afterwards Jordan came [before the K. and council in England] and Nicholas came not; Seire Facias thereupon to his tenants in Ireland. Therefore it is proceeded against Nicholas by default. Jordan says that there is error in the judgment, because he was prepared to verify that John, father of Nicholas, never was in seisin of the land either before, at, or after the making of the fine, therefore the fine was void, though the justices proceeded as if it was valid; and Jordan prays that the error may be amended.

Judgment:—As it seems to the K. and his council that there is error in the process of the plaint, it is considered that whatever has been done by the record aforesaid shall be annulled, and that Jordan shall recover his seisin of the tenements. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 64, Rot. 24, and Edw. I., No. 65, Rot. 9.]

1881. The Bishop of Waterford, by Henry, his clerk [to the K.]. Prays that the K. will not find fault if the bishop has not been able to perform the K.'s commands as it was his duty to do, in appeasing the merchants lately placed in Ireland. It would be injurious to the K. to deliver the management of the Exchequer of Dublin to Walter, the usher, for, as the justiciary of Ireland is aware, no good has been found in him. As for the sheriffs sent to Ireland, as Thomas de Mynimes, Henry Picot, and others, who have nothing, they are injurious to the K. and more to the people, because they receive the K.'s money and then go away, having nothing to be distrained by. And because their malice cannot be borne with they embroil the Irish settlers with their friends in England, calumniating the former. Henry and William Pycot are stated to have received money for which they did not answer. How to bring them and Alan le Lumbard to judgment is a question. The latter is accused of having received moneys at the Exchequer without giving tallies to poor persons. [Royal Letters, No. 3352. Norman French.]

1882. The same to the same, on the same subject as No. 1881, but differently worded. [Royal Letters, No. 3353. Norman French.]

1883. The K. notifies to archbishops, &c. in Ireland that Robert de Ufford, late justiciary of Ireland, is so affected by infirmity that he cannot attend to the office, and that the K. therefore commits that office during pleasure to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford and Treasurer of Ireland. Mandate to archbishops, &c. to be intensive and respondent to the latter as justiciary. Westminster. [Pat., 10 Edw. I., m. 22.]

[Soon after Nov. 21.] 1884. R[obert] de Ufford to R[obert] Bishop of Bath and Wells. Having lately, while justiciary of Ireland, given by counsel of the K.'s counsellors in that country to the Prior and convent of St. Coman [Sanctus Kommanus] of Roscommon, by charter under the seal of Ireland, which charter he sends for inspection, certain demesne lands of the K. in exchange for lands of the prior and convent near the K.'s castle of Roscommon, Robert prays the bishop to cause the K.'s charter under the Great Seal, according to the tenor of the charter aforesaid, to be granted to the prior and convent. [Royal Letters, No. 2590.]

Nov. 23. 1885. The K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer to cause William de Audley, son and heir of James de Audley, deceased, to be quit of 238*l.* 14*s.* 10*d.* in part payment of 1,188*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.* which the K. owed to James as surplus of the account of the latter when justiciary of Ireland. Westminster. [Close, 10 Edw. I., m. 8.]

Nov. 23. 1886. The Dean and chapter of Killaloe to the K. Having during vacancy in their church caused by the death of Matthew, their late bishop, obtained licence to elect, they had unanimously elected Maurice, precentor of their church, a man provident and honest and useful to their church both in spiritual and temporal matters. According to the custom of the kingdom they present him to the K., praying the royal assent. Killaloe, the 9th of the calends of December. [Royal Letters, No. 3628.]

Nov. 25. 1887. The K. to the Treasurer and Chamberlain of the Exchequer, Dublin. William de Audley, son and heir of James de Audley, formerly justiciary of Ireland, deceased, having been charged in the account of H[ugh] Bishop of Meath, formerly Treasurer of Ireland, with 642*l.* 18*s.* received by the said James; and William, having, in his account of the receipt and expenditure of his father when justiciary, subsequently had a surplus of 1,188*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*, the K. grants to William that the above sum of 642*l.* 18*s.*, and the sum of 238*l.* 14*s.* 10*d.*, due at the Exchequer of England, shall be set off as part payment of the above 1,188*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*, and the remaining 306*l.* 13*s.* shall be paid to William by the Treasurer and Chamberlain out of the K.'s treasure; provided that William ere the money be paid shall enter into a recognizance that if he is hereafter charged with any payment under his father's account, he shall justly answer therefor. Mandate accordingly to the Treasurer and Chamberlain. Westminster.

April 13.

The K.'s writ to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland. Thomas Fitz Maurice, relative and heir of John Fitz Thomas, deceased, being of full age, had prayed restoration of his inheritance. It is not the custom of the realm to make restoration until homage rendered. But the K. wishing to confer on Thomas what grace and favour he can without prejudice to himself, commands the justiciary to inquire what lands and tenements the said John, grandfather of the said Thomas, whose heir he is, held in his demesne as of fee in Ireland at his death, &c.; and whether the said John was seised of lands in Decies and Desmond of the K.'s feoffment; and meanwhile not to alienate the lands in pursuance of the K.'s previous mandate. Devizes.

[Kildare.] Inquisition taken at Toly [Tully] on Monday next after the feast of St. James the Apostle, a. r. 10 [27 July 1282], before S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland, Sir F[romund] le Brun, Chancellor of Ireland, John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland, and Sir R[ichard] de Exon, as to the lands and tenements whereof John Fitz Thomas was seised in his demesne as of fee in the county of Kildare on the day of his death.

Jurors:—

Richd. de Burley.	John Russell.
Tankard Dullard.	Martin de Offelmyth.
Thomas de St. Michael.	Robert Fitz Odo.
Robert of London.	Gerald de Prendelgast.
John de Punchardun.	William de la Muntayne.

Who Say that John Fitz Thomas held nothing of the K. in capite in the county of Kildare, but at his death he held of Maurice Fitz Gerald in that county as well in demesne as in seigniorie one theodum of land called Oregan in Ophaly, for a moiety of the service of one knight whenever royal service should be summoned, rendering suit nevertheless at the court of the said Maurice Fitz Gerald at Geashill. The theodum is worth 45*l.* a year and no more, because the whole was destroyed and laid waste by the war of the Irish; but the jurors on their oath say that in time of peace the theodum was worth 90*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year. Nicholas Fitz Alexander holds in fee there of the heir of the said John Fitz Thomas 5 carucates of land, rendering to the said Maurice Fitz Gerald for the said John Fitz Thomas, the above service of a moiety of one knight when royal service is summoned.

[Kilkenny.] Inquisition taken at Clonmel on Sunday next after the feast of St. Peter ad vincula, a. r. 10 [2 Aug. 1282], of the lands and tenements held at his death by John Fitz Thomas in the county of Kilkenny, before Brother S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford and justiciary of Ireland, Sir R[ichard] de Exon, Sir F[romund] le Brun, Chancellor of Ireland, and John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland.

Who Say that the said John Fitz Thomas held in the county of Kilkenny at his death 5 carucates of land at Seyr of the heirs of John the Marshal, yearly rendering to those heirs at the feast of St. Peter ad vincula [1 Aug.] a red hawk, and to the Bishop of Ossory 40*s.* a year. These lands were wont to be worth 50 marks a year, but are now worth 20 marks a year, and no more, for the greater part lies waste and uncultivated owing to the war of the Irish.

[Waterford, Cork, Kerry.] Inquisition taken at Clonmel on Sunday on the morrow of St. Peter ad vincula, a. r. 10 [2 Aug. 1282], before S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland, Sir F[romund] le Brun, Chancellor of Ireland, John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland, and Sir R[ichard] de Exon, of the lands and tenements whereof John Fitz Thomas was seised in his demesne as of fee at his death.

Who Say upon their oath that John Fitz Thomas died seised of 3½ cantreds in Decies, as well in demesne as in seigniorie as of fee, excepting the barony of Donnul and other lands in the said cantreds, whereof the K. had granted feoffments before that made to John, and also excepting the lands of Hospitallers, Templars, Crocia, the advowson of Dungarvan, with its chapels, and the castle of Dungarvan. John also died seised as of fee, and not in sergeanty, of the shrievalty of Waterford; rendering therefor and also for the shrievalty and sergeancy of Cork, and the shrievalty and sergeancy of Kerry, 50 marks of silver a year at the Exchequer, Dublin; and the 10th part of the service of 1 knight. He held those lands and tenements, with the shrievalties and bailiwicks aforesaid, by charter of feoffment of Edward, then Lord of Ireland, made in the lifetime of the King, his father, which charter is in the possession of Thomas Fitz Maurice, relative and heir of said John. In the 3 cantreds aforesaid there are 18 farmers holding 123½ carucates of arable, meadow, and pasture land, wood, moor, and marsh, for a term of 6 years not expired, and yearly rendering 253*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*, a moiety at Michaelmas and a moiety at Easter. The jurors extend 18 acres of meadow there, to wit, near Waterford, at 40*s.* a year; the turbary there, to wit, near Dungarvan, at 20*s.* a year. The free tenants there hold 49 vills of land, and render therefor 119*l.* 17*s.* 8*d.* a year. There are there, to wit, in Ofathe, 6 free tenants holding 6 vills of land for 23*s.* 4*d.* a year, payable at Michaelmas. The tenants of the vill of the Ostmen, near Waterford, yearly render for the advowson by the hands of the Baron of Dunnill 7*s.* The burgesses of the vill of Dungarvan yearly render for their burgages 13*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* The jurors extend 4 mills there at 28*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year, besides their expenses; the prisage of fish there, to wit, at Dungarvan, at 20*s.* a year; the fishery of a pool there, at 6*s.* a year; the prisage of beer there, at 20*s.* a year; the prisage of wines of the vill of Waterford, at 10*l.* a year; the pannage and green wood of the forest of Decies, at 40*s.* a year; the perquisites of the hundred of the vill of Dungarvan, at 13*s.* 4*d.* a year; the perquisites of court there, at 10*l.* a year; and perquisites and pleas of the whole county of Waterford, at 100*s.* a year. Further they extend the manor of Kilmidan at 100*l.* a year in all issues. Of this manor the Lord Edward enfeoffed Sir Robert de Ufford and Geoffrey de Nevile after the death of said John.

There are in Decies 16 free tenants who render for their tenures the service of 9½ knights, with $\frac{1}{10}$ part of the service of a knight when royal service is summoned, or 18*l.* 10*s.* 8½*d.* for that service.

The said John had seisin of the lands, tenements, and services with the shrievalties and bailiwicks aforesaid, by letters patent of the Lord Edward, which the said Thomas Fitz Maurice has, commanding the free tenants of Decies and Desmond to be intente and respondent to the said John as they had been wont to be to Thomas Fitz Anthony, who previously held those lands and tenements. Stephen de Longespée, then justiciary of Ireland, would not give John seisin according to the writ directed to him, but assigned John a day at Dublin before the Lord Edward's council, from the first week of Lent until one month of Easter next ensuing. John would not await that day, but by counsel of his friends forthwith took seisin. John had seisin of the lands, tenements, and bailiwicks aforesaid from the said 1st week of Lent, a. r. 44 Hen. III. [18-24 Feb. 1259-60], until the vigil of St. James the Apostle, a. r. 45 Hen. III. [24 July 1261], on which day he died.

Jurors:—

Gerard de Staunton, Laurence Thebaud, Thomas son of Rys, John Fitz William de Ripariis, Maurice le Porter, Philip Child, Roger Cultir, Michael Fitz Osbert, Walter Mangenel, Richard Stackpool, Eustace Cusyn, John de Frendevile, Thomas de Berkeley, Andrew Stoke, Elias Keating, Roger Fynaly, John Freysel, Thomas Scurlag, John son of Luke de Roche, John Goold, John Denach, John Fitz Gilbert, Elias Fitz Richard, Adam son of Smith, John Erlewyn, David Fitz Roger de Baly-syard, Henry Motynger, Henry of England, David Child, Simon Stackpool, Martin de Clonchoide, Philip Couniathtath:

Who Say that the said John Fitz Thomas died seised in his demesne, as of fee, of 6 acres of meadow, and of 2 pools, in the county of Cork, and near the vill of Cork, with the shrievalties and sergeancies of the counties of Cork and Kerry, rendering for the land which he held in the county of Waterford, and the shrievalty there, 50 marks of silver a year at the Exchequer of Dublin, and the $\frac{1}{10}$ part of the service of a knight. He held all these lands by charter of feoffment of the Lord Edward, then Lord of Ireland, which charter Thomas Fitz Maurice, relative and heir of the said John, has thereupon. The jurors extend the 6 acres of meadow at 10s. a year, namely, 1s. 8d. an acre; the fishery in the 2 pools at 6s. 8d. a year, besides the expenses thereof; pleas and perquisites of the whole county of Cork at 10l.; the profits of the sergeancy there at 10l. a year; the profit of pleas and perquisites of the county of Kerry at 6l. 13s. 4d. a year; the profits of the sergeancy there at 66s. 8d. a year. The said John had seisin of all the above by letters patent of the Lord Edward, which Thomas Fitz Maurice, relative and heir of the said John, has, commanding the free tenants of Decies and Desmond to be intentive and respondent to the said John, as they had been wont to be to Thomas Fitz Anthony, who previously held the lands and tenements aforesaid. John took seisin of those lands and tenements, as above, in Waterford.

The said John Fitz Thomas held at his death in the county of Limerick, to wit, in Thomond, $1\frac{1}{2}$ cantred of land called Cruchlidocassyn and Oxilyd; the land was worth nothing then on account of the war of the Irish of Thomond; John also held 13 vills in Crkemrieth in the said county reward in the K.'s court against Conor O'Brien, 70 marks a year, and now lies waste through the war of the Irish; he also held the following lands:—A cantred in Cunyl, called Shennede, in the said county, of the K. in capite for service of 2 knights, worth in the time of said John Fitz Thomas 100l.; a cantred at Aylly . . . of John de Barry, for the service of 2 knights, now worth 100l. a year, but in the time of said John, 200l.; $\frac{1}{2}$ a theodum at Clonogre, held of Maurice Fitz Gerald for the service of 1 knight and suit of court at Alleath, worth 100 marks a year; $1\frac{1}{2}$ carucate at Welese of the citizens of Limerick for 20s. . . . a year, worth 1 mark a year beyond the rent called Acumkery, in the county of Kerry, of Sir Milo de Curey, for the service of 2 knights, wont to be worth in the time of said John 100l., but now worth 50l., besides the thirds [tercerie] of the Lady Matilda de Barry, who was the wife of Maurice Fitz John, the greater part of which is destroyed by the war of the Irish; $\frac{1}{2}$ cantred at Denloyth, of Geoffrey Tyrel, at 20 marks of rent a year, wont to be worth 40l., now worth 20 marks; 1 theodum in Moyhynwyr, of William de Coher, for 6d. a year, and suit at the court of Maurice Fitz Thomas at Alry, and half the service of a knight, worth 20 marks a year; 3 carucates at Ogenathy Donechud, wont to be worth in time of peace 40 marks, and now nothing, for they all lie in the power of the Irish; $\frac{1}{2}$ carucate at Corleleye, of Robert Fitz Stephen, for the service of 1 knight, worth in the time of said John 40 marks, now only worth 10 marks, as nearly the whole has been destroyed by the war of the Irish; at Clonlathtyn and Dromynargyn, 3 knights' fees of Sir William Roche, for 20 marks of yearly rent, worth in the time of the said John Fitz Thomas 10 marks a year, and now nothing, for they all lie waste by the war of the Irish; $\frac{1}{2}$ theodum at Kerylochnam', in the earldom of Connaught, of Sir Maurice of London, rendering to the chief lord 5 marks a year, worth in time of peace 120 marks, now worth 60 marks and no more, for the greater part is destroyed by the war of the Irish. After the death of John, the said Thomas Fitz Maurice when he came of age gave the same theodum to Henry de Roche in exchange for the manor of Moyale, in the county of Cork, which was worth 70 marks, with the dower of the Lady Ellen who was the wife of Henry de Roche, the younger, 50 marks a year being moreover receivable by the said Henry de Roche in the church of St. Mary of Limerick. And the said Thomas Fitz Maurice renders out of the same manor of Moyale to the said Sir Henry, junior, and his heirs 40d. of annual rent. [Inq. P.M., 10 Edw. I., No. 21. The last Inq. much faded.] inheriting the sons without cause, had stood his trial, and by judgment of the K.'s court been acquitted. Richard de Burgh, at the instance of the sons, took into his hands all William's lands in Ulster held of the K. in capite, and seized and destroyed the chattels found therein. As William has rendered homage for those lands the K. wills that he shall be protected by justice; and therefore commands the escheator to go in the K.'s name to those parts to view the damage done to William, to render compensation to him, to take a sworn inquisition as to the malefactors who have pillaged and burnt William's lands, and the receivers of his goods and chattels, and to do justice thereupon according to law of those parts. He shall further in the K.'s name prohibit Richard from harassing or molesting William in regard to those lands, and from taking customs or services from him. If Richard has cause of action against William he may come to the K.'s court to prosecute, and the K. will thereupon administer justice. Witness, S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland. Raby. By writ under the Great Seal of England.

The K.'s writ to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, locum tenens of the justiciary in Ireland, as in the above writ to the escheator down to the mandate. The K. commands the bishop to send John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland, to those parts in the K.'s name to view the damage caused to William by Richard de Burgh and his men, to make competent amends to William, and to take a sworn inquisition as to the malefactors who have pillaged and burnt his lands, &c., and to do thereupon what may be required by law and custom of Ireland. The bishop shall by himself and the said John prohibit Richard on the K.'s part from harassing or molesting William or taking customs or services in regard to his lands. If William has cause of action let him come before the K.'s court, &c. Cirencester, Feb. 7, a. r. 10.

The K.'s writ to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland, and John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland. Commands them, as he had several times commanded Robert de Ufford, late justiciary of Ireland, not to permit the bailiffs of Richard de Burgh, of the earldom of Ulster, to distrain William Fitz Warin, to render to him customs and services which he ought not to render for the free tenement which the latter holds there. Both, or either of them, shall summon the parties to appear, take an inquisition, correct trespasses, make amends for the damage caused by the bailiffs, and cause William to have peace thereof. If any difficulty should arise they shall send the record and process under their seals to the K. Chester, June 13, a. r. 10.

Inquisition taken before John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland, at the vill of Down, Ulster, on Tuesday next after the Translation of St. Benedict, namely, on the 14th July, a. r. 10 [1282], regarding the damage and wrong wrought by Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, and his men against Sir W[illiam] Fitz Warin in the lands of the latter in Ulster.

Jurors:—

Sir Stephen de Pierrepont, knight, Geoffrey Fitz Lucian, William de Sloutres, Adam Beg, Nicholas of Trim, Philip de Hampton, Walter Slimerick, Nicholas of Eton, Reginald de Lesleyan, Alan Kembelot, Henry Fitz Jordan, Jordan Fitz Jordan, John Beysing, William de Logan of Warnertoun, Walter Fitz Albert, John Mautalent, Michael de Bonekil, Laurence Aylich, Roger Crisp, Patrick Fitz Adam, Henry Cachepol, William Barron, William le Tollere, Nicholas de Crus, William de Rydale, Engeram Crul, Thomas Brien, William Fitz Richard, Simon Fitz Reginald, Hugh Wileweyn, Robert de Croshul, John Grenewode, and Thomas Ker, Who Say, that of the value of the chattels taken from Sir William Fitz Warin and his men by Richard de Burgh and his men before peace was made between them at Dublin in the quinzaine of Michaelmas, a. r. 9, and which value William had sworn at 600*l.*, nothing had been restored to him save 6*l.*; that after peace made as above, William went from Dublin to Ulster, bearing a letter from Richard directing Thomas de Mandeville, his seneschal in that province, to restore to William the chattels taken from him; that after the delivery of the letter Thomas de Mandeville, the seneschal, Martin de Mandeville, and their followers, and Moriarchav O'Flynn, Brian O'Flynn, and Gillecondi O'Conuol, with their force came armed to Avenecherch, where a day had been assigned to William for delivery of the chattels, desiring to seize him by force and lead him to prison. When William saw this, he gave himself up through fear of death to John de Say, then Sheriff of Thuycard, on condition that the latter should receive from him sureties that he should abide by law; this the sheriff granted, but subsequently refused without a writ of Chancery; William then fearing for his life, as he was in the hands of his enemies, withdrew from the sheriff to his castle of Croscarnawy, for which reason all the ports and roads of Ulster were closed by the seneschal, so that William could not leave Ulster without being taken prisoner; through the peace, nevertheless, which he privately made with Mac Cartan, William escaped from Ulster by the pass of Imberdoilan to Dublin, there to seek a remedy from the K.'s council and from Nicholas Taf, counsellor of Richard de Burgh; having to obtain this remedy remained at Dublin from the octave day before Christmas until the Purification, a. r. 10, he procured a letter from Nicholas Taf, whereby an inquisition was taken in Ulster before John de Langston, Chancellor of Ulster, and William de Mandeville, then Sheriff of Down and Newtown; this inquisition found that William had done nothing after the peace for which he ought to be imprisoned, and that by the injury done to him by Thomas and the others he had sustained damages to the amount of 100*l.* They further Said that John de Say, Sheriff of Cumber, while William was at Dublin, entered the ward of Maunmery, which William held of the K., and there took from Gillecomedy O'Loughnan, an Irishman of said

1282.

William, 55 head of cart horses, oxen, and cows, and 11 head of horses and mares; from Bouethy Mac Carmich' and Geoffrey his brother in the same ward, 200 oxen and cows, 20 horses and cart horses, and 200 head of 2 year old hogs and goats; the sheriff imprisoned Bouethy himself, delivered him from prison as a hostage, and still detains him as such. They Say that before the peace aforesaid, while Ulster was in the K.'s custody, Henry de Percy took from William's Irishmen in that ward, 200 oxen and cows and more, 15 horses and cart horses, and 100 2 years old hogs and goats. They further Say that after the peace aforesaid by assent and instigation of the said Thomas de Mandeville, Robert de Mandeville, Martin de Mandeville, but chiefly of Henry de Percy, Moriarchav O'Flynn, Brian his son, and Gillecomedi O'Connolly, and of their followers, the said William's land of Lerges was robbed and destroyed, his granges and houses and his corn in sheaf burnt, 400 crannocks of oatmeal destroyed and carried away, and his salt pan worth 2 marks broken, to the damage of the said William of 104 crannocks of salt a year. For this deed the Irish aforesaid were indicted with the said Thomas, Robert, Martin, and Henry. Thomas de Logan had a share in this deed; and likewise all the force of Tuirtre. They Say that Hubert de Hanewode unjustly took from William's Irishman on the common of pasture of Corngate 5 cows, killed them, and they were consumed in his house. They further Say that at the feast of Pentecost, a. r. 10 [1282], Thomas de Mandeville, seneschal of Ulster, Robert and Martin de Mandeville, John de Say, Thomas de Logan, Henry de Percy, Moriarchav O'Flynn, Comoy O'Chacan, Comoy Mac Morthy, Artmacath Mac Morthy, Brian O'Flynn, Gillecomedy O'Comolty, and their followers, took and stole from the said William Fitz Warin, 1,000 oxen and cows, 2,000 2 years old hogs and goats, and 100 horses and cart horses. They killed Andrew brother of Wadin, an Englishman, in the tenement of the Bishop of Connor at Sallovere, and 4 Irishmen of the said William, and burnt the houses of Adam Byset at Kilcok. The said Gillecomedy O'Comolty with Thomas de Mandeville were indicted thereupon. They further Say that at Pentecost, a. r. 10, John de Say, Sheriff of Thuycard, without the will of said William Fitz Warin, raised from his tenants in Kenelchuehel 30*s.* of rent belonging to him, and still detains them; he also broke into said William's park of Pouloc, and set free the beasts of William's tenants there, which William had caused to be caught for his return. They also say that when the land of Ulster was in custody of the K. on account of the death of Sir Walter de Burgh, Sir Walter de Mandeville, Thomas and Walter de Mandeville, Eyeboy O'Neill, Comoy O'Catban, and Moriarcath O'Flynn, with their force, burnt said William's manor of Croscarnadry, which he holds of the K. in capite, and 5 of his circumjacent vills, to William's damage of 300*l.* and more.

Mem.—John de Saunford, escheator of Ireland, having by the

K.'s writ come to the vill of Down on the 14th July, a. r. 10 [1282], for the purposes stated in the above 1st writ, and having associated with himself N[icholas] Bishop of Down, there appeared before him Thomas de Maundeville, seneschal of said Richard in Ulster, Brother John, Abbot of Deulaeres, Sir Robert de Maundeville, John de Langford, John de Say, William de Maundeville, William le Chamberlain, Henry des Ancers, Henry de Percy, and others of Richard's advisers. William Fitz Warin also came and presented his complaint against Richard, which John delivered to the seneschal and the others. Tuesday next ensuing was assigned to the latter to answer the articles. On which day they answered that it would be against the liberty and to the prejudice of Sir Richard de Burgh, their lord, that they should answer without him; that William was his tenant, and Sir Walter was entitled to his suit and service, and died seised thereof, and the said Richard was in like manner seised of the suit and service; they said that William ought first to have come to Richard's court to prosecute his suit because justice failed no man in that court; but that they would answer according to law regarding the 4 pleas of the Crown touching the K. Having heard this answer, John, in performance of the K.'s mandate, took the inquisition by virtue of his office, and forbade Thomas de Mandeville, the seneschal, from in future harassing or molesting William in regard to his lands and tenements, or from exacting customs or services from William. He also enjoined that if Richard or the seneschal conceived that they had any action against William, they should come to the K.'s court, there to receive full justice.

On Wednesday following, before the said escheator, came as well the said William Fitz Warin as the said Thomas de Mandeville, seneschal of Ulster, with his advisers, and by arrangement of the escheator it was out of respect to the earl unanimously agreed as follows:—That William Fitz Warin shall submit to the earl his complaints against him; that if he can accord with the earl thereupon, he shall then submit his complaints against the earl's bailiffs, and if they can be duly remedied by the earl a settlement shall be come to on either side; but if this cannot be done, either party shall, if they deem expedient, elect before the earl fit and competent men by whom the complaints can be determined according to law and custom of Ireland. If William cannot accord with the earl, nor obtain right as aforesaid, he may seek right before the K. He shall however submit no complaint to the K. or to others until the earl shall have denied him right in the premises. Thomas de Mandeville, the seneschal, undertakes before the escheator that he will carry out the commands of the earl, his lord, regarding restitution of the chattels; that meanwhile peace shall be maintained between the parties; and that none of the parties shall inflict injury, damage, or grievance on any of the other parties, their men, lands, or possessions. In further ratification of this provision and ordinance, William Fitz Warin and Thomas de Mandeville, with some of the chief men of their parties, have taken their oaths before N[icholas] Bishop of Down and the said escheator, and either party gives sureties as follows. Sureties for William Fitz Warin:—William de Logan, Robert de Logan, Alan de Logan, William Pendleluy, John Bysete, and Hugh de Hanwood. Sureties for Thomas de Mandeville, seneschal of Ulster, and Sir Robert de Mandeville, and their men:—William de Mandeville, John de Say, Henry de Ancers, Martin son of Robert de Mandeville, Henry Savage, and Thomas son of Robert Fitz Richard. The sureties agree that they will all, conjointly with their force, rise and stand against those who impede or oppose this form of peace. [Inq. P.M., 10 Edw. I., No. 41.]

[1282.] April 29. 1919. The Earl Marshal had complained to the K. that the justiciary of Ireland exacts from him 100 marks for the decapitation of Art MacMurrrough [Makmorhod], who nevertheless was then at peace with the K., and this he does against the earl's liberty of Carlow, according to [the custom] hitherto prevailing there, as Art's head had not before been proclaimed with the consent of the earl or of his freemen; the justiciary moreover strives against the earl's liberty to hold inquisitions in the earl's land of Carlow, because 4 pleas belong to the K. there. [The K. therefore] commands H[] de Kendale and W[] de Odiham to hear this complaint, and send the statement thereof to the justiciary. The latter shall desist from inflicting grievances on the earl, and attempt nothing against his liberties, but deal the more favourably with him, because the earl is bearing himself well and laudably on the K.'s service in Wales. The K. shall be made a party with the earl in the plaint. Aberconway. [Royal Letters, No. 3316.]

May 16. 1926. The K. to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland. The Prioress and nuns of St. Mary of Clonard, Ireland, having announced to the K., by letters of their chapter, that their church was vacant by the death of Agnes, their late abbess, and prayed licence to elect, the K. had granted licence accordingly, commanding them to elect an abbess devout, fit for the rule of their church, and useful and faithful to the K. and to Ireland. The K. now of special grace grants power to the justiciary, on election made, to give the royal assent in lieu of the K.; to signify to the diocesan to do what is his in this matter; and if the election be canonically confirmed, to receive fealty from the elect, and restore the temporalities. The justiciary Inquisition taken at Dublin on Friday next after the feast of St. Luke the Evangelist, a. r. 10 [23 Oct. 1282] before S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland.

The jurors upon their oath say, that the demesne of the lands at Ballymagarvey held in dower by the said Wentliana was never partitioned between the heirs of Walter de Lasey, namely, Margery who was the wife of Sir John de Verdun, and Matilda wife of Sir G[oeffrey] de Geneville, and Wentliana so held them during her life, rendering at Kells to Theobald de Verdun 20s. when royal service was summoned; and that after Wentliana's death the bailiffs of T[heobald] de Verdun, son and heir of said Margery, took seisin of both the demesne and seignior of Ballymagarvey to the use of said Theobald, and still retain them without the K.'s licence. [Inq. P.M., 10 Edw. I., No. 56.]

Besides this there is allowed to them for overweight in farthings, 4*ts.* 2¾*d.*, whilst they still owe for underweight in pence and halfpence, 14*l.* 11*s.* 5¼*d.*, which ought to be devoted to improving the money.

They are however challenged with having bought bullion to the amount by weight of 30,631*l.* 17*s.* 0½*d.* besides bullion remaining in the Mint, which they delivered to be founded, as appears by the roll made between them and the master of the money, but purchases only appear to the amount of 29,215*l.* 9*s.* 11*d.* of bullion by weight, subtracting 20*l.* 4*s.* 10*d.* taken at Roscommon.

They are moreover challenged for small expenses in preparing the houses of the Mint, other expenses thereat, and travelling expenses of the moneyers and workmen to the amount of 32*l.* 18*s.* 1*d.*; also for the expenses of themselves and clerks, custody of the dies, and doorkeepers of the Mint, grants of robes [roberia], and moneys placed in the pix.

The keepers further pray allowance for 1,855*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.* paid to the Bishop of Waterford, Treasurer of Ireland, according to his letters patent herein recited, and dated Dublin, 10th of June, a. r. 10 [1282], whereby he acknowledges to have received of Andrew de Spersolt and James Donati, keepers of the Mint, Dublin, the said sum of 1,855*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.* of the issues of the Mint, namely, 30,710*l.* coined there, as is contained in the view of account of the Mint between the bishop and the keepers; and discharges them thereupon.

The keepers further pray allowance for the following amounts:—
4*l.* 9*s.* 11½*d.* for minute expenses of the Mint, as appears by particulars; 100*s.* paid by order of R[obert] de Offord to Marsil de Sens and his associate, moneyers, to prepare the founders' houses; 17*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* paid by order of the same, for travelling expenses of moneyers; and 11*l.* 0*s.* 18*d.* for their expenses in going to, remaining at, and returning from Roscommon regarding the Mint, which being allowed they owe clear 58*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*

They also pray that the moneys found in the pix at the time of the account may be restored to them.

It appears from the founder's roll that the keepers paid of bullion by weight beyond the amount contained in the rolls of purchase, 1,494*l.* 10*s.* 11*d.*, the particulars of which are not found in the rolls of purchases, so that the amount of bullion in this as in the other rolls is 30,710*l.*

But there remain in their custody 560*l.* 14*s.* 3*d.* of bullion by weight according to the Mint pound, in which are comprised 200*l.* which came from Waterford, for which profit and increment they ought to answer in the next account, and they ought to procure allowance of all particulars contained above. Be it known that nothing has been allowed to the keepers for their wages. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle 530, W.N., 1834.]

1976. Ireland:—Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, had been commanded to send the record and process of a plaint had before John de Saunford and his associates, justices itinerant in Ulster, a. r. 3, between Elias Cendal, plaintiff, and Hugh de Bello Manso, of lands and tenements which belonged to Hochageran, in the earldom of Ulster, which the K. heretofore conferred on Robert de Bello

Manso, then the K.'s groom, and which Hugh holds of Robert's gift and the K.'s confirmation. The justiciary sent the record as follows:—

Elias Cendal demands against Hugh de Beaumes $3\frac{1}{2}$ carucates and 40 acres of land in Bellimackilcolm, with the advowson of the church of St. Patrick in that vill; against Bricius de Villa Catheran, 30 acres of land; against John Black, 30 acres; against Patrick Dod, $\frac{1}{2}$ carucate; against Robert son of Robert Dod, 40 acres; against Reginald son of Richeward and Emma his wife, 20 acres; against Reginald son of Richeward, $\frac{1}{2}$ carucate; and against Walter son of Richeward, $\frac{1}{2}$ carucate, all in the said vill, whereof Robert Cendal, grandfather of Elias, whose heir he is, was seised in his demesne as of fee. All vouch to warranty Hugh de Beaumes, who comes by Richard Spiring, his attorney, and warrants to them; and as to the land of his own tenure, and that which he warrants, produces the K.'s charter of feoffment granted to Robert de Beaumes, brother of said Hugh, and also the K.'s charter of confirmation granted to said Hugh of the land and advowson aforesaid. Therefore the justices would not further proceed in the plaint. Elias was directed to apply to the K. for another writ, if he thought it expedient, and Patrick and the others were without day. Afterwards, at the Purification, a. r. 9, at Westminster, Hugh, on requisition, produces the 2 following deeds:—

Grant by Edward the K.'s eldest son to Robert de Beaumes, and his heirs, to whom Edward had lately given the land of Belimac Belcoln, formerly belonging to Hochageran, in Ulster, Ireland, of the advowson of the church in that land. Witnesses, Sirs Walter de Burgh, John de Grey, Robert Walraund, Warin de Bassingburn, John de Mucegros, Robert de Typetot, William de Chenny, Robert de Ufford. Bristol, 13th July, 47 Hen. III. [1263].

Deed of Edward the K.'s eldest son, confirming to Hugh de Beaumes the feoffment made to him by Robert, his brother, of all the latter's lands, tenements, and fisheries of Edward's gift in Ireland. Lewes, 16th May, 48 Hen. III. [1264].

The said Hugh puts in his place John Coly, of Wenlok, or William Mon, of Stanway. Afterwards the said Elias appears in the first four days of the quinzaine of Trinity. On the 5th day, Hugh's attorney produces the K.'s writ of protection for him until Michaelmas, on which day Elias prays that Hugh's default at the quinzaine of Trinity may be allowed to him; Hugh's attorney relies on the K.'s writ of protection, and further produces a writ close, dated 16th Oct., a. r. 10 [1282], and directing Ralph de Hengham and his associates, justices of oyer and terminer, to respite until Hilary following all pleas touching Hugh. Elias maintains that the writ of protection, and the writ close, ought not to avail, because the plea had been moved between them for 2 years and more, and Hugh had been seen in court after the date of the writ, though it provided that it should not avail after his return from the K.'s service in Wales. And for proof of this, Elias puts himself on the record of Walter de Wymburn and John de Lovetot, the K.'s justices. Hugh not being able to deny this, judgment is given that Elias shall recover seisin against Hugh, Bricius, and the others, and that Bricius, John, and the others shall have compensation out of Hugh's lands. [Coram Rege, Edw. I, No. 70, Rot. 6 dors.; and No. 71, Rot. 18.]

Michaelmas. 1977. The K. commands the Barons of the Exchequer to respite until further orders the demand which they make against Agnes de Vesey for 100*l.*, amount of a fine which she had made with the K. to recover her liberty of Kildare, which the K. had taken into his hand. [Memoranda, Q.R., Edw. I, No. 9, Rot. 1.]

Oct. 2.

1978. The K. commits for 5 years from the ensuing feast of All Saints, to Hugh Pape, James Donati, Hugh del Post, Torsianus Donati, and their associates, citizens, and merchants of Florence, the K.'s custom on wools, skins, and hides in all Ireland, that is to say, on each sack of wool containing 42 stone weighed at the K.'s beam, $\frac{1}{2}$ mark; each 300 woolfels, $\frac{1}{2}$ mark; and each last of hides, 1 mark, as was wont hitherto to be collected; power to name deputies, and yearly rendering to the K. at the Exchequer, Dublin, 1,000*l.*, the first payment to be made in one year from the ensuing feast of All Saints. If they are prevented by war from levying the custom, the K. will cause compensation to be made to the merchants. Power to attach offenders before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Llangerniew. [Fine Rolls, 10 Edw. I, m. 5; and Orig., 10 Edw. I, m. 16.]

Oct. 2.

1979. The K. commits to Walter Uncle for 10 years from Michaelmas last past, the custody of the county of Tipperary, Ireland, together with pleas of burglary of the Irish; yearly rendering to the K. at the Exchequer, Dublin, 100*l.* Provision for Walter's good conduct, and for his faithfully paying the money. Llangerniew.

Mandate to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland, to deliver the custody. [Pat., 10 Edw. I, m. 5; Fine Rolls, 10 Edw. I, m. 5; and Orig., 10 Edw. I, m. 16.]

The K. had by his letters patent commanded the abbots, priors, and other persons aforesaid to place firm confidence in what the said Thomas and John shall tell them in the premises, and had also commanded the justiciary of Ireland to cause all those making a loan to have the K.'s letters patent under the seal of Ireland testifying thereto, and assigning a term for payment according to the discretion of the justiciary. The K. had by letters patent commanded the abbots and priors, &c. to place confidence in what shall be said to them in this respect by Thomas and John, and had commanded the justiciary of Ireland to cause letters patent, under the seal which the K. uses in Ireland, to be made to those who give such a loan, testifying that it had been given, and assigning a term for repayment. [Chancery Files, Bundle 29.]

Oct. 9.

1986. Mandate to H. de Kendal, W. de Odiham, and A. de Berton to inspect the petitions enclosed in these presents and cause writs to be made thereupon according to the answers which the K. had given to those petitions. Rhuddlan.

Petition of Philip [son and] heir of Sir Richard de la Rochelle:—

The latter having been enfeoffed of the cantred of Omany in Connaught by the service of 7 knights and rendering a yearly sum for a portion of that land, the justiciary of Ireland now demands of Philip relief of the fee farm and of the knight service. Philip prays grace and remedy from the K. thereupon.

Mandate to the justiciary to take relief for the land held by knight service, to respite until the feast of St. John the demand for relief out of the other land, and meanwhile to certify to the K. whether relief was wont to be given for such lands.

After the death of Sir Richard the K.'s escheator took this land into the K.'s hand, and as it was all waste and no man inhabited it, the escheator spoke much to the Irish who had before held the land about coming back and taking the land; they refused to do so unless they had it for a term. As the escheator would not leave the land waste he let it to them for a certain term at a certain rent, so that when Philip came to the escheator to receive his land by the K.'s command before Easter, the escheator demanded of him all the rent rendered for the land in the time of Sir Richard when it was in herbage and in good peace. Philip could not in that year take more than the escheator had assessed. He thereupon prays the K.'s grace.

Mandate to the justiciary to exhibit such moderation thereupon as may seem meet to him.

Robert de Ufford, who afterwards came as justiciary, demanded of Philip the full rent of the land as it used to be in the time of good peace; Philip answered that he could not raise the rent unless by aid of justice, which he prayed. The justiciary commanded bailiffs to distrain for the rent. When the Irish heard this they made peace with the justiciary for a fine, and gave sureties and hostages for that fine. Then Jordan of Exeter judicially came, entered the lands, and took chattels to the amount of 200*l.* and more. Philip prays the K.'s grace that these chattels may be allowed to him in his rent.

Mandate to the justiciary that allowance be made to Philip for so much of the chattels as reached the K.'s hand or were converted to profit.

A sum of money is likewise demanded of Philip for services in the armies and expeditions led by his father when justiciary and of other services which his father rendered at Roscommon and in Thomond after he was justiciary. Philip thereupon prays remedy.

Mandate to the justiciary that if it appears to him that Philip's father had thus led armies and had services therein, he desist from the demand which he makes thereupon against Philip as heir; and that he inquire regarding the other services which Richard rendered after he was justiciary, and are now exacted of his heir, and that if he find it to be so he acquit the heir. 1987. Fiat to H. de Kendal, W. de Odiham, and A. de Berton, to command by the K.'s writ the justiciary of Ireland to provide Fromund le Brun, the K.'s Chancellor of Ireland, with a prebendal or other benefice of the K.'s gift; and further to command the justiciary to competently satisfy the collectors of the new custom in the ports of Ireland regarding their stipends. 1988. T[heobald] de Verdun, constable of Ireland, to R[obert] Bishop of Bath and Wells. Transmits tenor of inquisition made by the justiciary of Ireland at the K.'s mandate with a transcript of the original writ, regarding the manor of Ballinacgarvi [Ballymagarvey]. Prays counsel and remedy from the bishop, because he fears that the justiciary will take the manor into the K.'s hand and gravely inculcate Theobald, because he had entered without the K.'s licence. It appears to Theobald that he could lawfully enter after the death of Wentliana, and that he had committed no trespass against the K. He ought not to be disseised without judgment, because Wentliana who held the manor in dower, and Robert de Lasey, her husband, did not hold in capite of the K., but of Walter de Lasey. Wentliana's service out of that manor fell to Theobald as his purparty; she rendered fealty to him and paid him 20*s.* a year for it, as appears by the inquisition. The Lady Matilda, wife of Sir Geoffrey de Geneville, had an equivalent in the manor of Arnorehor, as well in demesne as otherwise, for the manor in question; and therefore the demesne of Ballinacgarvey neither was nor ought to have been partitioned between them. Theobald after the death of his father had paid to the K. a fine of 200 marks to have seisin of his lands in Ireland; nevertheless the justiciary exacts full relief from him, for which he prays remedy. Being impleaded in divers courts and counties in Ireland, Theobald prays the bishop to order one of his clerks at Chester to receive Theobald's attorneys. Richard de Baskerville is either married or about being so. The wife of Walter de Baskerville is not pregnant, as he had heard. [Royal Letters, No. 3376.]

The K. of special grace further grants and gives power to the justiciary, on election of the abbot, to give the royal assent in lieu of the K.; to signify the same to the diocesan; on confirmation by the diocesan to take fealty from the elect, and restore the temporalities, having first received the usual letters that this grace shall not tend to the K.'s prejudice, nor be converted into a precedent. Of the above services, there remain in the chamber of the Lady de Clare, 25*s.* The advowson of the church of Kynheth, worth 40*l.* a year, belongs to the Lady Christiana.

The Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland, to W[alter] Bishop of Meath [Midensis], Chancellor of Ireland, reciting the

K.'s letters, commanding the former to inquire by the oath of good and lawful men of his bailiwick whether it would be to the K.'s damage that he should grant to Christiana de Mariscis, licence to alienate her manor of Curton in Kenelean, and her land called Lassundu, or otherwise to turn them to profit; whether that manor and that land are comprised in the agreements lately made between the K. and her touching certain of her lands in Ireland, of whose fee they are held, by what service, and what they are worth. The inquisition with this writ shall be returned under seal to the K. in three weeks of Easter. Temple Brewer, Feb. 15, a. r. 12 [1283-4]. The justiciary directs the Chancellor to execute this mandate. Cogard in Wales, March 23.

Inquisition taken at Dublin by W[alter] Bishop of Meath, Chancellor of Ireland, and the underwritten jurors:—William de la More, William Karrek, William Was, Richard de Eycele, Thomas Caprich, David le Rede, Thomas H . . . d, Adam de Rathdonewyl, William Dullard, Walter Fitz Nicholas, John son of Adam de Moon, William le White:

Who Say that the said manor and land are comprised in the agreements made between the K. and the said Christiana; that the said manor of Curton was wont in time of peace to be worth 20 marks a year, and is now worth 10 marks; that the church of Curton was wont in time of peace to be worth 17 marks a year, and is now worth 6 marks; that it would be to the damage of the K. and of all Leinster, if the K. should grant to the said Christiana licence to alienate or turn to profit the manor of Curton, because war might arise if it were in any hand but that of the K.; that this manor is of the fee of William de Valence, Lord of Wexford, without suit or service; that the land of Losmauth is comprised in the agreements made between the K. and the said Christiana, and that it would not be to the K.'s damage that he should give her licence to alienate or turn it to profit, because it is hostile land; that in time of peace this land was wont to be worth 7 marks a year, but that now it is worth little or nothing, and that it is of the fee of the Earl of Ulster, and owes suit at the earl's court of Loureth in Connaught, without service.

The K. had on Nov. 16, a. r. 10, committed, during pleasure, to Christiana de Mariscis, his manors of Wyardisbury and Langley, rendering 110*l.* a year to the K., and afterwards committed those manors to her to hold by the same farm until she should, by her charter, enfeof the K. of certain of her lands in Ireland. Christiana having before the feast of All Saints in the above year caused the K. to have seisin of those lands, the K. now grants to her the above manors for her life, and without payment of rent for 3 years after her death, according to an agreement made between them thereupon. Mandate to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, on payment of 110*l.* in the quinzaine of Easter, to discharge her regarding debts and farms of those manors.

R[obert] Bishop of Bath and Wells to J[ohn] de Kirkeby. Sends transcripts of an agreement made between the K. and the Lady Christiana de Marisco, and an inquisition. Prays John to consider them, and order what he thinks just to the K. and the Lady Christiana. Has committed the ordering of this matter to John because he has not with him a clerk competent for the purpose. Prays to be certified in regard to what John may do in the premises. Balladenlin. Monday after the feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist.

Christiana de Mareis to the Bishop of Bath and Wells, the K.'s Chancellor. Prays for the confidence she has in him and for love of her brother Otto that he will give counsel and aid in expediting her affairs, so that she may be out of trouble, for it seems to her a trouble to be so aggrieved on account of her bounty to the K. and the service she had rendered to him. [Norman French.]

[] to the Bishop of Bath and Wells, Chancellor of England. Having inspected the transcript of a charter between the K. and the Lady Christiana de Mariscis, with inquisitions thereupon, it seems good to him that the agreements should be observed. Thlammas. Saturday in the feast of St. John the Baptist.

[John de Kirkeby] to []. Before his departure from London had understood that the matter regarding which he had been written to could not be determined with advantage to the K. and Queen without his counsel. The K. had granted all his portion to the Queen Consort. Wherefore he prays that he may be instructed how to act when the Bishop of Bath and Wells sends him the transcript of the agreement made between the K. and the Lady Christiana de Mariscis, and also the inquisition. Prays that this matter may be determined, so that the K. may have what by right he ought to have, and full justice may be done to the said Lady Christiana, his cousin. [Inq. P.M., 11 Edw. I., No. 77.]

May 9.

2081. The K. to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Complaint of the Abbot of Inislounagh [de Surio]. An abbot, his predecessor, having let to Richard de Burgh the land of Tachkerath for a term of 40 years, Richard had during the term thereof enfeoffed John de Valle, rendering suit from quinzaine to quinzaine, at Richard's court of Kilsilan. John subsequently enfeoffed Robert, his son and heir, of that land, rendering the suit aforesaid. Walter de Burgh, Richard's son and heir, after the death of his father, gave in exchange for some of the K.'s lands the aforesaid manor of Kilsilan, on which account the K.'s bailiffs unduly distrained the land of Tacherath to render suit to the K.'s manor of Kilsilan. Gilbert, Abbot of Inislounagh, considering when the term lately expired, that his house was thereby in danger of disherison, impleaded the said Robert before the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, of the said land of Tachkeragh; Robert vouched John de Valle to warranty thereupon, and John vouched Walter de Burgh to warranty, who warranted in court, and restored the land to the abbot. Nevertheless, the K.'s bailiffs desist not to distrain this land, which the abbot's predecessors held from time immemorial quit of all suit. The K. had therefore commanded the justiciary to inquire into the premises, and to certify thereupon to the K.; and if by the inquisition which he had caused to be taken it appears that the premises are true, the K. now commands the justiciary to summon Richard de Burgh, son and heir of Walter aforesaid, and cause him to be charged to the value of the suit and of the other services which Walter gave in exchange to the K.; and to discharge the abbot therefrom. Aug. 19. 2274. The K. to the sheriff of Louth, commanding him as he loves himself and all he has, to cause the writ which the K. sends to be sent to the Archbishop of Armagh. Witness, Brother S[tephen], Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland. Dublin.

Draft writ commanding [the Archbishop of Armagh] to be at Drogheda on the morrow of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin [Sept. 9], to treat with the Abbot of Rewley, Walter de Hopton, and Richard de Rowell, whom the K. sends to Ireland on arduous affairs.

Articles to be proposed against the Archbishop of Armagh:—

That he appropriated to himself the vacancies of certain cathedral churches, such as Derry, Raphoe, and Cudlac', and of certain abbeys, and received the temporalities without demanding licence from the K. and without fealty being rendered; especially in regard to Meath, where the church, being metropolitan, is in the K.'s hand in vacancies. So in regard to other churches in Ireland suffragan to archbishoprics.

That he newly consecrated the Bishop of Meath, no licence being demanded nor fealty taken.

That he held pleas which belong to the Crown.

That he received his relatives and their maintainers, felons who were present at the death of Nicholas de Verdun, of John his brother, and of the knights who were with them, all faithful to the K.; that those relatives were present with others at the levelling of the castle of Adlet, which belonged to Theobald de Verdun and was one of the fortresses of Ireland towards Connaught.

That he coined money against the K.'s crown, and that he has a stamp or stamps.

Credible persons bear witness to the truth of all the above articles against the Archbishop of Armagh, save those relating to pleas against the Crown and to coinage; they doubt with regard to these because they depend on the relation of others. Let these be better inquired into.

It is believed that he was summoned to Drogheda to answer in the premises.

The article that the Bishop of Down had been amerced by the justiciary in 100 marks is true according to the persons aforesaid, but the Rolls containing the amercement are wanting.

That he paid money to merchants in castles and chambers without the chamberlain being present is true, but the merchants ought further to inquire regarding his receipt of money from them. To Arnold de Roman, a Gascon merchant, to whom the K. or the justiciary was bound in 60*l.* or 60 marks, he remitted, it is said, 60 marks, in order that he might have 60*l.*

The article touching the Mint ought further to be inquired into. Richard Lokard and Andrew de Spersolt ought to be called.

Credible persons said that he sold wine and victuals, &c. dearer than he bought them, as in regard to stores for the castles of Roscommon, Randown, Augvo, Roscrea, victuals for Robert de Ufford, the justiciary, and those sent to the K. in Wales; that he bought in gross and commonly sold at a higher price, and that until his wines were delivered he would not permit new merchants with new wines to sell; moreover, that Clemmeny, his merchant, who was concerned in such sales, remained so much his debtor in his account against the justiciary that he demised his manor of le Rath near Mainoth. And it is to be remembered that as he prohibited other merchants from selling wines, so the wines sold by the justiciary ought to be held to have been sold for the K. and for the K.'s profit, and so the manor aforesaid ought to remain charged to the K. and not to the justiciary. Item that justiciaries and other great lords in Ireland frequently cannot purchase wines unless by his mediation or that of his deputies, and no one dare complain.

The following are to inquire regarding the Archbishop of Armagh:—[G[effrey] de Genvile, Thomas de Clare, William Fitz Warin, Elias de Berewere, John de Kenley, all justices and Barons of the Exchequer. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle 530, E.B. 2,543.]

Aug. 22. 2275. As the K. had sent Otto de Grandison into Wales for the custody of that land and for other affairs, the K. commands the justiciary of Ireland to purchase and send to Wales 500 quarters of wheat, as many quarters of oats, 200 quarters of malt, and 50 hogsheads of wine. The K. will cause the cost to be allowed to the justiciary in his account. Bangor. [Close, 12 Edw. I., m. 3.]

Aug. 24. 2276. The K. commands Hugh de Kendal to recommend J[ohn] Bishop of Clonfert by letters under the Great Seal to the Supreme Pontiff, and to pray his Holiness to extend special grace and favour to him, and to elevate him with congruous honours. Given under Privy Seal. Aber. [Tower Privy Seals, 12 Edw. I., No. 2.]

Aberconway. [Pat., 12 Edw. I., m. 6.]

May 4, 1275 2325. Account of Hugh of Lucca and his associates, assigned by to the K. to receive and collect as controllers [approviatores] the new Nov. 1, 1284. custom of Ireland granted to the K. by the Irish magnates; rendered at the Irish Exchequer before the Barons thereof, from May 4, a. r. 3 [1275], until Michaelmas, a. r. 8 [1280].

The said Hugh and his associates, by Percival of Lucca, who last rendered an account of that custom, remained in the K.'s debt to the amount of 5,171l. 18s. 6d., and answered therefor in Dublin, after allowances made to them by tallies; and by the writ under written which they brought from England, they had acquittance of this debt on the Great Roll. Of the above amount the said Percival of Lucca and Bendinus Panicci render their account in the K.'s Exchequer of England as appears by the writ.

The K.'s writ notifying to Robert de Ufford, justiciary of Ireland, and S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, Treasurer of Ireland, that Percival of Lucca and Bendinus Panicci, merchants of Lucca and keepers of the new custom of Ireland, had lately rendered their account at the K.'s Exchequer of England, of 5,171l. 18s. 6½d., issues of that custom from May 4, a. r. 3 [1275], until Michaelmas, a. r. 8 [1280]; and of 1,392l. 2s. 6½d. which the said Percival acknowledged to have received of the said treasure in Ireland by the hands of the justiciary and Treasurer; and that the said Percival and Bendinus had satisfied the K. for the whole amount. Mandate to the justiciary and Treasurer to exonerate Percival, Bendinus, and their associates regarding the whole of the money if they had been charged therewith at the Exchequer of Dublin, and to cause to be restored to them their letters obligatory for the said 1,392l. 2s. 6½d. Baddow. July 20, a. r. 8 [1280].

Mem. that divers men of the ports answer and account for the said custom from Michaelmas, a. r. 8, until the feast of All Saints, a. r. 10 [Nov. 1, 1282], at which time Hugh Pape and his associates received by the K.'s commission the said custom to farm for 1,000l.

View of the account of Hugh Pape, James Donati, Hugh le Post, Torasianus Donati, and their associates, citizens and merchants of Florence and keepers of the new custom of Ireland, of the issues of the same, from the feast of All Saints, a. r. 10, until the same feast, a. r. 12 [1284], namely, for 2 years.

They charge themselves with 2,000l. of the issues of that custom for the time aforesaid, namely, of 1,000l. a year, as is contained in the commission made to them by the K.'s letters patent of England for a term of 5 years. Whereof they pray to be discharged for 777l. 7s. 1d., paid into the K.'s Exchequer by 13 tallies which they have; and for 200l. which they ought to have received of Bouruncinus Walteri and his associates sojourning in Ireland, for custom on 600 sacks of wool which by the K.'s order they caused to be exported quit of custom for a. r. 11; and so they owe 1,022l. 12s. 11d. Edw. I.

2328. Memoranda of the account of the justiciary of Ireland. In Roll 8 he sometimes charges himself with receipt by weight with white money, and sometimes without white money. Mem. regarding rents of Confy.

In Roll of Receipt 9 there are 3 more particulars in the Roll of the Chamberlain than in the Treasurer's Roll, and those particulars are not found by scrutiny of the bishop's clerks.

1284.

In Roll 9 Tassaggard is on the Treasurer's and not on the Chamberlain's Roll.

He discharged himself before the auditors and did not charge himself with 10 marks of the subsidy paid by the clergy and people.

He paid 200*l.* to the Bishop of Clonfert for a prest made to Robert de Ufford, the justiciary, the writ for which was given, a. r. 5, and in the first account he paid 600*l.* to the bishop in gross, which is doubtful.

In Easter, a. r. 7, 100 marks were paid to the burgesses of Drogheda in part payment of 106*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* 40*l.* were paid to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, in Hilary, a. r. 9. The writ is delayed until the particulars are seen.

John Mape's writ for 79*l.* 15*s.* by a writ which bears 71*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.* was allowed in Michaelmas term, a. r. 8, for custody and works of the castle of Randown, from a. r. 3. Let the writ be seen.

The term of Hilary, a. r. 9, is cancelled on the Chamberlain's Roll. For Michaelmas, a. r. 9, the particulars are greater on the Treasurer's than the Chamberlain's Roll.

On the Chamberlain's Roll there are particulars of payment to Robert de Ufford which are not on the Treasurer's Roll.

In Hilary, a. r. 11, there are particulars on the Chamberlain's which are not on the Treasurer's Roll, of 374*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* paid to W[alter] Dean of Waterford, but the particulars are cancelled on the dorse of the Treasurer's Roll.

The sub-justiciary and the clerks of the justiciary take moneys which have not been allowed, because it is not known whether the justiciary ought to satisfy them out of his fee.

On the justiciary's Roll for the term of St. John, a. r. 7, there is an item for 22*l.* 5*s.* 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. paid to Thomas Burel for works which is not on the Chamberlain's Roll.

The Treasurer said that where W[alter] the Dean, brother of the justiciary, is charged, he wished that the bishop should be charged.

In Easter term, a. r. 10, there are more items on the Chamberlain's than on the Treasurer's Roll, and there is one for 6*l.* 6*s.* 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ d., under the name of Thomas Burel.

In the term of St. John, a. r. 9, there is an item of 18*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* paid to the Earl Marshal which was allowed to him by the K.'s writ in his account on the Great Roll; there is also one of 19 hogsheads of wine delivered to R[obert] de Ufford, the justiciary, namely, 13 at Dublin and 6 at Drogheda.

In the body of the Chamberlain's Roll of payment for the term of St. John there are particulars of 1,333*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* for cost of the Mint of Dublin, and 1,352*l.* 0*s.* 18*d.* for cost of the Mint of Waterford, which particulars are cancelled on the Treasurer's Roll, and there is one entry of 1,693*l.* 18*s.* 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. for these particulars on the dorse of the Treasurer's and Chamberlain's Roll in Michaelmas term, a. r. 8-9.

In St. John's term, a. r. 11, the total paid to W[alter] the Dean is on the dorse of the Roll, and it is in the body of the transcript. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle 530, E.B. 2901.]

2330. Memoranda regarding accounts of the Mint.

1st account.—Mem. of 36*l.* 0*s.* 20*d.* received from metal plates; whence did the plates come?

Mem. regarding a profit of 115*s.* out of 115*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.*; whence did this amount come? It is not charged.

Mem. of money in the remanets in the account of debts.

2nd account.—Walter Vurerd had only charged himself with 170*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*, received of Percival of Lucca, and afterwards paid to the same. It is said that Percival and his associates paid from time to time to the amount of 600 marks, whereof the K. could have had 16*d.* in the pound. This appears from the item of 11*l.* 7*s.* 5*½d.* in the account aforesaid.

Mem. of the prisage of wines in Cork, which is not answered for.
 Has it been answered for elsewhere than in its proper port? The value and mode of prisage is to be inquired into throughout the ports; and whether any other person but the K. has the right to take prisage.

2332. [Charges against the Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland.]

The justiciary caused the Archbishop of Armagh to be summoned before him at Drogheda, and accused him of usurping vacancies of cathedral churches and abbeys to the K.'s disherison, of appropriating to himself the custodies of the temporalities thereof, and of instituting prelates in the same without obtaining the K.'s licence, as in the churches of Kildare, and Raphoe, and others which the escheator can name; and of holding pleas belonging to the Crown to the K.'s disherison. The justiciary left these excesses unpunished and uncorrected, out of favour to the archbishop, who by simoniacal pravity had unjustly provided the justiciary's brother with the see of Meath.

The justiciary amerced the Bishop of Down in 100 marks for a default, and ordered the temporalities of that see to be taken into the K.'s hand on account of an excommunication which he said the archbishop had pronounced against the bishop, although the latter had appealed from the excommunication, and the cause was depending in the Court of Rome. The justiciary did this to compel the bishop to compound with the archbishop; and having extorted a composition, he remitted the amercement and restored the temporalities.

The justiciary, after he became Treasurer, received the K.'s money in the Exchequer before the sworn officers of the K., but distributed it privately among merchants in his chamber or at the castle, the K.'s officers not being present; it is thereupon commonly said that he retained from the merchants to his own use a great part of the money, and allowed the whole to the K.

He had, it is said, illicit gain out of the Mint and the new custom, while the money was not in the hands of the merchants. Let this be inquired into of those who were at the Mint, and of merchants of cities and burghs.

Item of wines and other articles bought, it is said, with the K.'s money, and sold to the K. at a higher price.

He removed William le Deveneys from the office of remembrancer of the Exchequer, because he would not sell to him his land lying near the justiciary's manor of Dunbro; afterwards, the sale being made, he took him back into the Exchequer, and made him ingrosser.

He oppressed, it is said, many because they would not sell their lands to him.

Sir Richard de Feypo, while unsound in mind, gave, it is said, to the justiciary 100 acres of land near the justiciary's manor of Dunbro for the custody for 10 years of the castle of Randown; and afterwards led by repentance, when Richard had become of sound mind, the justiciary passed by chirograph the land to him, and removed him from the custody.

It was agreed between the justiciary and Sir Richard de Feypo, that the latter should have a fair at Screen and free warren at Rathconnel, for 40 marks; he got neither, and nevertheless the justiciary now demands 40 marks from Richard's executors, and distrains them therefor.

His bishopric is by extent of the escheator worth not more than 46*l.*, and the bishop, before he became Treasurer and justiciary, had no lands or property; as he can now spend, as he himself says, 1,000*l.*, it is plain that this increase was derived from the issues of the offices.

He removed and changed all the officers of the Exchequer, without mandate or authority.

Mem. of the ward and marriage of Reginald de Dene, which he bought for 20 marks.

Also of the changing of the houses of the Exchequer, and of the great expenditure thereupon without any necessity or advantage, unless to himself.

2333. Memoranda [by the Barons of the Exchequer or the auditors of the Bishop of Waterford's accounts] touching the following matters:— The custody of Reginald de Dene, from which [the Treasurer] hopes to have the debt in which the K. was bound to Sir William, Reginald's grandfather; he does not charge himself with 1,500*l.* from Bendinus; 10 marks lent by the clergy and people, whereof he has the K.'s acquittance; 100*l.* given by the Cistercian order in aid of the expedition to Wales; the capitation [testagium] of Art [Mac Murrough]; hire of carts to pacify the land of Offaly. He has participated in the profit of the custom and purchases and sales of wines, and has largely pardoned fines and amercements in order to profit by lands and custodies. The accounts of the Mint were badly audited, and disavowed by the Barons and clerks. He gave writs of Liberate for corn of rectories taken into the K.'s hand, and has not charged himself therewith.

The K. is deceived regarding the making over of his lands in fee or on lease.

He does not charge himself with the services of Confy, and makes tallies of the Exchequer.

He regards as enemies all those who speak to [the auditors].

He seeks to have 2,000 marks of the custom.

As to 1,500*l.* from Bendinus; 1,000 marks of the clerical and lay subsidy, whereof he has the K.'s acquittance; 100*l.* given by the Cistercian order in aid of the expedition into Wales, the levy of money on account of Art. and out of certain carucates to pacify Offaly, with none of which he charges himself; he participates in the profits of the custom and of purchases and sales of wines, and in order to profit by lands and custodies he remits and pardons large fines and amercements made before the justiciary; accounts of the Mint badly audited and disavowed by the Barons and clerks, and the corn of rectors taken into the K.'s hand, for which he gave writs of Liberate without charging himself; the K. is deceived as to letting of his lands; [the Treasurer] does not charge himself with the services of Confy, and makes tallies of the Exchequer; he holds as enemies all those speaking to [the auditors], and imprisons some of them.

2335. [Memoranda regarding the Treasurer's account]:—
Item [the Barons or auditors] demand on behalf of the K. that he charge himself with all particulars of receipts wherewith he charged himself after he came from Drogheda before the Abbot of Thame, &c. He admits these receipts, but they were not mentioned in the Treasurer's or Chamberlain's Rolls:

Confy [Confoy]. They demand for the K. that the Treasurer of Ireland, in whose accounts, as in the Chamberlain's, are found particulars of receipts of the service of Confoy, shall charge himself with these receipts and discharge himself in due form by the K.'s writ, because in paying over the proceeds of this service he not only makes payment to the grantee of the service, but pays over to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford the money received from this service. This appears by the Rolls of Receipt and other rolls, as the Rolls of Payment to Perceval of Lucca. Moreover all services, as scutages in England, ought to be set down in the Roll of Receipt for remembrance of the date, and in order that services should not be alienated from the K., but chiefly because the book of those services called Domesday has been burnt by indifferent custody.

Indorsed: Roll 13. Kildare. Touching divers services out of the barony of Naas.

As the Treasurer of Ireland and his clerk allege that there is no order in the Exchequer of Ireland, and that there was none before his arrival, let it be demanded of John, the chaplain, who was with the Bishops of Meath and Ossory, treasurers before Stephen, and of Peter of Balimor, who for 20 years held the first rank in the Exchequer, 1st, whether they received or paid anything without the treasury; 2ndly, whether they made payments without the Chamberlain and without writs being in the custody both of the Treasurer and the Chamberlain; 3rdly, whether the rent accounts of the above treasurers were rendered by testimony of the Treasurer's or by that of the Chamberlain's Rolls; 4thly, whether accounts were rendered with or without writs, excepting necessary expenses and payments by clerks of the Exchequer, who receive daily pay.

[About 12 Edw. 2337. Documents touching S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford:—
R[] called Abbot de Regali Loco [Rewley] and his associates, messengers of the K., to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland, praying that he will give credence to what [] who will submit these presents, shall expound to him. Dublin. Monday after the feast of the Assumption.

Instructions to the messenger. He shall say to the justiciary that the K. commands that the justiciary's account be viewed by the Abbot of Rewley from the time when he was Treasurer of Ireland and afterwards justiciary and Treasurer; that a view be made of the previous accounts as well of himself as of the K.'s other ministers in Ireland, according to the discretion of the abbot and his associates; likewise a view of the Mint, the new custom, the escheatry, the state of the Exchequer and of ministers there, but principally of the state of Ireland; that as the K. is to be certified thereupon before the day appointed in the writ, it is necessary that the justiciary should hasten to perform what is enjoined to him; if he is unable so quickly to come without grave loss to the K., then by his letters patent he shall commit his office to others who shall have power to charge and discharge him, and to do all other things which he might do if present, with ratification of the acts of his deputies. [Draft and fair copy of this document.]

Moreover, they had written to the K. about many things. The whole clergy and people and the common rumour of the country demand this [i.e., what is stated in the instructions] and more, according to the testimony of Sir Nicholas de Clare, who had always been faithful to the K.

They had, moreover, learnt for certain that the justiciary, when he last crossed over from Ireland into Wales, where he feared being removed from his office, caused to be carried with him a no small sum of money, whereof he conveyed back at his return 4 barrels of 8 gallons each, and on the writer's arrival nothing was found in the treasury of the Exchequer. Many fear that he is about to do something else which he ought not to do. As he continually protracts and retards the matter about which they have come, and as Michaelmas is at hand, when rents and the K.'s debts ought to be received, and a number of creditors have been summoned for that feast, the writers think it expedient that payments and all manner of distresses should be suspended by the K.'s command, and that the views of accounts should be perfected. Pray that the K.'s pleasure be signified to them.

R[] called Abbot of Rewley and his associates, messengers of the K. in Ireland, to S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland. As the matter confided to them requires expedition, it seems to them that they cannot remain without his presence so long as his letter seems to require. Without his presence they cannot carry the matter into execution. Wherefore it depends upon him to determine what shall be done to perform the royal pleasure. Much desire his return to Ireland. Sunday after the feast of the Assumption. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle 530, E.B. 2543.]

[About
12 Edw. I.]

2338. Memoranda regarding receipts of the Treasurer of Ireland. [The barons or auditors?] say that the Treasurer ought to be charged with the portions contained on the dorse of receipts because he acknowledges those receipts;

That the Treasurer ought to be charged with Tassagard and other receipts on the dorse of the Roll of Receipts, because Tassagard is demesne of the K.;

That he ought to charge himself with the receipts of the service of Confy, though the service was granted to Thomas of Clare;

That he ought to charge himself with the money granted out of the 4 counties of Leinster and out of the county of Dublin to the abbots of the Cistercian order to pacify the land of Offaly, whereof no original writ was delivered into the Exchequer; there were received 100*l.* from the abbots of the county of Kilkenny; 60*l.* in gross by the fine of Carlow, 2*s.* out of carucates of land in Wexford, Kildare, and the county of Dublin, amounting to 40*l.*, and of this money special payments were made to the Treasurer at St. Thomas's, Dublin, as is testified by the payer, namely, William Kadel, seneschal of Kilkenny, who paid it there to the Treasurer, and elsewhere to the mayor of Dublin deputed by the Treasurer to receive it;

That he ought to charge himself with several payments made by the counties of Leinster on account of Art and Makmurth his brother, for during their life a levy of money was proclaimed; they came to peace, and after their death a new payment was made; the amount of these payments cannot be known, for no original writ was delivered into the Exchequer;

That he ought to charge himself with 2*s.* out of each carucate of land in the county of Limerick which had been granted to demolish a pass in that county;

That the Treasurer is properly charged on the dorse of his receipts with 3,364*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.* received by weight with white money, because as he received by weight he ought to pay by weight;

If the Treasurer only made payments by tale he ought not to be charged in his receipts by weight;

The Treasurer ought to charge himself with fines for entry of lands; for when waste or other lands are committed the receivers give a portion [of the fine] into hand, and with this the Treasurer does not charge himself in his receipts;

As to profits of the Mint, of customs, of wines and corn bought on account of war, as to fines made to the justiciary and pardoned by him, custodies and marriages, and dividing of fees;

The Treasurer before the auditors of the view of his account in Ireland discharged himself concerning 97*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* paid to Aschas' and his associates, 200 marks prest paid to the mayor and citizens of Dublin, 1,500 of the new custom, 1000*l.* marks paid into the wardrobe at Conway, and charged himself with none of those sums, although the auditors directed him to do so; he now charges himself with those sums excepting the 1,000 marks aforesaid;

In the receipts, a. r. 11, of Peter de Balimor, the Chamberlain, two particulars were received in the middle time while the Exchequer was closed, and tallies made; Peter on his arrival would not receive the counter tallies, unless he had first made an entry in his Roll;

as was proved by W. le Deveney who delivered the tallies; the particulars were found on the Chamberlain's and not on the Treasurer's Roll, and although the brother of the Bishop of Meath had received the money and ought to have entered the receipt on his roll and to have answered therefor on the arrival of the Chamberlain, the justiciary swore that he should answer for the Chamberlain's money.

Challenge regarding Payments.

Payments other than those testified in the Chamberlain's Roll ought not to avail the Treasurer;

The treasurer ought to discharge himself regarding the charge of James Donati and Henry de Ponte, keepers of the Mint;

Although the K. may be pleased to authorise writs found out of common custody, yet as there are writs of a. r. 3, 4, 5, and 6, produced, the present account cannot be proceeded with until the accounts of those years are seen; the present auditors are R[obert] de Ufford and J. de Kenley, who disavow audit; it ought to be seen whether the accounts are reasonable;

1,000 marks of the clerical and lay subsidy ought not to be allowed to the Treasurer, unless he charges himself with the receipt of moneys on account of the subsidy;

Henry of Trim confessed that he had been satisfied touching all loans made by him to the K., or his Treasurer, until the feast of the Assumption, and so he will not have allowance of 400*l.*, as appears in the schedule;

Mem. as to 10*l.* delivered to the Earl of Lincoln, and 2,273*l.* 0*s.* 18½*d.* of new money delivered to Robert de Ufford in a. r. 8-9;

There are more particulars in the Treasurer's Roll for Michaelmas term, a. r. 9, than in the Chamberlain's Roll, and conversely in the Chamberlain's Roll for the term of St. John, a. r. 9; so in Hilary, a. r. 11, there are particulars in the Chamberlain's Roll which are not in the Treasurer's, conversely in the terms of Michaelmas, a. r. 8, and of St. John, a. r. 7.

The Treasurer discharged himself regarding 1,500*l.* delivered to Bendinus by the K.'s writ, and when the money was demanded from Bendinus he sufficiently showed that it had been repaid to the Treasurer;

All writs which the Treasurer handed in were placed in a white coffer; he delivered many old writs to those who were making the view, and brought many more before the auditors touching his account; these writs could not be duly filed unless by view of the Chancellor, nevertheless the Chancellor's Rolls of the time of Fro-mund le Brun were found in the Treasurer's chamber; old writs produced regarding this account of a. r. 3, 4, 5, and 6, cannot be filed, whether allowable or not, unless writs touching previous accounts are seen, for allowances are thus made to accord in names and sums; this appears in regard to J. Mape, in a. r. 3, touching 33*l.* due to Henry le Marshal in the account for a. r. 5, which was allowed in a. r. 7, and in regard to the Bishop of Clonfert touching 200*l.* paid to him for 200*l.* paid to Robert de Ufford;

In the account for the term of St. John, a. r. 9, there is a payment of 18*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* to the Earl Marshal, allowed to him by the K.'s writ in his account on the Great Roll; also a payment of 19 hogsheads of wine to R[obert] de Ufford, the justiciary; money and not wines is paid into the Exchequer;

In the account for Hilary, a. r. 8, there is a payment of 100*l.* out of the bishop's money to Perceval of Lucca; could he not have entered this on his own Rolls?

The Chamberlain's payments for the whole term of Hilary are cancelled; the justiciary believes that this was because he caused the Chamberlain's account to be audited on the Great Roll; this appears out of order; the Barons disavow the account;

Reference is made to the accounts of the Mint; there are no accounts, but treaties de Gerarchia. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle 530, E.B. 2543.]

[12 Edw. I.] 2339. Extent made on the K.'s behalf of the lands which belonged to Christiana de Mariscis in Ireland.

Moreover Adam Gaynnard holds 2 vills of land there, saying that he had been enfeoffed by Fulk of Newcastle, who had no right to enfeoff; the lands are worth 15*l.* a year and more.

There are there good tenants, who would give to the K. 17 marks of annual rent and 50 marks fine for entry.

There are moreover in those parts 200 librates of land to be obtained of the inheritance of the Lady Christiana, provided her rights were prosecuted. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle 530, E.B. 2543.]

 Mem. that the said Adam Gaynnard holds for 2 villis of land Balmolyn, Baliconlachma, Balimohynny, Kynnegruinhyr, and Balychalma. Adam has no warrant to hold these tenements, unless by Fulk of Newcastle, who had no right to give or enfeof.

Pleas touching wills ought not to be pleaded before the Barons. William is not a baron, nor a minister of the K., nevertheless, they force him to answer before the Barons regarding this debt. The citizen did not keep his terms, and Griffin owing to the war and to poverty was unable to discharge the other portion of the debt. He did not dare to go to the Exchequer of Dublin to ask for other terms and the K.'s grace, because Stephen de Fulburn, justiciary of Ireland, took his manor from the citizen of Dublin, and wishes and thinks to enjoy it for ever. Wherefore Thomas beseeches the Chancellor to cause Griffin to have the K.'s letters directing the Treasurer and Barons to compute Griffin's debts and grant him reasonable terms lest he should seem to be disinherited. GLOSSARY.

BETAGH. This word was in the previous volume explained, on the authority of Cowel, as meaning laymen using glebe lands, and this explanation appears somewhat confirmed by No. 717 in this volume; but an Irish peer has most kindly represented to me that the word comes from Bead-tagh, and implied a villein-like tenure.

CHAMPERTY, Campi pars (946, 1072). The explanation of this word given in law dictionaries and glossaries appears inapplicable here.

COTERELLI (179), Cottagers. The cote-rellus seems to have held in mere villenage, and his person, issue, and goods were disposable at the will of the lord (Jacob quoting Parochial Antiquities).

INFONGENETHEF. See Glossary to Vol. I.

LIBRATES. See Glossary to Vol. I.

MESLINE, 654. See Glossary to Vol. I.

QUEEN-GOLD (835); a royal duty payable by way of fine or oblation to every Queen Consort by persons in England and Ireland, upon divers grants of the King. (Cowel.)

SPIGURNEL (350), the Sealer of the King's writs.

STANG; a pole, rod, or perch; a measure of land.

STRINELAND (67). See Glossary to Vol. I.

TESKYN; a marsh or fen [842].

THEODUM, Theudum; a way of representing the Irish territorial denomination Tuath.

UTFANGENETH; an ancient privilege granted by the King to a lord of a manor, giving him power to punish a thief dwelling out of his liberty and taken within his fee.

UTRUM (503), Juris Utrum; a writ which lies for the parson of a church whose predecessor has alienated the lands and tenements thereof (Jacob). Here the writ is granted to archbishops, bishops, abbots, priors, and chapters.

VETITUM NAMUM, pleas of (392 and 1645); unlawful distress.
